

NEW RED MOVE
IN MID-EAST SEEN IN PARLEY WITH ISRAELI PREMIER

Molotov's Reply to Protests on Arms to Egypt Kept Secret, but at Least Deaf Ear Is Not Turned.

GENEVA, Nov. 1 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was reported today to have made a new move to inject Russian power and influence in the troubled Middle East.

Israeli informants said Molotov's strategy was indicated when he answered Israeli Premier Moshe Sharett's protests against the flow of Red arms to Egypt.

At Molotov's insistence, Sharett and his assistants refused to disclose the precise nature of his reply. But this much did come out of the meeting last night between Molotov and Sharett:

The Soviet Foreign Minister did not turn a completely deaf ear to Sharett's complaint that the sale of submarines, tanks, guns and MIG fighter planes by the Soviet bloc imperiled Israel's existence.

Talks to Continue.

Talks on the military and other aspects of the Middle Eastern situation will be continued between the two countries, probably in Moscow through diplomatic channels.

Molotov sidestepped Sharett's direct appeal to stop the sale of arms to Egypt, Israel's bitter and avowed enemy. He explained that it was Russia, not Russia, which was selling the arms, and anyway the deal was a "normal" commercial transaction.

But he expressed some appreciation of Israel's opposition to the Baghdad pact. This is the alliance of Turkey, Iraq, Iran and Pakistan, the so-called "northern tier" of countries in the Middle East, which Britain is linked and which the United States may join in 1956 or 1957. Russia previously has bitterly protested against the creation of this alliance.

It was not disclosed whether Molotov told Sharett that Israel also could qualify for the sort of commercial arms deals and economic aid that are being offered various Arab countries.

Before meeting Molotov, however, Sharett had informed the three Western foreign ministers that he would not ask for Soviet bloc arms even though he had received word previously that he could buy military equipment if he asked for it.

Before flying home today, Sharett conferred with Israeli ambassadors in London, Paris and Moscow in an effort to pull together the results of his week-long talks with the foreign ministers in Paris and Geneva.

'Modestly Successful.'

He told reporters his mission had been "modestly successful." On arms, he was reported to have received broad assurance that the western powers will try to meet Israel's needs for essentially defensive weapons, such as jet interceptors, aircraft, anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns, and submarine chasers.

Sharett was said to have taken some heart from this remark attributed to Dulles: "The United States regards it in the national interest that the state of Israel shall not be destroyed by aggressors."

On security, he was said to have got word that the United States, Britain and France probably will renew their 1950 pledge to act as policemen against any Middle East aggression. One addition to this pledge may warn against aggression on the high seas, by submarines or other craft, against lawful commerce.

Sharett had hoped for promises that the West would try to match Soviet bloc arms supplies, but on this he got a refusal on the grounds it would start an Israel-Arab arms race. He also asked for outright security guarantees of Israel's borders, but the western powers are not prepared to go that far.

SNOW BY FRIDAY,
SEVERE WINTER,
PROFESSOR SAYS

Snow here by Friday and the most severe winter St. Louis has experienced in eight years was predicted today by Edward M. Brooks, professor of geophysics at St. Louis University who bases his weather forecasts on a study of sun-spot cycles.

Brooks, who has predicted that summers here will be cooler through 1968, said that the next three winters also will be colder than usual. This year, temperatures below zero will be recorded in St. Louis, he said.

The Weather Bureau, receding slightly at the report of Brooks' prediction, said cautiously that snow by Friday "can't be ruled out," provided a mass of cold air arrives from Canada. As for the forecast of an icy winter, bureau officials said they just did not know.

Nina Warren and Fiance

NINA WARREN and DR. STUART BRIEN obtaining marriage license yesterday at Santa Monica, Calif.

CHIEF JUSTICE'S
MARRY DOCTOR

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Nov. 1 (AP)—A marriage license was obtained yesterday by Nina Warren (Honey Bear) Warren, 22-year-old daughter of Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren, and Dr. Stuart Brien, 33, Beverly Hills (Calif.) physician.

Miss Warren said of wedding plans: "We haven't even thought about it yet." Dr. Brien said any announcements about the wedding would come from Mrs. Warren in Washington. It will be the first marriage for each.

Nina was stricken with polio Nov. 7, 1950, the day her father was re-elected for his third term as Governor of California. For a time her legs were paralyzed but she recovered fully and attended the University of California at Los Angeles. She has two older sisters, Virginia and Dorothy.

JAPANESE PRINCE LIKELY TO FOLLOW
MARGARET'S LEAD

TOKYO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Princess Margaret's decision not to marry Capt. Peter Townsend very likely will have an effect on the wedding plans of Crown Prince Akihito of Japan, one of the world's few remaining eligible royal bachelors.

Sources close to the imperial household said today they thought the decision of the princess eliminated any possibility of a commoner or a woman not high in royal circles.

There had been talk that Akihito, 21 years old, might go beyond the rigid confines of the highest royalty for a bride. But the sources pointed out the Japanese imperial family frequently followed the lead of the British family, and probably would do so this time.

This narrowed Akihito's choice to about six former princesses of marriageable age, or about 50 daughters of former peers.

ATOMIC SURVIVAL
PLAN TO BE SET UP FOR WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Washington metropolitan area has become the nation's first critical target area to contract with the Government for development of a comprehensive survival plan for use in event of atomic bomb attack.

This followed the recent announcement by Civil Defense authorities that in the event of evacuation of the capital at the President's order, his staff are here, they would leave the city along with other residents, and not ahead of them.

The contract provides that the Federal Civil Defense Administration will make $10,000 available immediately to finance a survey project to determine what additional studies will be needed to complete an operational evacuation, reception and protective survival plan.

The plan will cover the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia counties for evacuation purposes and more distant Maryland and Virginia counties which would receive the residents of the metropolitan area.

Pilot Spots Fire, Buzzes House

NORTH WILSBORO, N. C., Nov. 1 (UP)—Virgil Adams wants to thank the pilot who buzzed his home. Adams said the noise of the plane awakened him and he discovered his house was on fire.

At one point in the performance, singers on the stage shouted "Make up your mind, make a decision."

Today it became apparent that it was that night that Margaret finally did make up her mind.

Coincidence forced Margaret to hear those shouted words at the Royal Opera House shortly after a 50-minute meeting with Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury and primate of the Church of England.

Royal circles agreed that his advice turned Margaret's sentiments from love to duty.

But the opera about a girl who also had to make the same choice may have edged Margaret over the brink of the decision she had so long delayed.

PRAISE SHOWERS
FOR HER DECISION

Messages of Sympathy
Pour In—Some Voice
Anger at Tyranny of Tradition.

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Princess Margaret remained in seclusion today while statesmen, churchmen and commonfolk showered her with sympathy and praise for her decision to put duty before love.

The divorced man whose suit she rejected, Royal Air Force Group Capt. Peter Townsend, tried to face reporters but suddenly turned away with shoulders drooping. He looked pale and dejected.

Margaret's mother stayed with her in Clarence House, half a mile from Buckingham Palace. Small clusters of curious gathered outside the buff-colored building.

Queen Elizabeth II carried on royal duties, awarding medals and creating knights in the white and gold ballroom of Buckingham Palace.

Crowds cheered the Duke of Edinburgh when he arrived in York to unveil a memorial to war dead. He flashed a smile. He is identified in many minds as an opponent of the marriage.

Messages of Praise.

From all corners of the earth came expressions of admiration and praise for the 25-year-old Margaret's decision, in which she said:

"Mindful of the church's teaching that Christian marriage is indissoluble and conscious of my duty to the Commonwealth, I have resolved to put these considerations before any others."

There was some anger here at what was felt to be the tyranny of tradition and convention that forced Margaret to give up marriage because of the religious views of one segment of the population.

Some newspapers predicted that the Commonwealth and the Church of England—the established church—would be more hurt than helped by her renunciation.

From the London Evening Star (Liberal) came an editorial call for disestablishment of the Church of England, of which the Queen is titular head.

Disestablishment means separation of church from state. "Although all is over, there remain problems which the air of day and which only Parliament can solve," said the Star.

"I have a haunting feeling that Princess Margaret is one of them." He gave his views in an Evening Standard article entitled "Margaret's Sacrifice."

Churchmen generally praised Margaret's decision not to marry. Townsend, father of two sons. He divorced his wife in 1951.

NOISE PROMPTED SHOT FATAL TO HUSBAND, SAYS
MRS. WOODWARD

Ex-Model's New Version Differs Slightly From Original in Which She Told of Seeing 'Prowler.'

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Mrs. Ann Woodward says it was a noise rather than anything she saw that prompted her to fire the shotgun blast that killed her wealthy sportsman husband, William Woodward Jr.

Prompted up in a hospital bed, the blond widow last night gave authorities details of events leading to the shooting of her husband early Sunday. She broke down when she came to the actual shooting, Nassau County District Attorney Frank Gulotta said, and the questioning was discontinued for the night.

On the day of the shooting, police reported the sobbing and hysterical woman had told them she fired at a figure or shadow, believing it to be a prowler and not recognizing it as her husband.

Inspector Stuyvesant Pinnell, chief of Nassau county detectives, said the new information that the shot was prompted by a noise was the "major discrepancy" between her original account and her later story. However, Pinnell had said earlier that her original story was practically useless because of her highly disturbed state at the time.

Inquiry Into Background.

Gulotta said the marital background of the Woodwards was one of the aspects of the case that still needed investigation. There were newspaper reports that the marriage had been a stormy one, with separations and threatened divorce.

There were also reports that both had employed private detectives to keep an eye on each other, but neither turned out to be involved with other men or women.

Friends of the Woodwards generally told investigators that the marriage was a happy one. Pinnell stated, "we have found no indication of any difficulty or animosity between the husband and wife."

(Nassau county authorities have been informed, the United Press said, that Mrs. Woodward hired private detectives to get information on her husband's possible romantic interests for a period of months every year since 1948.)

(One of the operatives said she gave the detective agency a list of women whom she suspected as competitors for her husband's affections but no evidence of dalliance on his part was ever turned up.)

Grand Jury to Get Case.

Gulotta said the investigation, when completed, will be submitted to a grand jury. He commented: "I feel that the citizens of this county should pass on all the facts rather than I as an individual."

(The New York Herald Tribune today says some of the questions for which Chief Detective Pinnell seeks answers, he indicated are:

(Did the Woodwards plan to go to bed armed include an agreement to "shoot first and ask questions afterwards" in the event a prowler disturbed the household?

If a suspected prowler aroused the Woodwards and caused him to go to his bedroom door, why did he leave his 38-caliber revolver in a drawer instead of carrying it in his hand?

(Did Mrs. Woodward call out to ask who was there before shooting?)

(Since her husband, two

COUNTY WATER COMPANY ASKS COMMISSION TO INCREASE RATES

Amount Not Specified—
'Present Revenue So Deficient as to Be Unjust' Application States.

An application by the St. Louis County Water Co. for a rate increase, of undetermined amount but sufficient for the company to "maintain its credit and attract capital," was filed with the Missouri Public Service Commission at Jefferson City today.

Referring to the last rate increase approved by the commission, effective Oct. 9, 1952 and amounting to 16.2 per cent of gross operating income, the application asserted that the utility's present revenue was "so deficient as to be unjust and unreasonable and substantially less than permitted by law."

Expenses have risen "out of proportion to the growth and business of the applicant due to increases which have occurred in the unit cost of wages, power, chemicals and supplies . . . and there is no indication that such costs will not further increase in the future," the application said.

In the last three and two-thirds years, the petition continued, the utility has "made capital expenditures out of proportion to the increase in customers and the revenue received."

Capital outlay from the beginning of 1952 through last Aug. 31 was given as $18,012,290, with annual amounts ranging from $2,931,982 in 1952 to $6,181,325 in 1954. Water production capacity has gone up from 42,000,000 gallons daily in 1951 to 121,000,000 this year and by next summer, on completion of a new plant in southern St. Louis county, will go to 136,000,000 gallons, it was stated.

"Such improvements have resulted in a substantial increase in the value of applicant's properties without a corresponding increase in the revenues of applicant," the application said.

However, the application did not include figures on the increase in the company's patronage or revenue. A company spokesman explained that "the intent of the water company is to alert the Public Service Commission as to its situation, permit the commission to investigate as it desires and then, after hearings, to arrive at new rates which are just, reasonable, meet and proper."

CITY ACCEPTS LAFAYETTE PARK PLAYGROUND GIFT

A new playground will be established in Lafayette Park with modern equipment made possible by a gift of $7573 from the estate of the late A. P. Greensfelder, engineer and civic leader, which the Board of Public Service accepted today from the estate's trustees.

To be located near the southeast corner of the park, the playground will be furnished with the newest creative type of equipment, Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, director of public welfare, told the board.

Greensfelder, a planning authority, had served as chairman of the Recreation and Conservation committee, Metropolitan Plan Commission, and for many years had been active in the development of a St. Louis regional park system. The playground will be dedicated to his memory.

Scenes of Fire and Rioting by Prisoners at City Workhouse

Firemen fighting blaze on top of Workhouse building as police officers watch prisoners peering from cell windows on second floor.

Rioting Prisoners Break From Workhouse Cells

alarm at the warden's direction. It brought police officers rushing to the workhouse from headquarters, as well as the Carondelet, Magnolia avenue and Lynch street districts, in cars with sirens sounding.

When about 25 officers arrived, carrying riot guns, Baynes decided to go into the building to stop the riot. By this time, most of the screaming, shouting inmates had assembled on the first floor, where there were other cellblocks, holding an additional 125 men.

Flee to Second Floor

As the warden and policemen entered the building, the prisoners fled ahead of them, up the stairs to the second floor. In the meantime, flames and heavy smoke had burst out of a mattress storage room.

The prisoners disappeared into the smoke, as Baynes and the officers halted on the stairway.

In a few moments the prisoners, gasping and choking from smoke, began leaving the building by an outside stairway, holding their hands clasped behind their heads in a surrender gesture.

The inmates were herded together in the workhouse yard for a short time, under police guard, then were taken to the second floor, cells in another building, where women prisoners are kept.

The first fire alarm was turned in at 11:36 p.m., the second at 11:58 p.m., answered by 18 pieces of equipment. A second alarm and a hook-and-ladder were driven directly into the workhouse yard to fight the blaze.

Firemen clambered onto a roof to extinguish a burning mattress, which had been pushed up there by inmates.

Two rooms and part of a second-floor corridor were scorched from the heat. About 100 old mattresses were soaked with water or burned. Two water faucets were torn out. The total of broken windows was about 60. Heavy metal doors of several cells were lifted off their hinges and thrown into the corridor separating tiers of cells.

Chief and Mayor at Scene

Before the riot ended, the number of police officers had increased to about 100, including Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell, Assistant Chief Joseph E. Casey, Detective Chief James E. Chapman and Inspector George Parker.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and Director of Public Safety Joseph Sestric also went to the workhouse. The Mayor said Mrs. E. G. Brungard, director of public welfare, and Warden Baynes will start an inquiry into cause of the riot today.

Tucker said he had been told the prisoners may have been protesting a tightening of regulations—the cause of a similar disturbance at the Workhouse June 7.

However, Baynes said he has not made any rule changes lately, or restricted any privileges for prisoners.

Mrs. Brungard, the director of public welfare, told the Post-Dispatch today she retains full confidence in Baynes as warden.

"There's nothing wrong with the warden," she said. "He has done a very efficient job."

The warden said Chief O'Connell asked him why he had not requested assistance from the police department earlier in the day, since he had had several tips that trouble would break out in the south building.

"If I had called the police earlier on a tip like that, I'd have them here every day," Baynes said.

Police Urged Shake-Down

He added that the four policemen first assigned to help the guards wanted to "have a shake-down of prisoners then and there," following the 10 p.m. regular check-up.

"That wouldn't have done any good," the warden asserted. "You would have heard toilets flushing all over the building." His reference was to attempts by prisoners to dispose of any incriminating objects they might have.

Baynes said he was not certain how the prisoners were able to free themselves from their cells, although it was his opinion that some inmate had made a key.

The cell doors are kept closed through means of a hasp and huge padlocks.

"The locks are very simple ones, and one key will open all of them," the warden explained. "Each of the locks is about 30 years old."

"I have requisitioned new ones. If they had arrived, this might not have happened."

Spectators Gather

A large crowd of spectators gathered near the workhouse after the riot began. Policemen brought floodlights to illuminate the area where the disturbance occurred.

They also had gas grenades, which were not used. Tear gas squads quelled the June 7 disturbance.

Capt. Andrew Aylward, head of the police records and communications division, had his men on hand with walkie-talkie sets to facilitate interchange of orders among officials at the sprawling workhouse grounds at South Broadway and Meramec street.

No weapons were found on any of the prisoners. The only injury reported was suffered by Patrolman Erwin Smigel of the Carondelet district. A shotgun was discharged accidentally as he was unloading it. He lost a fingernail.

The 125 prisoners in cells on the first floor of the south building did not participate in the demonstration. When smoke filled the building, they were led out quietly and placed in cells in other structures.

Baynes said the workhouse now has about 400 inmates. Former Warden Clarence Weismantel, who resigned under fire last Jan. 15, has said the proper capacity of the institution is 350 men.

400 Is Danger Point

"When the population gets up to 400, it is apt to get out of hand," he said.

Last May 26, St. Louis voters approved a $3,000,000 bond issue for a new building to replace the present workhouse.

Two sites for a new City Workhouse were declared suitable by United States Bureau of Prisons representatives after an inspection made with city officials Saturday.

The sites are Missouri Hills, the city's correctional institution for boys in north St. Louis county, and Meramec Hills at Valley Park, a similar home for delinquent girls.

Baynes assumed his duties as warden May 2. One of his first acts was to establish a new visiting room, where prisoners could talk with relatives and friends with little difficulty.

He instituted reforms calculated to put all prisoners on an equal basis and to remove what he described as the "country club" aspects of the workhouse.

He has improved living conditions for inmates and increased recreational facilities, including provision of table tennis equipment and presentation of shows put on by inmate entertainers.

An increasing number of escapes from the Workhouse prompted the circuit court grand jury to call Baynes as a witness last August. The escapes have continued.

COAT CATCHES IN BUS DOOR, WOMAN, 91, SERIOUSLY HURT

Mrs. Cornelia Craig, 91 years old, 4 North Kingshighway, was seriously injured yesterday when her coat was caught in the door of a Public Service Co. bus as she was alighting, and she was thrown under the vehicle when it started forward.

The accident took place at Kingshighway and Lindell boulevard. The right rear wheel of the bus passed over Mrs. Craig's right arm after she was thrown to the pavement, police were told.

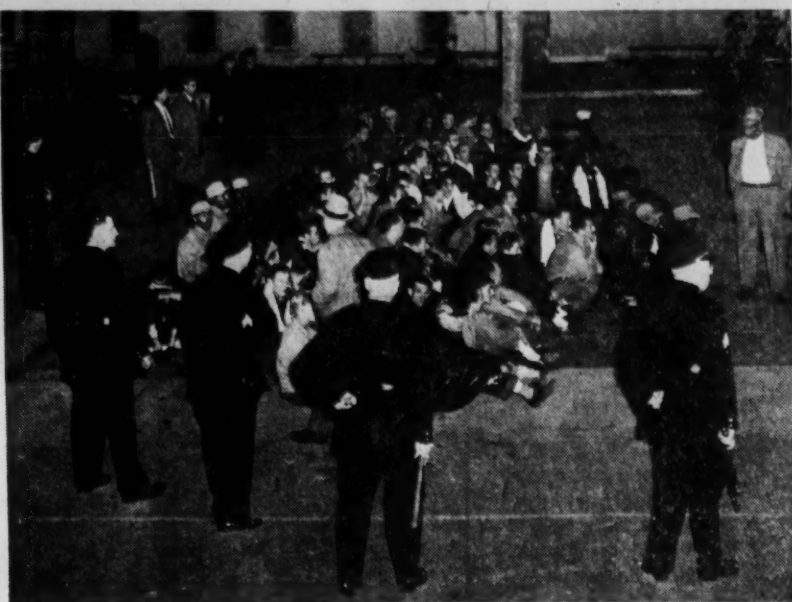

The operator, Roy Schmid, 9306 block of Olive Street road, Olivette, stopped the bus when he heard warnings shouted by persons who saw Mrs. Craig fall. She was taken to Barnes Hospital.

TWO PATROLMEN ASSIGNED TO CHECK ON TRUCK NOISE

Patrolmen Charles Allen and James Lasser were assigned by Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell yesterday to the special duty of checking large trucks to reduce unnecessary noise, in conjunction with Mayor Raymond R. Tucker's noise abatement campaign.

Maj. William Cibulka, head of the traffic division, said they would not stop with arresting drivers, but would follow up with truck company officials and see that needed corrections are made.

Assignment of the officers was authorized by the Board of Police Commissioners last week.

Inmates under guard in Workhouse yard after leaving building. They were later placed temporarily in other cellblocks.

LOWEST POLIO TOTAL HERE IN 10 YEARS

Salk Inoculations Are Credited as a Factor in Decrease.

The peak season for polio ended here yesterday with the lowest number of polio cases in at least 10 years, John E. Weaver, executive director of the chapter here of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, reported today.

Weaver said the inoculation of approximately 26,000 youngsters with the first shot of the Salk vaccine was undoubtedly a factor accounting for the drop.

"It is too early to tell how large a role it has played in curbing the disease," he pointed out.

For the year to date 69 persons in St. Louis and St. Louis county suffered an attack of polio. No more than 5 or 10 cases are expected to occur in November or December, Weaver declared. July through October is the season which normally has the most cases, he said.

In 1953, which Weaver termed an average year, 315 polio cases were reported in the area, and 10 deaths resulted. There have been no deaths here attributed to polio this year. The total last year of 131 cases was unusually low, he said.

This year from July through October, 61 polio cases have been reported here. The corresponding figure for last year was 114, and in 1953, a total of 273 cases were reported in the four-month period.

Kick-Off Rally for County Bond Drive in Clayton Tuesday Night

Citizens Committee Invites 2000—Pamphlets Tell What $39,712,000 Issue Would 'Buy.'

The Citizens Bond Issue Committee for St. Louis County will hold a kick-off rally at 8 p.m. next Tuesday at Clayton High School. More than 2000 county residents have been invited by letter to attend.

The committee seeks to promote passage of the $39,712,000, eight-proposal bond issue to be voted on at a special election Nov. 22.

Enclosed with the letters were copies of a campaign pamphlet prepared by the Citizens Committee. It presents a breakdown on what the passage of the bond issue would "buy" for the county.

It calls attention to the miles of resurfaced and widened roads, new streets, right-of-way acquisition, new expressways and bridges provided in the proposals. Playgrounds, County Hospital additions and facilities, a detention home and children's welfare center, civil defense facilities and road-side park areas also are called for in the bond issue.

"The eight bond issue propositions are designed to meet the immediate, pressing needs of the county," the letter stated. "They were put together after the most careful screening by two citizen groups. This is the minimum the county can afford to do now if it is to satisfy the essential needs of its rapidly-growing population," the letter said.

It was signed by E. E. Pershall, general chairman; Donald L. Barnes, finance committee chairman, and Edwin M. Clark, educational committee chairman.

P.S.CO. AND UNION STANDING FIRM IN WAGE DEADLOCK

State Mediation Board Chairman Plans to Meet With Each Side Today.

Negotiations in the deadlocked transit wage dispute were suspended today, with Public Service Co. and the union of streetcar and bus operators standing firm on their previous positions after a week-end of "reappraisal."

Daniel C. Rogers, chairman of the State Board of Mediation, said he talked separately with both parties yesterday but found no willingness on the part of the company to improve the 13-cent hourly wage increase offer which the union membership rejected overwhelmingly last Wednesday.

He said the union representatives also declined to modify their counter-proposal, which the company has stated is unacceptable. Terms of the counter-proposal have not been made public.

Rogers said company officials had expected to be engaged today in a public hearing at City Hall on an application by Ryan A. Foster, operator of the Allen Cab Co., for a permit to operate 300 service cars into the downtown area. However, the hearing was not held.

The mediation chief said he had been in telephone communication with both union and company and planned to meet with each group later today.

Meanwhile, Circuit Judge Robert L. Aronson was expected to rule Thursday on the union's petition for a temporary injunction against the continuing seizure by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly of the transit property. State seizure came after the men struck Oct. 10. The union contends the King-Thompson public utility anti-strike law, under which Gov. Donnelly acted, is unconstitutional.

The ruling Thursday is on the temporary injunction. A petition for a permanent injunction will be heard later.

$185 WORTH OF CLOTHING STOLEN FROM PARKED AUTO

Clothing valued at $185 was stolen from the parked automobile of Joseph Noskay, assistant director of the Public Defender Bureau, by thieves who forced a ventilator window, police reported today.

Noskay, who lives at 4535 Magnolia avenue, told police the theft must have occurred between 7 p.m. Sunday and 12:30 a.m. Monday while his car was parked in the 300 block of Union boulevard.

Figures in Woodward Killing

MRS. WILLIAM WOODWARD SR., brushing a tear from her eye as she returned to her home in New York yesterday with her daughter, MRS. JOHN T. PRATT. The body of her son, William Woodward Jr., was taken to her home after he was shot to death.

MRS. INGEBORG SORENSON, housekeeper, who was quoted as saying Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward Jr. often argued.

8 OF 9 ABOARD NAVY PLANE LOSE LIVES IN CRASH

BALBOA, C.Z., Nov. 1 (AP)—The only survivor of the crash of a United States Navy patrol plane, in which eight other crewmen were killed yesterday at Coco Solo Naval Air Station, questioning about the Woodward case. Mrs. Ingeborg Sorenson, the housekeeper, who had been hired June 6, was quoted by police as saying "both of them used to sleep behind locked doors... she would get up sometimes during the middle of the night and pound on his door. She would hammer and scream for him to open up the door. I don't know the reason for this. She was a very suspicious woman."

NOISE PROMPTED FATAL SHOT, SAYS MRS. WOODWARD

(As a woman who had proved herself a successful big-game hunter, and had bagged at least one tiger on a safari, how did she happen to shoot blindly at the figure which turned out to be her husband?)

Body in Her Arms. When police arrived at the 15-room Woodward home on a 60-acre Long Island estate, the sobbing and incoherent Mrs. Woodward was clutching in her arms the nude body of her husband. Woodward generally slept in the nude, she told authorities.

Mrs. Woodward, a former model and show girl who married her socialite husband 12 years ago, is still listed as 32 years old by investigators. However school records and relatives in her home town of Pittsburg, Kan., indicate she is about 39.

Her millionaire husband was 35. Tall, quiet and reserved, he was a member of one of New York's most blue-blood families and the owner of the famed racehorse Nashua.

Just an hour or so before the shooting the Woodwards had returned from a party given for the Duchess of Windsor at an estate near their home at Oyster Bay on Long Island's fashionable north shore.

Others to Be Quizzed. Pinnell said the investigation would include questioning of other party guests and of Woodward's mother, who might shed light on the relations between her daughter-in-law and son.

Mrs. Woodward's doctor had her taken from her Oyster Bay home to Doctors Hospital in New York City on Sunday. He said she suffered from hysteria and deep shock and he prohibited visitors and police questioning.

By last night, however, he was able to notify police that she had recovered enough for further questioning. He reported Mrs. Woodward had agreed to talk to police and had said, "I'd like to try to be of help."

Gulotta, Pinnell and a police stenographer spent about half an hour at her bedside. Afterward Gulotta reported that she had again told of being afraid of a prowler whom her husband believed responsible for two intrusions on the property already.

When they drove to the party, Gulotta said, she told him Woodward took along a loaded pistol and tried to reassure his wife. He said her story continued:

"When they got home, she was still frightened. They felt that they had better arm themselves and each took a shotgun from the gun case downstairs. Mrs. Woodward put her loaded shotgun on a chair next to her bed and then she went to bed."

"She was awakened by something she thought could have been the barking of her dog. The fright built up in her—she threw off her covers and went for the gun—it was a reflex action. She pulled open her door and shot what she thought was the prowler."

"Almost immediately she thought it might be her husband and it was. At this point in the questioning she broke down."

Pinnell added to this account the statement that she believed she had fired more at "something she heard" than at something she saw. He said she also thought she was firing in the direction of the dining room rather than directly across the hall at her husband's bedroom door.

The husband toppled to the floor, the right side of his face blasted by shot. He died almost immediately.

Refugee Questioned. Pinnell questioned a German refugee seized today as a prowler in the area and then told reporters: "The prowler previously referred to is now in custody. He is the same man who previously burglarized the Woodward bath house. We are now in the process of establishing his movements in the area at the time in which we're interested."

The man, Paul M. Wirths, 22 years old, was arrested earlier today in a county adjoining Nassau county.

Wirths told police he had prowled about the Woodward estate grounds over the weekend, and said he broke a window a day or two earlier.

Wirths, who has a burglary record, had been sought for questioning in the Woodward case as well as in connection with a series of break-ins in that vicinity.

Wirths was turned over to Nassau county authorities for was identified today as aviation machinist's mate Charles William Airhart of Navarre, O. Airhart suffered first and second degree burns when the plane, a PBM Mariner amphibian, crashed on takeoff. He was rescued by one of several small Navy craft that sped to the scene after the plane scraped a breakwater, crashed in the sea, and exploded. Bodies of the eight killed were recovered. Their names were not released, pending clearance by the Navy Department in Washington.

Figures in Woodward Killing

MRS. INGEBORG SORENSON, housekeeper, who was quoted as saying Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward Jr. often argued.

MRS. WILLIAM WOODWARD SR., brushing a tear from her eye as she returned to her home in New York yesterday with her daughter, MRS. JOHN T. PRATT. The body of her son, William Woodward Jr., was taken to her home after he was shot to death.

children and a servant all were other occupants of the house, did she think of that before she shot, after, as she says, being aroused by a "noise?"

(As a woman who had proved herself a successful big-game hunter, and had bagged at least one tiger on a safari, how did she happen to shoot blindly at the figure which turned out to be her husband?)

Body in Her Arms.
When police arrived at the 15-room Woodward home on a 60-acre Long Island estate, the sobbing and incoherent Mrs. Woodward was clutching in her arms the nude body of her husband. Woodward generally slept in the nude, she told authorities.

Mrs. Woodward, a former model and show girl who married her socialite husband 12 years ago, is still listed as 32 years old by investigators. However school records and relatives in her home town of Pittsburg, Kan., indicate she is about 39.

Her millionaire husband was 35. Tall, quiet and reserved, he was a member of one of New York's most blue-blood families and the owner of the famed racehorse Nashua.

Just an hour or so before the shooting the Woodwards had returned from a party given for the Duchess of Windsor at an estate near their home at Oyster Bay on Long Island's fashionable north shore.

Others to Be Quizzed.
Pinnell said the investigation would include questioning of other party guests and of Woodward's mother, who might shed light on the relations between her daughter-in-law and son.

Mrs. Woodward's doctor had her taken from her Oyster Bay home to Doctors Hospital in New York City on Sunday. He said she suffered from hysteria and deep shock and he prohibited visitors and police questioning.

By last night, however, he was able to notify police that she had recovered enough for further questioning. He reported Mrs. Woodward had agreed to talk to police and had said, "I'd like to try to be of help."

Gulotta, Pinnell and a police stenographer spent about half an hour at her bedside. Afterwards Gulotta reported that she had again told of being afraid of a prowler whom her husband believed responsible for two intrusions on the property already.

When they drove to the party, Gulotta said, she told him, Woodward took along a loaded pistol and tried to reassure his wife. He said her story continued:

"When they got home, she was still frightened. They felt that they had better arm themselves and each took a shotgun from the gun case downstairs. Mrs. Woodward put her loaded shotgun on a chair next to her bed and then she went to bed."

"She was awakened by something she thought could have been the barking of her dog. The fright built up in her—she threw off her covers and went for the gun—it was a reflex action. She pulled open her door and shot what she thought was the prowler."

"Almost immediately she thought it might be her husband and it was. At this point in the questioning she broke down."

Pinnell added to this account the statement that she believed she had fired more at "something she heard" than at something she saw. He said she also thought she was firing in the direction of the dining room rather than directly across the hall at her husband's bedroom door.

The husband toppled to the floor, the right side of his face blasted by shot. He died almost immediately.

Refugee Questioned.
Pinnell questioned a German refugee seized today as a prowler in the area and then told reporters: "The prowler previously referred to is now in custody. He is the same man who previously burglarized the Woodward bath house. We are now in the process of establishing his movements in the area at the time in which we're interested."

The man, Paul M. Wirths, 22 years old, was arrested earlier today in a county adjoining Nassau county.

Wirths told police he had prowled about the Woodward estate grounds over the weekend, and said he broke a window a day or two earlier.

Wirths, who has a burglary record, had been sought for questioning in the Woodward case as well as in connection with a series of break-ins in that vicinity.

Wirths was turned over to Nassau county authorities for questioning about the Woodward case.

questioning about the Woodward case.

Mrs. Ingeborg Sorenson, the housekeeper, who had been hired June 6, was quoted by police as saying "both of them used to sleep behind locked doors... she would get up sometimes during the middle of the night and pound on his door. She would hammer and scream for him to open up the door. I don't know the reason for this. She was a very suspicious woman."

BOY, 13, SHOT AFTER WINDOW IS BROKEN

Was Running From Scene of an Apparent Halloween Prank.

Ronald Shamulus, 13 years old, was shot in the right hip last night as he ran from the scene of an apparent Halloween prank in which a companion broke a window in an East St. Louis apartment house with a slingshot.

Homer Finley, owner of an apartment house at 820 North Eleventh street, told police he was working in the building at 7:40 o'clock when a front window was broken. It was the fourth window-breaking in the building in recent weeks, the owner said.

Finley said he ran outside and saw several boys in the alley alongside the building. He called to them to halt, but they ran. Finley said he fired one shot from his .38-caliber revolver, wounding young Shamulus. Finley summoned an ambulance for the boy, and later surrendered his revolver to police. He was booked suspected of assault with a deadly weapon, and released on bond.

At St. Mary's Hospital the Shamulus boy told officers a companion, whose name he did not know, fired a pellet through the window with a slingshot. He said he started running, but was struck in the hip by a bullet which passed out his right leg.

Mrs. Della Shamulus, 917 Baugh avenue, said her son had gone out with another boy and several girls on Halloween rounds a short time before the shooting.

Finley, an insurance agent, lives at 708 St. Clair avenue.

PRAISE SHOWERS ON MARGARET FOR HER DECISION

1952 on grounds of misconduct. She has remarried.

"I thank God," said the Rev. Douglas Lockhart, an Edinburgh clergyman who was outspoken in opposition to a Margaret-Townsend match. "She will have the love and sympathy of Christians everywhere."

Dr. Leslie Wetherhead, president of the Methodist conference, said: "I think that it (Margaret's decision) is very courageous, absolutely right."

The Rev. Henry Cook, president of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, said:

"All honor to the princess. . . I am quite sure that the sacrifice she has made . . . will call forth the admiration and good will of everyone."

The primus (head) of the Episcopal Church in Scotland, the Rt. Rev. Thomas Hannay, was equally gratified. "Thank God for that," he said of the princess's decision.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, ranking prelate of the Church of England of which Margaret's sister, Queen Elizabeth II, is the constitutional head, had "no statement," his chaplain announced.

Townsend in Sussex.

Townsend was at the Sussex home of Lord and Lady Nevill where only 24 hours before he had talked with Margaret before a log fire and reached the fateful decision.

A light blazed from his bedroom window until the small hours of the morning.

When he finally came out, the handsome flyer was a picture of dejection. He walked slowly toward a group of newsmen awaiting him for the 11 a.m. appointment he had set. But at the last moment he changed his mind and sent forward the Nevill butler who told the newsmen:

"Group Capt. Townsend has no statement to make."

Townsend walked slowly back to the house.

Townsend has been on leave from his post of Britain air attaché at Brussels, Belgium. He is expected to resume his duties Nov. 7.

Statement Last Night.

Margaret told the world of her decision in this statement issued last night:

"I would like it to be known that I have decided not to marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend."

"I have been aware that subject to my renouncing my rights of succession it might have been possible for me to contract a civil marriage."

"But, mindful of the Church's teaching that Christian marriage is indissoluble, and conscious of my duty to the Commonwealth, I have resolved to put these considerations before any others."

"I have reached this decision entirely alone and in doing so I have been strengthened by unfailing support and devotion of Group Capt. Townsend."

"I am deeply grateful for the concern of all those who have constantly prayed for my happiness."

The 113-word announcement, signed simply "Margaret," was issued at Clarence House only an hour after she and Townsend met for perhaps the last time in the privacy of her own apartment.

Separated from Townsend for two years by his assignment to Brussels, Margaret carried out her royal duties, putting up a brave front for people. She often was seen at gay parties with a variety of young escorts from the wealthy aristocracy.

But six months ago a highly placed informant disclosed she was still determined to marry Townsend and had set the time for the wedding.

The two were reunited 18 days ago when Margaret returned to London from a Scottish holiday leave. Their almost daily trysts and weekend meetings in the country touched off speculation

2 BOYS IN STOLEN AUTO CAUGHT IN 80 M.P.H. CHASE

Two teen-age St. Louis boys were under arrest today after an 80-mile-an-hour chase in a stolen car, which finally crashed, with a 14-year-old youth driving, into a house at 8800 Jennings Station road, Jennings.

The chase began at Northland Shopping Center, Lucas-Hunt road and West Florissant avenue, when Jennings Patrolman William Nolte challenged the boys. They drove off at high speed, with Nolte in pursuit, and a second Jennings police vehicle followed.

As the boys fled, the younger, 13, fell from the moving automobile. He tried to escape on foot but was picked up by officers, who took him along on the 8-mile chase. The other boy was seized after he smashed into a parked truck and then into the residence, home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Schreck.

The impact broke a basement window and knocked asbestos shingles off the side of the house. Damage was estimated at $150. The Schrecks, in their living room at the time, were unhurt, as were both youths. Police said the boys admitted theft of the car from a parking lot at Riverview and McLaren avenue.

PRESIDENT NOT SURPRISED BY MARGARET'S ACTION

DENVER, Nov. 1 (AP)—Denver's Mayor Will F. Nicholson said today that President Eisenhower didn't seem surprised over Princess Margaret's decision against marrying Capt. Peter Townsend.

Nicholson told reporters he informed the President of Margaret's announcement when he visited Mr. Eisenhower yesterday at Fitzsimons Army hospital where he is recuperating from a heart attack.

Mr. Eisenhower said he thought that would be the Princess's decision as he knows her well, the mayor said.

and Townsend came home on which many Britons considered damaging to the monarchy.

Refused to Be Hurried.

The obstacles to the romance loomed large in the Princess's mind, but Margaret refused to be hurried into making a final decision. As the days passed, the Queen Mother, one reported sympathetic to Margaret's intentions, was understood to have veered to the side of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, who opposed the marriage from the outset.

Reports circulated of rifts in the royal family. But in her statement, Margaret said pointedly: "I have reached this decision entirely alone."

The Princess also made it clear that Townsend had not tried to sway her from what she considered her duty. Townsend himself had said:

"The decision is not mine to make."

It is not very likely that Margaret or any of her descendants—assuming that she ever marries after giving up Townsend—will occupy the British throne. But royal responsibilities weighed heavily in her decision.

She is third in line for the throne, coming after the Queen's two small children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne. Also, as the Queen's sister, she is close to the Anglican Church which will not sanction the marriage of divorced persons whose spouses are still living.

Tide of Social Activity.

Having reached her decision, Margaret will be swept along in the tide of ceremony and social activity that surrounds the royal family. She must continue to appear in public with no opportunity to hide herself from the world during her emotional stress. Many thought this would be best for her in the long run.

Wednesday evening she will attend a service at St. Paul's Cathedral in the center of London.

Thursday evening she will attend a glittering Buckingham Palace event—a presentation party given by the Queen for the diplomatic corps.

Margaret will face two big audiences over the weekend. Saturday she will accompany the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh for the British Legion festival in huge Albert Hall. Sunday she and the rest of the royal family will attend the national Remembrance day service in Whitehall honoring the dead of two world wars.

But last night was different. Queen Elizabeth and the Duke represented the royal family at a glittering royal film show held annually for the benefit of a charity for film folk.

Margaret declined her invitation and stayed at home.

Nineteen years ago, an uncle of the Princess, the former King Edward VIII, abdicated the British throne to be able to marry "the woman I love," the former Wallis Warfield Simpson, an American divorcee. They are now Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

Today the Duke refused to see newsmen at his home near Paris but he had his secretary relay a statement. It said:

"Since I have not been consulted in this matter I have naturally nothing to say."

The Duchess, who is in New York, had "no comment" today on the announcement that Margaret had decided not to marry Townsend.

SMALL FRY MAKE BIG HAUL IN TRICK OR TREAT FORAYS

By the light of a magnificent harvest moon, St. Louis's small witches, hobgoblins, space explorers, and spooks made their annual descent on households last night, exacting tribute in the form of candy, cookies and apples.

It was a fine, crisp evening for children on "trick or treat" forays. They were out in such numbers that some homes ran out of provender. Older children, not so fond of sweets, gathered coins for the United Nations relief fund.

Here and there a jack-o-lantern went up in flames and brought firemen on the run, as at the home of Bryan Sloan, 6936 Bruno avenue. In University City, teen-age boys took bags of candy from two 10-year-old girls. There were reports of egg-throwing in Webster Groves and car-soaping in Ladue.

By comparison with the ram-bunctious past, it was a quiet, well-mannered Halloween. A haystack was set ablaze west of Pattonville, but no huggies were superimposed on barns.

ANOTHER CANADIAN PAPER MILL BOOSTS NEWSPRINT

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Anglo-Canadian Pulp & Paper Mills Ltd. today increased the price of newsprint by $3 a ton. Several other companies have announced increases of $4 and $5 a ton.

Anglo-Canadian is one of the top 10 newspaper makers in Canada. The increase brought the company's price of newsprint to $129 a ton, delivered in New York.

A similar $3 increase was announced by Montgomery Paper Co., New York, a sales agency which supplies newsprint to many newspapers in the East and South. Montgomery Paper buys its newsprint from North-eastern Paper Products, Quebec, which in turn buys from Anglo-Canadian and from Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co., New Brunswick.

This also was the effective date for increases of $5 a ton announced by St. Lawrence Corp., Montreal, and Abitibi Power & Paper Co., Toronto, and a boost of $4 a ton by Canadian International Paper Co., Montreal.

WOMAN SHOT ON ALTON STREET, HUSBAND HELD

Mrs. Mae Northcutt of Alton, was shot in the right chest and seriously wounded last night in the 1500 block of Fourth street, Alton, as hundreds of spectators awaited the start of the Alton Halloween parade, a principal civic event of the year.

Mrs. Northcutt, 50 years old, told police the shot was fired by her estranged husband, William C. Northcutt, 51, of Alton, a crane operator at Laclede Steel Co.'s Alton plant. Northcutt was arrested shortly after the shooting as he drove his automobile on North Alby street. He denied he shot his wife.

Police quoted Mrs. Northcutt as saying she and her husband had been separated for three weeks, and a divorce was being sought. About 25 minutes before the shooting, she reported at Alton Police Station that Northcutt had threatened her, it was said. The weapon, believed to have been a pistol, was not found. Mrs. Northcutt was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Alton.

TAX SCANDAL GRAND JURY GOES INTO SCHWIMMER FILE

The Federal grand jury continued today its investigation of tax scandals in the Truman Administration, with particular attention to the activities of Harry I. Schwimmer, Kansas City attorney.

Schwimmer's case records have been turned over to Harold F. Hecker, St. Louis attorney, as a representative of the United States District Court. Under the order of appointment issued by Judge George H. Moore, the file will be examined to determine if there are irregularities of the period in which former Collector of Internal Revenue James P. Finnegan was in office.

Records to be set aside by Hecker will include those dealing with Irving Sachs; Shustles, Inc., which Sachs headed, and Mrs. Laura Taylor, an officer of the firm. Schwimmer represented Sachs in a tax case. A grand jury witness yesterday and this morning was Ben L. Shiffrin, attorney for Shustles, Inc. It was not stated who the afternoon witnesses today would be.

ELECTION BOARD REJECTS MOBILE REGISTRATION IDEA

The Board of Election Commissioners refused to provide mobile voter registration units for 16 community meetings to be sponsored by A.F.L. Teamsters Union Local 688 because the board would be unable to send its clerks to the meetings of other organizations making the same request, Michael J. Doherty, board chairman, said today.

"If we allow one organization mobile registration we must grant it to all," he said. "But we can't be sending our clerks to meetings all over the city day and night when we need them at the office to register people."

The union had offered to pay expenses in having units present at each of 16 neighborhood-level meetings scheduled for this month which 8000 to 10,000 persons are expected to attend. Purpose of the meetings is to encourage people to participate in the affairs of government, a union spokesman said.

MILITARY VETERAN HONORED AS ILLINOIS FAMILY DOCTOR
CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Dr. Elbridge W. Telford, 54-year-old DeKalb, Ill., veteran of two military conflicts, was named Illinois "family doctor" for 1956 Monday—the youngest Illinois doctor named to receive the award.
The selection has been made for the last eight years by the Illinois State Medical Society. Dr. Telford will receive a citation at the annual meeting of the society in May.
The society honored Dr. Telford for his services to his community since he started medical practice in DeKalb on Jan. 1, 1923, as well as for his war record in the European and South Pacific theaters in World War II and the Korean conflict.

CELLER SAYS STROBEL USED POOR JUDGMENT
Asserts Case Parallel's Talbotts—GSA Chief Found No Violation, He Testifies.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (UP)—Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem.), New York, of a House judiciary subcommittee said today that public buildings commissioner Peter A. Strobel used "very poor judgment" in maintaining outside business interests while on his federal job.
Celler told reporters that Strobel was as guilty of impropriety as former Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott, who resigned under fire recently for using his federal job to drum up business for his business management firm.

Celler's remark was prompted by testimony from Sol Schwarz, business manager of Strobel's engineering firm of Strobel and Salzman. Schwarz said that Strobel, after taking the federal post on July 1, 1954, accompanied him on a visit to the office of the New York architectural firm of Perren and Taylor to solicit business.

The subcommittee yesterday concluded hearings on whether Strobel violated the conflict of interest laws or ethical standards in maintaining his interests in the engineering firm after assuming federal office. He kept his ownership interest in Strobel & Salzman while in government services without management responsibility.

Celler said he could not say just when the subcommittee would issue a report on its investigation.

No Violation Found.
Edmund F. Mansure, administrator of the General Services Administration, of which Strobel's agency is a part, told the subcommittee at the closing hearing that he could detect no law violation in Strobel's efforts on behalf of his firm.

But he declined to comment on the propriety of Strobel's actions, pending a study of all the evidence. He said the entire case has been referred to the Department of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation for an inquiry and a decision on its merits.

Strobel, a native of Denmark has denied any wrongdoing and has said he never used his $14,800-a-year official position to benefit himself financially or to further his firm's interest.

But he said that on at least two occasions clients of his firm received GSA contracts. He also said that since assuming his federal job he dunned the Army Corps of Engineers for $7500 for payment for work previously performed by his agency for the engineers and that he negotiated another contract with the engineers the day before he joined the Government.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Celler said that in a number of instances it would have been "a better part of judgment" for Strobel to disqualify himself from making any decisions.

No Open and Shut Case.
He said that Strobel's case presented no "open and shut" case involving the conflict of interest laws. But he said that Strobel, to say the very least, exercised "very poor judgment."

He said that Strobel on a number of occasions "violated the code of ethics" of the General Services Administration. "It was certainly improper to solicit business for his firm while serving in his Government job," Celler said. "That is exactly what Talbott did."

EDWARDSVILLE AGAIN FIGHTS PLAN TO ABANDON TRAINS
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 1.—The City of Edwardsville renewed its opposition today to proposals by Illinois Terminal Railroad Co. to abandon its passenger service completely.

At a hearing before the Illinois Commerce Commission on the road's six-month period of operating its last four passenger trains between Springfield and St. Louis, Edwardsville asked for the train sheets showing scheduled operations for the six-month period, ending Sept. 8.

F. Ritchie Gibbons, Edwardsville counsel, contended the railroad had failed to operate its trains on time nearly half the period. Examiner Francis Blair withheld a ruling on whether to require production of the papers. The railroad contended the passenger traffic was unprofitable and a drain on the profitable freight service.

BOYS ADMIT BURGLARIES OF MERAMEC CLUBHOUSES
Two junior high school boys, 14 and 15 years old, of Sherman, in western St. Louis county, have admitted burglaries of five Meramec river clubhouses near their homes and also putting a utility pole across the Missouri Pacific railroad tracks at Jeddburg, county police said today.

The boys, arrested yesterday on information received by the officers about one of the burglaries, were turned over to juvenile authorities. Police said loot from the clubhouses totaled about $100.
Information about the utility pole was brought out during questioning about the thefts. The pole, which the boys found along the tracks last Oct. 5, was hit by a passenger train and knocked against a small building, causing some damage, police said.

BUSSES ALLOWED TO RUN TO CANTERBURY GARDENS

The city council of University City last night granted Public Service Co. permission to extend its Delmar bus line from its present western terminus at McKnight road west to Geoffrey lane. The extension will serve Canterbury Gardens, a large apartment development of more than 800 families.
City Manager Elder Gunter said there had been a number of requests for service from Canterbury Gardens, which is now without any form of public transportation. The extension, expected to begin Nov. 15, is on a three-months trial basis and will be authorized permanently if the service proves satisfactory, Gunter said.

On their new route, the busses will loop over West Canterbury road from Geoffrey lane to return to Delmar boulevard.

ILLINOIS GIRL, 11, KILLED BY CAR ON WAY TO SCHOOL

Janice Hatton Struck on Highway Near Home When Going to Bus Stop.

Janice Hatton, 11-year-old school girl, was struck by an automobile and killed today when crossing Illinois Highway 100, nine miles northwest of Alton. She was on her way to a school bus stop. The accident occurred near her home.

Delbert Noble, 20, of Grafton, driver of the car, told police the girl was walking in the road with her back to on-coming traffic. Noble said Janice looked back, became frightened and ran into the path of the machine.

She was the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Hatton and was a sixth grade pupil at Dowd Elementary School.

Noble, police said, was traveling at a high rate of speed. Police are investigating the accident.

DOWD TO RENEW INQUIRY IN POLICE BRIBERY REPORT

Officer Who Is Said to Have Admitted Taking Cash to Be Quizzed Again.

Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd planned to question again today a former St. Louis policeman who is reported to have admitted he took bribes while he was a member of the department, from 1946 to 1954.

Dowd questioned the man yesterday, and planned to talk with him again today. An arrest-for-investigation order had been issued for the man by Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell. The man appeared voluntarily, however, and was not held following the session at the circuit attorney's office. He promised to return again this afternoon.

Dowd was informed that the former policeman admitted receiving $10 a month, plus $25 at Christmas time, for permitting a downtown handbook to operate unmolested. He also was reported to have acknowledged accepting $10 monthly from several taverns for overlooking various violations. The man resigned from the department because of a transfer which displeased him, after several brushes with superior officers.

In the grand jury investigation of reported payoffs to police officers by brothel operators, indictments have been returned against three officers, including Detective Capt. William Greenspan. The police board has also had under inquiry circumstances surrounding Greenspan's trips to Las Vegas, where former St. Louis gamblers now are part of the flourishing legalized gambling activity.

A report that Greenspan last January stopped off at Las Vegas, while sending a detective sergeant, who accompanied him, on to Los Angeles to pick up a prisoner, today was denied by Greenspan and the sergeant.

Greenspan, who has become an automobile salesman since his suspension from the department, told a reporter that he and Sgt. Frank Ersh stopped off in Las Vegas "to see the town."

Both then flew to Los Angeles and registered at the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel. Greenspan said. The prisoner, wanted here for non-support, was turned over to them and they returned to Las Vegas for a weekend, Greenspan said. The prisoner was placed in custody of the sheriff until they boarded a plane for St. Louis, Greenspan added.

Sgt. Ersh asserted Greenspan's account was correct.

BROWNELL'S OPINION SOUGHT IN HOUSE ANTI-TRUST INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (UP)—Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. will be asked to appear before a House committee investigating the Eisenhower administration's handling of the anti-trust laws.

Chairman Wright Patman (Dem.), Texas, said the attorney general was "on the spot" because of recommendations of Brownell's special committee to study anti-trust laws. Critics have said the committee's recommendations would weaken the laws and their enforcement. Patman, whose committee opened hearings yesterday, said at least 20 members of Brownell's 62-man study committee had a "definite ax to grind" and had been trying for years to have the laws changed.

Patman said that while the committee's March 31 recommendations have not been adopted as administration policy, they are being cited in court cases by lawyers fighting anti-trust suits.

BUDGET BUREAU ROLE DISCLOSED IN POWER INQUIRY

Said to Have Suggested That Private Utilities
Get Generating Rights.

MUSCLE SHOALS, Ala., Nov. 1 (UP)—A special House subcommittee, which heard testimony that Budget Bureau officials suggested private utilities be given the power generating rights for a proposed multi-purpose dam on the lower Cumberland river, moved its hearing site to Muscle Shoals today.

Meeting at Nashville, Tenn., yesterday the subcommittee heard Charles M. Everhart, president of the Cumberland Valley Association, testify that either Carl H. Schwartz or a "Mr. Rappaport" of the budget bureau made the suggestion about the proposed Cumberland river dam.

Everhart, a former Tennessee state Senator from Nashville, said the official suggested to a delegation urging funds for the dam that "if we get some private utility interested in the power production facilities... we might have a better chance to get the dam under way."

Kentucky Mentioned.

Under questioning by subcommittee chairman Robert Jones (Dem.), Alabama, Everhart said he thought the name of "Kentucky Utilities" was mentioned.

Jones immediately telegraphed budget director Rowland Hughes to "bring a quick halt to such solicitations by the Bureau of the Budget."

The chairman of the committee, which is studying water resources recommendations of the Hoover Commission, promised a congressional investigation of the incident.

Everhart said the budget bureau official suggested the private utility could pay a nominal charge for use of the water in generating its power.

Would Wreck TVA.

More than a dozen witnesses at Nashville said the proposals would wreck the Tennessee Valley Authority and stop commercial traffic on the nation's rivers.

Congress has authorized the Cumberland river dam but has not appropriated funds as yet. The dam is to be built by Army engineers and its power distributed by the TVA.

Should the reported suggestion by the budget bureau official be followed, it would be the first time in or near the TVA area that a private utility took over power generation facilities at a publicly-owned dam.

After two days here, the subcommittee will move to Memphis for hearings Thursday and Friday and to Milwaukee and Detroit next week.

WELLSTON POLICE INQUIRY CALLS SIX WITNESSES

Investigation of the Wellston police department in connection with a series of burglaries was to be resumed by the St. Louis county grand jury today, with six witnesses scheduled. The jury's last session was Thursday.

Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz said those subpoenaed were three Wellston policemen and Ross Henson, a former Wellston marshal; Lee Chamblin, a former policeman, and Julius Gold, a deputy marshal.

Garnholz is directing the inquiry, but he said it would be up to the grand jury to decide how long to continue it. Several persons have volunteered to give information to his staff, he added.

Molotov's Latest European Plan Draws Quick Western Dissent, Seen as Confusing German Issue

First Impression Is That Soviet Minister Shifts Position, but Study Shows Proposal Would Perpetuate Division and Otherwise Be Unacceptable.

GENEVA, Nov. 1 (AP).

THE WESTERN POWERS lined up solidly today against Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's latest European security treaty plan. They regarded it as an effort to confuse the issue of German unity and freeze the present division of Europe.

Molotov sprang his proposal, which on the surface contained concessions to the Western viewpoint, at the closing stage of yesterday's session of the Big Four foreign ministers.

By his timing he made a bid to dominate the conference news throughout today when the conference is in recess.

At the request of French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay the delegates took the day off because this is All Saints' day, a holiday in France.

Dulles Files to Spain.

United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles used the break to make a one-day flying trip to Madrid to meet with the Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The official response of Dulles, Pinay and British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan to Molotov's plan therefore will not be forthcoming until tomorrow.

But diplomats in the Western camp passed the word that it changed in no way. Russia's key position—its opposition to the unification of Germany except on its own terms.

What Molotov proposed was that the great powers, East and West Germany and nations neighboring Germany, sign a provisional "treaty on security in Europe."

It would leave the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in existence. It would renounce war.

It would guarantee aid to any member state which was attacked.

There were two sharp differences with another security treaty proposal which Molotov introduced only last week.

The European-wide security pact he then proposed would wipe out NATO within three years and would include all European states willing to join.

The surface impression that Molotov was shifting position was strengthened by his indicated willingness to accept what he called the Eden plan for a disarmament zone along the East-West frontier of Europe.

British Prime Minister Eden had spoken of the possibility of such a zone at last July's summit conference in Geneva.

Objectionable Features.

A quick western study of the Molotov plan, however, showed these important features which diplomats said assured its rejection.

1. The Molotov treaty would perpetuate the division of Germany indefinitely and give equal treaty status to West Germany, and to East Germany which the western powers do not recognize.

2. The zone plan would serve the same purpose because it would use the East-West dividing line inside Germany as the center of the zone.

3. Even from Russia's point of view the treaty would not provide any substantial security against revival of militarism in Germany.

Apart from the security discussion at yesterday's five-hour session, the ministers turned their attention to the possibilities of expanding East-West contact through trade, travel and information.

All four agreed this would be a good thing, in general. They agreed on the appointment of a committee of experts to study more than 20 separate proposals and to report back to the ministers on Nov. 10.

Named to the committee were William H. Jackson, special assistant to Dulles; Sergei A. Vinogradov, Soviet ambassador to Paris; Jean Bailleul, director of cultural relations in the French Foreign Ministry; and H. A. E. Honer of the British Foreign Office.

Molotov Proposal.

Molotov introduced a five-point plan for the consideration of these experts. It was aimed at breaking down western restrictions on the sale of strategic goods to Russia, stimulating the exchange of technical information in such fields as atomic energy, broadening East-West travel and getting Red China into such organizations as the International Labor Office, which is associated with the United Nations.

This last item is an effort to get Red China into the U.N. itself through the back door.

Dulles dined last night with Molotov at the Soviet Foreign Minister's villa. They had caviar, sturgeon and pork, followed with coffee and Armenian brandy.

Molotov toasted the success of the Big Four conference, saying he was sure the American delegation was as anxious for its success as the Russians. Dulles responded in a similar vein. The party lasted an hour and 40 minutes.

GALLUP G.O.P. Backing For Congress Shows Gain

But Democrats' Strength in South Still Gives Them Edge.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N.J., Nov. 1.

WHILE the Republican party has made a significant gain in congressional strength in states outside the South since mid-summer, survey figures reflecting sentiment since the President's illness show that control of the House would remain in Democratic hands if an election were held today.

The Republicans can take comfort in the fact that the downward trend in G.O.P. strength, which last November reached the lowest point in any off-year election in 20 years, appears to have been halted and, in fact, reversed.

Nation-wide, more voters today say they would like to see the Democrats win than say the Republicans—by a margin of 52 to 48 per cent. This is true largely because of the heavy Democratic vote in the South.

A clearer picture of the race can be obtained, however, by looking at the figures in the 35 states outside the South—the crucial battleground in any congressional election.

Voters were asked: "If the elections for Congress were being held today, which party would you like to see win in this state—the Republican party or the Democratic party?"

The vote outside the South:
Republican — 52%
Democratic — 48%

These figures represent the sentiment of voters who either had an opinion or, if undecided, stated toward which party they "lean" today.

A total of 5 per cent was undecided.

Today's Republican figure represents a gain of two points since an Institute survey in July and shows the G.O.P. running one and one-half points stronger at this time than they did in the 1954 elections.

Here is the trend of the congressional vote in states outside the South since the 1946 elections—the last big Republican year:

Year	Rep.	Dem.
1946 election	57%	43%
1948 "	50	50
1950 "	53	47
1954 "	50½	49½
July, 1955 survey	50	50

Today's survey shows 52 per cent for the Republicans.

It can be seen from the above table that Republican party strength today is well below 1946 when the G.O.P. captured both houses of Congress, polling 56.9 per cent of the vote in states outside the South.

Likewise it is below the 1952 figure, when the Republicans won the House by only three seats more than the 218 needed for control.

The one-sided Southern situation is what makes it so difficult for the Republican party to capture control of the House.

POLICE, RIOTERS CLASH IN GREEK CITY; 50 INJURED

ATHENS, Nov. 1 (AP)—Pitched battles between police and demonstrators raged in the city of Patras today. Police opened fire on the stone-throwing rioters who stormed and badly damaged the British Institute building.

Press reports said at least 50 policemen and civilians received treatment for injuries in hospitals or first aid stations.

Police, some in armored cars, opened fire when a Patras mob attempted to break through a cordon around the United States Information Office. The fighting was still continuing this afternoon.

Mobs demanding an end to British rule in Cyprus ran riot through the city as Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus, leader of the union-with-Greece movement, had a two-hour meeting in Athens with Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis. Demonstrations were also reported from other Greek towns.

FIRST ALL-GERMAN CREW HANDLES AIRLINE FLIGHT

HAMBURG, Germany, Nov. 1 (UP)—The first German commercial airline passenger handled by an exclusively German crew flew from Hamburg to Frankfurt yesterday.

German flight Capt. Walter Blume was the first German pilot to fly a Lufthansa DC-3 passenger plane without a foreign pilot sitting beside him.

Until recently, German pilots were barred from flying over German soil under allied occupation laws. German pilots up to now served as co-pilots.

PEARSON G.O.P. Watches Gerrymander in Wisconsin

Gov. Kohler in Dilemma on Plan to Oust McCarthy Critic.

WASHINGTON.

REPUBLICAN leaders in Washington are watching with mixed emotions the Wisconsin attempt to gerrymander one of Senator McCarthy's vigorous critics out of Congress.

Much as they need every extra seat in the House of Representatives, they recognize that this is the first time in United States history that a congressional district has been carved up and voters shifted for the sake of ousting one lone Congressman. Other gerrymanders have been on a state-wide basis. Since this is to unseat Democrat Henry Reuss, who last year defeated the chief McCarthyite in the House of Representatives, Congressman Charles Kersten, they fear the move may boom-erang.

Kersten, elected in the past from Milwaukee, has been one of McCarthy's closest friends and used his tactics in the House of Representatives. His district, however, got fed up with him last November and threw him out in favor of Reuss.

Amazing Technique.

The technique Wisconsin Republicans used to redistrict Reuss out of Congress, in the hope of re-electing Kersten, is one of the most amazing seen in any State Legislature in some years. G.O.P. Governor Kohler now has the job of approving or vetoing it.

The Wisconsin Senate, though overwhelmingly Republican, did not want to pass the gerrymander to unseat Reuss. And though the lower Wisconsin House had passed it, the Senate stalled until Oct. 18, when a Republican caucus voted, 13 to 11, to kill the gerrymander.

At this point, big contributors to the Wisconsin G. O. P. really got busy. Demanding that Democrat Reuss must be defeated at the next election, they put on such heat that another Republican caucus was called next day, Oct. 19.

To make sure the second caucus would right, Republican state treasurer Claude Jasper Continued on Page 9, Column 6.

Government Quietly Dropping Ever-Tighter Credit Restraints, Believes Inflation Is Curbed

New Policy Becomes Evident Through Actions and Statements — Possibility of Tax Cut Next Year Said to Grow Stronger.

By FRANK O'BRIEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP).

THE GOVERNMENT is quietly dropping the policy of ever tighter credit restraints it has enforced most of this year. Instead, it has adopted an attitude of neutral, watchful waiting in the belief that the dangers of inflation which brought on the tougher policy may have been mastered.

If this assessment is correct, and if another inflationary blister does not appear in coming months, the possibility of a tax cut next year becomes a strong probability.

Policy Changes.

The new attitude has become evident through several changes in Government actions—chiefly in Federal Reserve Board policy—and in public and private statements of government money managers.

A top Government policy maker said today he thinks the Government's efforts in recent months to head off what it considered excessive credit expansion in the stock market, home building, and other fields had "taken a lot of steam" out of the incipient inflationary pressures of last summer.

He would not talk about the future course of policy, but he agreed with a description of the Government position at present as "a withdrawal to neutrality."

This does not mean necessarily that restrictions already in force will be abandoned or even significantly relaxed in the near future. It merely means that new restrictions are unlikely, and that there will be a continued effort to keep the restrictions now in force from creating any credit drought.

Balancing the Budget.

With inflationary pressures off, and revenues from high level business activity large enough to insure a balanced budget by next June 30, the Administration would have little reason, if any, to buck the election year tax cut fever bound to be strong in Congress early next year.

The Administration has made the fight against further depreciation of the dollar through inflation the backbone of its economic policy. A tax cut

Interest Rate Drops.

At least partly as a result, the interest rate on 91-day treasury bills dropped yesterday for the second successive week. The rate on these bills sets the pattern for all interest rates. It had hit a 28-month high on Oct. 18.

If the bill rate continues to drop, other interest rates which have been climbing recently may be expected to decline, making borrowing more attractive. A lower bill rate level would also make it possible—although not mandatory—for reserve banks to back down from the present restrictive Continued on Page 9, Column 7.

REDS RELUCTANT BUT AGREE TO U.N. BUDGET INCREASE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 1 (AP)—The Soviet Union unexpectedly agreed yesterday to accept an increase in its share of the United Nations budget for the next three years. The move promised clear sailing for the question of fixing assessments this year.

George N. Zarubin, Soviet ambassador to Washington, told the U.N. budget committee he didn't like the seventh advance in a row handed the Soviet Union in making up assessment percentages. But because a committee on contributions has stipulated that no change should be made for three years—unless a country suffers sharp, unexpected reverses—Zarubin said his country would vote for the new assessment table.

The Soviet Union share would be second highest, 15.28 per cent of the whole budget, estimated to be $46,278,000 next year. The United States share is still the highest, a third, almost twice the Soviet Union's payment. The United States share has been successively reduced in recent years from a high of 39.89 per cent under a principle that no one country should be required to carry more than a third of the budget burden.

PHILIPPINES BEGIN DIVIDING ESTATES UNDER NEW LAW

MANILA, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Philippine government yesterday took its first step to break up large estates under the new land tenure law.

President Ramon Magsaysay announced court proceedings had been started to expropriate the 2560-acre Hacienda Mangrove, 60 miles northwest of Manila. The land would be divided into small parcels and distributed to landless farmers.

The land tenure law was passed last August. It is one of Magsaysay's pet measures to improve the social and economic conditions of rural Filipinos.

Brazilian Army Chief Dies.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Gen. Canrobert Pereira da Costa, chief of staff of Brazil's armed forces, died yesterday. He was 60 years old. He was brought home in a United States Air Force plane last Thursday after several weeks of treatment at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

RUSSIA REPORTED SEEKING SECOND KOREAN PARLEY

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 1 (AP)—Diplomatic sources reported yesterday the Soviet Union wants a second political conference on Korea for another attempt at a settlement on the Korean peninsula.

The first unofficial United States reaction was:

Do the Russians have something new to offer? If so, let them present it before a conference is called.

Soviet delegates at the United Nations General Assembly are said by diplomats to be shaping up a call for a second conference. Korea is to be debated later in the Assembly's 60-nation political committee.

In 1954, the U.N. allies in Korea met at Geneva with the Communists for the first Korean conference. It dragged on for weeks and ended without result.

NIXON SAYS NO BIG NATION HAS RIGHT TO SATELLITE RING

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 1 (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said today "a powerful nation has no inherent right to be surrounded by satellites."

He contrasted Russia's dominance of the small countries of eastern Europe with the United States "Good Neighbor policy" toward the countries of Latin America.

The United States policy, Nixon asserted in a speech before the Inter-American Press Association, has set an example for the world in a big power's relations with smaller countries in its area.

He paid high tribute to the late Cordell Hull, President Roosevelt's Secretary of State, for his work in putting inter-American relations on a solid basis of friendship.

He also praised President Carlos Castillo Armas of Guatemala, who is now paying a three-day state visit to Washington. Castillo Armas, Nixon said, "led the world's first successful movement to free a government which had fallen captive to the international Communist conspiracy."

His Lawyer Pointed Out The Disadvantages of Putting His Estate in Joint Names

WHEN WILLIAMS made his will a number of years ago, he left his entire estate outright to his wife. In the intervening years, his estate has increased from about $50,000 to $250,000. Williams recently consulted his lawyer with the idea that it might be a good plan to put his estate in the joint names of himself and his wife. His lawyer pointed out that there are grave tax disadvantages either in putting his property in joint names or in leaving it outright to his wife under his present will. If Williams leaves his estate outright to his wife under his present will or puts it in joint names, the tax consequences will be the same. Under his present will, the Federal estate tax on his estate will amount to $10,900. If he puts his property in joint names, the potential tax will be unchanged. In either case, if Mrs. Williams survives her husband by ten years or more, there would be an additional Federal estate tax of approximately $44,400 upon her death.

Williams's lawyer advised him to retain his property in his own name and to make a new will under which his estate would be divided into two separate trusts. The first trust would consist of half of his estate before the payment of taxes. The second trust would consist of the residue of the estate after the payment of taxes. Mrs. Williams would receive the income from both trusts. She would be given the right to dispose of the principal of the first trust but would have no such right with respect to the principal of the second trust.

This plan takes advantage of the "marital deduction" as does his present will. As a result, half of his estate will be exempt from taxation at his death and the Federal estate tax will be $10,900 as it would be under his present will. But this new plan will prevent the other half of his estate from being taxed twice—first at his death and a second time at the death of Mrs. Williams. As a result, the Federal estate tax at the death of Mrs. Williams will be only $10,900 instead of $44,400 as it would be under his present will or if he were to put his property in joint names.

If you are married and have not considered the effect of the marital deduction provided for estate tax purposes in the 1948 tax law, it would be advisable to review your estate plans now. If your property is in joint names and your estate exceeds $60,000, the amount exempt from Federal estate taxes, you should consult your lawyer now. Your own lawyer should make any revisions that may be necessary in your will and advise you on all legal matters. Officers of this Company will be glad to confer with you about the business and financial aspects of your estate plan and to cooperate fully with your lawyer. You are cordially invited to come in at any time to discuss your affairs without obligation.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

What St. Vincent's Is Doing

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your newspaper is doing a real service by hammering away at Missouri's legislative apathy toward the mentally ill. Granted that Missouri's handling of the mental illness problem is something less than ideal, I would point out that your readers are apt to conclude that all our mental hospitals share in this apathy.

Not true. St. Vincent's Hospital in Pagedale is a case in point. St. Vincent's is a private mental hospital (incidentally, private in this case doesn't mean exclusive), operated by an order of Catholic sisters called the Daughters of Charity.

It is taking nothing away from the brilliant Meningers to say that St. Vincent's has been doing quietly for half a century what the State of Kansas has been doing since 1948.

Item: The treatment of physical illness as well as in conjunction with the treatment of mental and emotional illness has long been a medical policy at St. Vincent's.

Item: Occupational therapy and psychiatric social work are enlightened, longstanding functions at St. Vincent's. Kansas spends $5 a patient a day on mental treatment; St. Vincent's spends considerably more than $5, to say nothing of $1000 a day average in charity, a piece of economic magic made possible by the non-salary status of its sister-nurses-administrators.

And whereas Kansas is so justifiably proud of their accomplishments that they have voted a permanent building fund financed by personal property taxes, St. Vincent's is still $350,000 short of its $1,100,000 goal for an 87-bed clinic that would render short-term psychiatric care to 500 patients a year, to go with the 700 patients it now handles.

How does St. Vincent's reconcile its daily $1000 charity expenditure with its difficulty in producing the needed $350,000?

Isn't charity, in the long run, the answer to Missouri's mental illness problem? Isn't the personal property tax voted by Kansas charity, in one sense of the word? Isn't the Post-Dispatch's plea for legislative action on the citizen level and St. Vincent's plea for $350,000 at the personal level pretty much the same kind of plea? JAMES L. LORD, Director of Development.

Pagedale.

Speeding Civil Justice

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Judge Samuel H. Hofstadter of the New York State Supreme Court has suggested a plan for removing automobile-accident lawsuits from our overburdened courts and disposing of them in a sound and up-to-date manner patterned after the system of workmen's compensation claims.

It would mean assured compensation for the injured within a comparatively short time on a basis of established payment schedules administered by a state board. His Honor has a point well worth considering. HARRY E. KEMP.

Now Is the Time

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Now would seem to be a most propitious time for Secretary Benson to unambiguously reaffirm his faith in "the play of the market place" to "reorder" American farming to a "sound, prosperous" basis. THOMAS BRODERICK, Schenectady, N.Y.

Viewing the Inner Belt

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Since many of your readers are unaware of what the proposed St. Louis County Inner Belt Expressway is, I shall describe it as a north-south cross-county limited-access high-speed highway comparable with the Red Feather Expressway.

It represents $16,100,000, or approximately 40 per cent of the total bond issue, for which a right-of-way will be purchased and only 4.6 miles of roadway built extending from Page avenue to a short distance south of Eager road in Brentwood. State or federal road funds are not available for it.

This route, in part, will be a road elevated above a railroad track which itself is already elevated above Brentwood boulevard and Clayton road. It then continues, as an elevated road, making a curve as it comes down to the street level adjacent to the playground of the new McCormick School in Richmond Heights.

This Inner Belt Expressway is so poorly planned and inconsiderate of lives, safety and educational facilities of our children, that it should be overwhelmingly defeated at the Nov. 22 election to show, once and for all, to our county officials, that we citizens of St. Louis county will not tolerate such poor, careless planning of roads which will endanger our children. CHARLES SILVERBERG.

As to the Charter

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If Mayor Tucker favors a city-county merger, and if he thinks a study of the problem should be made by St. Louis and Washington universities, why is he advocating adoption of a new City Charter at this time?

Any competent study by the two universities would have to concern itself with the City Charter in its relation to the proposed merger. Would it not be a waste of time and the taxpayers' money to vote on a new City Charter now and have to do it all over again in connection with the proposed merger? JOHN A. SLAY SR.

Score for Secretary Dulles

Back in May, 1952, the United States Government established restrictions on the travel of citizens of this country in the Soviet Union. The reason was that the Communist countries did not afford "adequate protection to American citizens" traveling inside their boundaries.

Secretary of State Dulles, speaking in "the spirit of Geneva," as developed at the heads of state meeting last summer, has now ended these passport restrictions. The change, announced by the State Department head at the meeting of Big Four foreign ministers, was accompanied by an invitation to the Communists to join in lowering the international bars. Mr. Dulles retained the State Department's authority to pass on individual applications for overseas travel, but at the same time made the case for easing restrictions in all directions. He said:

Americans are naturally a friendly people who like to know and be known.

We have long wanted to learn more about the Soviet Union and we have hoped that they would come to know us. There is a solid basis for good will between us.

It is a fact of history which should be remembered now that our peoples have never fought each other.

In this pacific approach, our Secretary of State was joined by Messrs. Macmillan and Pinay. The participation of the French and British foreign ministers added important strength to the plea to the Kremlin to break down the cultural and economic barriers between the East and West.

Greatly to his credit, Secretary Dulles did not stop with his elimination of these hobbling passport restrictions. He went on to propose that the Soviets agree to a full-fledged cultural exchange with information centers in each other's country. He even said that the United States was ready to allow the Russians to circulate their official magazine in this country and that we proposed the distribution of United States-made films behind the Iron Curtain.

Still another Dulles proposal is that by mutual agreement United States planes and other Western airlines be authorized to land in Moscow and Russian planes be allowed to come down at the Idlewild international airport in New York. As Mr. Dulles put it, we are ready to lift many of these restrictions as soon as the Russians are.

It would be hard to overstate the change in climate in this country that these proposals measure. For it was only a short time ago that librarians were being put through the third degree because they allowed free Soviet publications to appear in their magazine racks. Willingness to look at anything from the Soviet Union became the basis for black marks and charges of security violation or even disloyalty. Actually the Dulles proposals are a long way from much of the campaigning in the 1954 election.

Secretary of State Dulles has taken a stand that is eminently sensible. For the one best way to develop friendships between East and West peoples is to enable them to know each other as human beings. That is just what these proposals work toward.

Getting Warm on Transit

After some eight months of warming up the City-County Transit Committee is just about ready to play ball. It has finally completed its specifications for a projected study of mass transportation problems in the St. Louis area. And it can get the money, we may get a study after all. Financing is the big "if." By reducing the scope of the study the citizens have attempted to cut its cost from the $600,000 or so that was indicated earlier. Exactly how much that figure will be reduced by the more limited approach the citizens now suggest is a question. Mayor Tucker, though, has given his word that the city is in position to defray half the cost.

That means the decision on whether there will or will not be a survey seems to rest with Supervisor Matthews. Assuming the very best—that is, that he can find the money and is willing to spend it—it still will take another two years to complete the survey. After that, perhaps somebody will be in position to do something about the transit problem besides talking about it.

The Public Is No Partner

Secretary McKay's description of how the "partnership plan" will work at the John Day dam makes it plain that the scheme could more properly be called a plan to freeze out preference customers.

By law, first call on power generated at federal dams is given to municipal and co-operative distribution systems. The Interior Secretary now says that this preference, which Congress made mandatory, will be honored at the new dam on the Columbia river only if the preference customers buy their way into the project.

Still another device had already been used by the Administration to circumvent the preference clause at the Clark Hill dam in Georgia. This is the device of making a private power company the agent for conveying the power. At first it had been planned to turn over the administration of the preference clause to the company, but this was found to be clearly illegal.

If the foes of public power who surround President Eisenhower, headed by Chief Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, get by with these circumventions of the preference law, the same schemes will be extended to other rivers.

Unless these evasions are successfully challenged, the public will be in danger of losing the real benefits of power plants utilizing public resources and involving the use of public funds.

Breaking Two Logjams

St. Louisans are going to find it difficult to understand why a municipality that can administer a $110,000,000 bond issue is having so much trouble finding space for an additional courtroom for the trial of criminal cases. This is one of those minor executive matters that should have been attended to long ago.

But municipal inaction has now reached a point where Circuit Judge McLaughlin has recommended that his colleagues on the bench take legal action to compel the city to do the obvious. All that is necessary is for the city to make available a courtroom on the first floor of the Municipal Courts building. Such a room exists, but it is used for storage by the public health nursing service.

A fundamental Constitutional guarantee is involved here—the right of defendants in criminal cases to a speedy and public trial. The criminal docket in St. Louis has been so jammed that the three courtrooms currently devoted to criminal trials are not sufficient to dispose of the backlog. The result is long delays between charge and trial, and in the case of defendants who are unable to make bond that delay—up to six months—is sweated out in City Jail.

Judge McLaughlin says that another courtroom would enable the criminal docket to be brought up to date. In other words, if Mayor

Tucker will break the logjam in municipal administration, the judges can and will do likewise with respect to the administration of criminal justice.

A Shortage in Technicians

Soviet Russia is going to graduate 1,600,000 technicians next year and that will be 32 times as many as the United States will graduate, according to Representative Wright Patman of Texas. This alarming statement runs parallel to the oft-repeated one concerning scientists and engineers: Russia graduated 54,000 in 1954 while the United States graduated only 20,000.

Added together, these two statements give some idea of why Russia is hard on our heels in the technological race—so close that it is estimated the United States has only 100,000 more scientists and engineers than Russia. Such proximity is a clear indication that the leadership America now enjoys is endangered. And that is a serious thing in this age of hydrogen bomb, jet plane and electronic wizardry.

As a sidelight on the situation, the Labor Department reported last week that almost half the aircraft industry was suffering from a shortage of engineers, highly skilled production workers and managerial personnel. These figures were based on 194 plants which employ 95 per cent of the industry's workers. It is a fair estimate that surveys in other defense industries would show about the same deficiencies.

Mr. Patman, chairman of a Joint Congressional Economic subcommittee which has just concluded a study of automation in industry, says, "We will recommend that Congress take prompt action to encourage more American youths to train as technicians." It is to be hoped that Congress will do something but many a city, town and county can do a lot by pulling on its own bootstraps.

According to the National Education Association, the percentage of high school students enrolled in physics classes dropped from 22.8 per cent in 1895 to only 5.8 per cent in 1948. Good all-round teachers generally have their classes filled. The trouble is that there are not enough. For instance, the NEA estimates present need for new science teachers at 7700 annually and reports that the ranks are being filled at only a third that rate.

Much can be done to remedy this general situation. Each locality can see to it that it pays its teachers enough and has enough buildings so that classrooms are not crowded and there is no shortage of good teachers. Financial assistance for worthy students in high school and in college in the form of scholarships, loan-funds and employment, also can be of much assistance.

Princess Margaret Decides

It would be a cold-hearted soul indeed who did not find a note of pathos in Princess Margaret's decision not to marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend. The Anglo-Saxon's concept of marriage is romantic. Yet a mind shaped by any other mold surely is somewhat touched by renunciation of the heart's desire.

But the crown must ever weigh on royalty. In Britain and the Commonwealths, it is the symbol of Church and State and their age-complicated code of loyalty, devotion and duty. There is no power today in the English scepter, yet kings, queens and princes are expected to speak as did Henry V:

By Jove, I am not covetous for gold;
Nor care I, who do feed upon my cost;
I years me not, if men my garments wear;

Such outward things dwell not in my desires;
But, if it be sin to covet honor,
I am the most offending man alive. . . .
This story shall the good man teach his son.

It is long since the day of Agincourt; but, unless the Coronation was no more than a dollar-earning tourist attraction, the royal family stands for the old spirit under new conditions. True, there are many Englishmen who felt that the Princess should not be circumscribed by restrictions, constitutional—or traditional, not prescribed for the common citizen. They have strong arguments. But if these prevailed, they also would affect the prerogatives of royalty. If prince and princess were to be like other men and women, what would happen to the still effective myth of the monarchy?

Margaret could have chosen otherwise than she did. But she decided for a loyalty which almost everyone must somehow respect. Not without a troubled heart, she chose to support a fragile institution which impresses moderns perhaps because it is so unmodern.

Jet Airliners and Landing Fields

The jet age for civil air transportation is just around the proverbial corner. United Air Lines announced last week that it had ordered 30 jet airliners and will begin jet service by November 1959. Two weeks previously, Pan American World Airways ordered 45 jet airliners, a few of which are to begin service in December 1959.

Neither Pan American nor United planes serve St. Louis but Lambert-St. Louis Field, with its 10,000-foot runway, could handle jet traffic. Some other major cities need longer runways and generally larger airports for these 600-mile-an-hour airliners. In some areas, where building construction has been allowed to encroach, new airports may be the only solution.

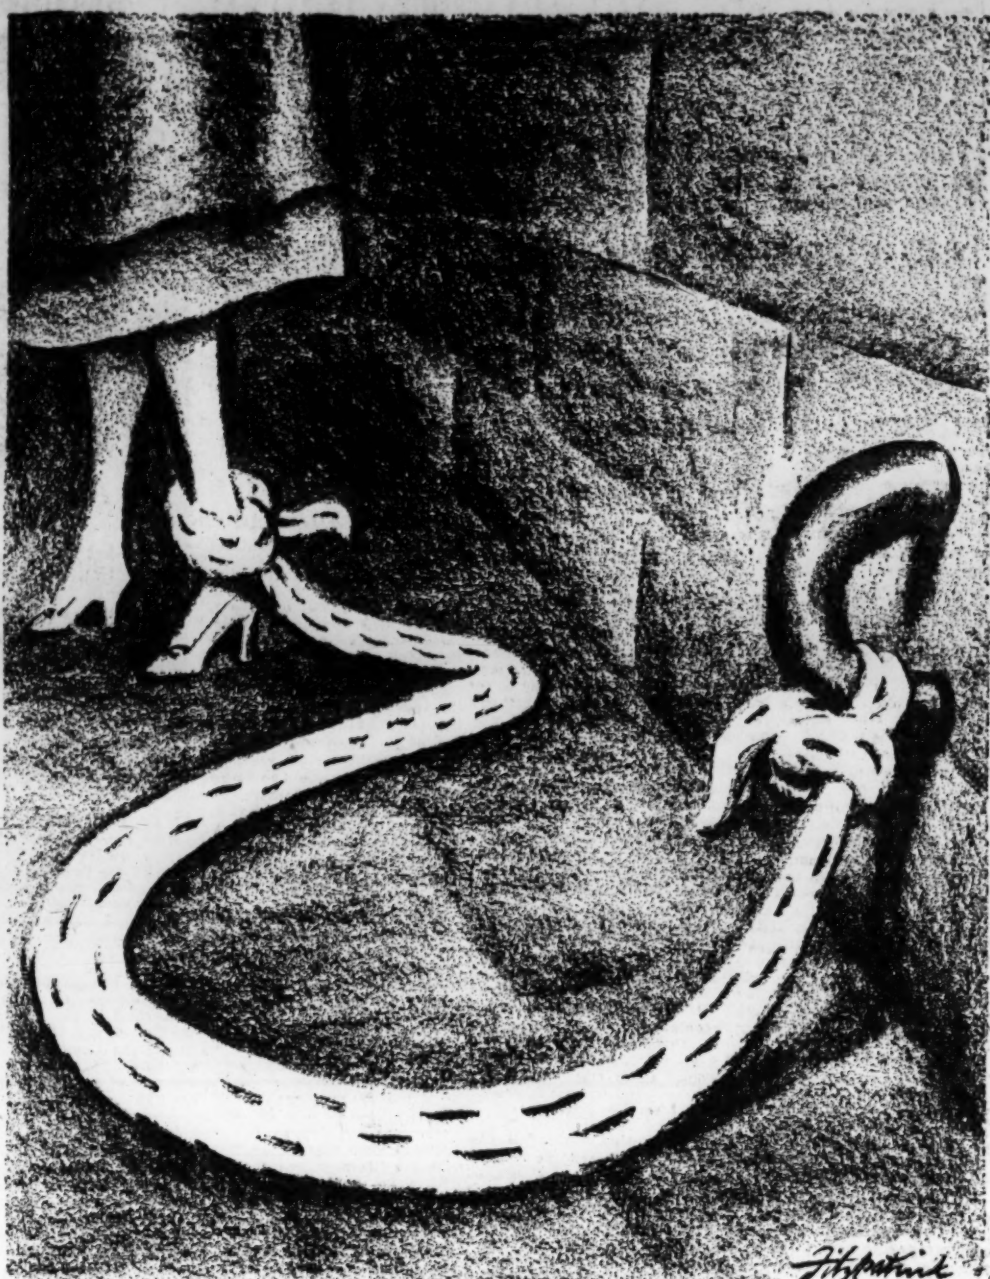

But even in this day of jet planes that need longer runways there is a trend in the other direction although it is such a small one that few persons realize it. McDonnell Aircraft Corp. last May announced the successful flying of a conventional plane. Ascending vertically like a helicopter, it then flew forward as fast as a conventional plane by means of a pusher-type propeller behind the pilot's compartment. And in a few days the Air Force expects to fly a jet-powered vertical-rising plane.

With aviation moving as fast as it is, it may well be that new developments in planes will eliminate the need for long runways before too many years pass.

It Worked

Would not price incentives increase the sale of milk? We asked that question as the Milk Industry Foundation began sessions here. Now that question has apparently been answered in a report from Des Moines, where an interesting experiment is meeting with marked success.

The Northland Milk Co. of that city conceived a plan of offering a quantity discount for home deliveries. After paying 26 cents for the first quart, the customer was allowed 10 cents on additional quarts, lowering the price to 16 cents. The discount plan increased sales by 20 per cent and the average number of quarts delivered per stop increased nearly 50 per cent. R. B. Weigel, vice president and general manager, reported, "By the time six months were up we had converted all our customers to the quantity discount system—losing some, getting larger orders from others, and adding many new ones, all of whom were large customers."

How to Move People

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Publicly-owned Cleveland transit system tells how it built fast and successful rapid transit line; suggests this should be considered a community improvement similar to streets or bridges; offers other ideas on how to transport people in big city.

From a Prize Award Report by the Cleveland Transit System in the National Public Transportation Competition, Reprinted From Urban Land, Published by the Urban Land Institute.

If we are going to improve public transit in a manner to attract any considerable number of automobile drivers, we believe we shall have to move transit vehicles faster and more freely.

We believe this can be done, but it requires planning and leadership and by more than just the transit officials. Some of the things that can be done are as follows:

1. Direct Routing: Direct and convenient routings of transit vehicles are important. One-way streets have helped move greater volumes of traffic in some cities, and have helped public transit in some cases.

However, if one-way streets add to the number of turns made by buses in a congested area and take riders further away from their destination, it may make public transit less popular and bring on still more automobiles.

2. Transit Vehicle Lane: Restrict one lane on main arteries for use of transit vehicles only. Such a lane used by mass transit vehicles could carry several times as many people as would be carried in the remaining lanes in automobiles—and carry them faster when freed of automobile congestion.

The day after a transit vehicle goes whizzing past a crawling lane of automobiles, some of those automobile drivers will be on the transit vehicles—and happy to be there because they will have saved money as well as time. This lift in travel habit from automobile to mass transit will help those who continue driving automobiles because there will then be fewer vehicles in the lanes for automobiles.

3. Streets for Transit Vehicles Only: Restrict some streets to use by transit vehicles only. In cities with a grid pattern of streets and where not handicapped by streetcar tracks, it might be possible to put automobiles and transit vehicles on alternate streets.

The automobile driver might set up a terrific cry at first, claiming it would slow him down still more. Well, he will be slowed down still more anyway if we do not reverse the trend of the recent past. Actually, the ability to move people so much faster by public transit would cause many to go back to the bus.

That in turn would help the automobile driver on downtown streets.

Some people object to zoning of any sort. Yet, in most cities zoning is accepted. The size of buildings may be limited. Industry and commerce are restricted to certain locations. Buildings must be set back a certain distance from the street, etc., etc. All of these things are done for the greatest good of the greatest number. It seems even more appropriate that we consider restrictions on street use where it will permit an improvement to a community.

4. Rapid Transit Arteries: Build arteries for transit vehicles. Instead of building six- or eight-lane expressways to provide for more automobiles which only further clog up the streets in a central business area and create parking problems as well, wouldn't it be cheaper and more sensible to build a two-lane artery for transit vehicles?

Transit vehicles could then do a job which would obviate the need for multimillion dollar freeways. The reduction in number of vehicles would make it possible for those who still needed or wanted to drive a car to get to and from their destination more easily.

The Cleveland Transit System has under construction a Rapid Transit which, with the most modern and attractive rapid transit cars, will provide faster transportation than any efforts to move automobiles will accomplish.

No private transit system can afford to build such an artery. It is an improvement which should be built by the community just as expressways, street widenings, and bridges are paid for by the community.

The shortcoming of our Rapid Transit is that it will have only one station in the central business area. We knew that was a serious limitation but figured it was time for action instead of talk, so we went ahead with what we could do—with confidence that an underground distribution loop would follow.

It was proposed that a subway, costing $35,000,000, be built for distributing Rapid Transit riders throughout the central business area. This is to be a tax-supported project of the entire county.

It was approved at the election on Nov. 3, 1953, by a majority of 2 to 1. At the same time a $4,500,000 county building proposal failed. People throughout Cuyahoga county apparently favor the more efficient means of moving people by public transit.

The Pubs Live On

From the Kansas City Star

The surprising word from England is that the pubs are on the decline. And the British Government regards the trend as a national loss, irrespective of the views of temperance organizations.

In the last year the Government has ruled that 400 of the pubs—short for public houses—are to be preserved because of their historic or architectural importance. Otherwise these neighborhood centers for the drinking of patriotically warm beer and ales would have an uncertain future.

The Associated Press reports from London that television, motor cars and coffee bars have caused a wane in popularity for the forefathers of the American tavern. Most of the pubs have a picturesque antique air about them. The bars, the woodwork, even the much punctured dartboards speak of bygone generations that came to visit, argue and sometimes to drink until the early closing hour law sent them home.

Parable of a Greek City
THE YEARS OF THE CITY, by George R. Stewart.
(Houghton Mifflin, 547 pp., $4.50.)

Among the more engaging features of a perusal of the past is that instructive parallels may sometimes be found with the present. But when an entirely adequate situation is supplied by the past, a novelist is surely at liberty to construct one. That is what George R. Stewart, who is a professor of English at the University of California, has done. "The Years of the City" tells of the founding in about the tenth century B.C. of an imaginary Greek colony along an equally imaginary stretch of Mediterranean shoreline.

We start with Archias, who was a child at the time of the founding, and follow three generations of his descendants until, finally, the city is destroyed.

Each of the members of Archias's family is an individual as well as an embodiment of his time. Archias and his sons are rugged, loyal and for the most part, devout.

But the impotence and cowardice of Callias, and the dissensions of the time, allow a dictator to overthrow the magisterial government. From then on, the economic, political and moral decay of the city proceed apace. The fall of the city is seen through the eyes of Diogenes, Callias's son, whom we meet (significantly) as a senile, superstitious, impoverished old man.

Although the numerous major and minor figures in the story are interesting simply as people, the principal interest is in the city, which grows as we read from vigorous youth to manhood to a sorry old age. Group spirit, freedom and piety give way to private interest, poverty, autocracy, superstition, and hypocrisy.

At times Mr. Stewart's analogies with the present become a little too obvious, as, for example, when an unscrupulous builder makes himself dictator by arousing fears that a group called the Distributors is subversive. Sometimes the plot machinery creaks; as when (on one page) Archias wishes he were a cat and (on the next) saves the life of the founder of the city and receives citizenship as a reward.

Whatever life may have been like in Homeric times, Mr. Stewart's picture of it is certainly convincing in its many details, exciting, colorful and, moving of all alive. These are, after all, considerable merits.

As Contemporaries Saw It

THE AMERICAN WEST, by Lucius Beebe and Charles Clegg. (Dutton, 511 pp., $12.50.)

The epic of the great American West, which is sometimes treated as a majestic piece of pageantry in pictorial summaries, is reported in this book as it was seen by contemporary newspaper and magazine illustrators, and an occasional photographer. The ructions at lawless frontier settlements, and the exploits of the hunters, Indian fighters, the prospectors and other famous Western types are presented just as they were visualized or personally witnessed by artists of a century and more ago. These are liberal borrowings from Harper's Weekly, Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, The Illustration, Police News, the old National Police Gazette, and other contemporary periodicals.

Although the artists sometimes revised circumstances a bit to suit their compositions, it would have been hard for them to exaggerate the violence, the drama and the general liveness of their themes. The century of the settling of the West was a busy time, and it is shown in these old prints in its many facets, from the period of the fur trappers to the surrender of Geronimo, the last of the great Apache chieftains, in 1886. The accompanying text moves briskly along, and encompasses a vast range of material.

Gauge in 'Moderation's' Name?

WASHINGTON. WHEN RESPONSIBLE LEADERS in Congress of a political party bent on recapturing the White House—for example, the Democratic party—begin to sing in the manner of "Love Is Sweeping the Country," it is natural that somebody might be curious and ask a few questions.

The last, in fact, describes an element of the party which had thought the theme might be closer to "Fight, Fight, Fight." By "Love Is Sweeping the Country"—an exaggeration, of course, in the name of poetic license—is meant the incessant talk of "moderation" that is coming these days in obviously inspired messages out of Texas.

Johnson

There a couple of gentlemen are planning Democratic strategy and policy for the pre-election sessions of the Eighty-fourth Congress beginning in January.

None has a better right to suggest policy—for the two gentlemen are, respectively, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn and Senator Lyndon Johnson, Senate party leader.

Eisenhower's Popularity.

The Rayburn-Johnson thesis, which the latter expounds to all comers—some high in the party—has the ring of sweet reasonableness to meet a somewhat unusual political situation. That finds the Democratic party in control of Congress midway in the term of a Republican President and in advance of a presidential election. Such divided control of Government is infrequent.

The problem of managing Congress under such conditions in a way to get most advantage politically is complicated for the Democrats in this instance by two other factors.

1. The continued popularity of President Eisenhower which, with his illness, makes him almost untouchable.

2. The existence of "peace and prosperity" which the Republicans understand stress with every breath and which seemingly has lulled the electorate generally into a satisfied and somnolent state.

Performance vs. Issues.

That is, except for several million farmers and several hundred thousand industrial workers who have been out of jobs for many months in distressed areas of coal mining, textiles and railroad shops, chiefly.

The Rayburn-Johnson thesis is that, in view of the generally settled state of the economy, the Democratic party in Congress should adopt a policy of "moderation" and match its course with the idea of moderation associated with President Eisenhower.

It should make its bid to the voters, they contend, on its ability to perform in a responsible fashion under difficult circumstances. Performance would substitute to some extent for issues of which Senator Johnson, at least, thinks there is a dearth.

This does not mean that Democrats will not have a program of their own affecting farmers, taxes, federal aid to school construction, highways and such. For they will and will press it boldly. But the aim is to avoid issues that would split the party along North-South lines, among them, civil rights and Taft-Hartley labor law repeal.

The Texas Senator broached the "moderation" thesis to Adlai Stevenson when the latter visited him, and Speaker Rayburn recently, as he did also to Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, one of the recognized leaders of the party's liberal or progressive wing, who once was vocal and insistent on such matters as civil rights and Taft-Hartley repeal.

Sweetness for Oil's Sake?

However far Senator Humphrey is ready to go with Senator Johnson on "moderation," some others in that wing of the party are beginning to sniff suspiciously.

Granting a certain practical political expediency in the Rayburn-Johnson theory, they are asking if there might possibly be some hidden motives that make the strategy not entirely unselfish.

Could it be possible, they are asking, that his "sweetness and light" and "moderation" might serve also as a smoke screen behind which Senator Johnson might be enabled to rush through a pet measure of his and of powerful oil interests? Meaning the bill to exempt natural gas producers from regulation by the Federal Power Commission that Speaker Rayburn jammed through the House last session.

For Their Constituents.

The rumor is that this disputed measure is to be brought forward early in the session and that Senator Johnson will attempt a smothering blitzkrieg to get it out of the way early and as quietly as possible with the hope that the millions of consumers affected who will have their gas prices boosted will forget about it by election time.

Opponents of the bill are all set to challenge its leader on any such maneuver, and bitterly and long. As for splitting the party, which Senator Johnson professes he is trying to avoid, they point out that this gas bill really would tear the party wide open.

They say they will buy very little of the Texas Senator's "moderation" if it means putting through this gas gauge that will penalize millions of their consumer constituents for the benefit of a few big oil companies that contribute to campaign funds for key people in both parties.

Other Democrats outside of the South also are going to insist on making some kind of a record on civil rights which is of keen concern to minority groups in politically doubtful sections in the East, North and West.

And so with other issues, of which progressive Democrats see plenty, differing with Senator Johnson.

600 AT GUITAR RECITAL

About 600 persons attended a recital by Jose Rey de la Torre, classical guitarist, last night at the City Art Museum. This was almost double what the sponsors, a group of St. Louis guitar enthusiasts, had predicted for the free concert. Some persons left because they could not crowd into Gallery 16. Rey de la Torre, 37-year-old native of Cuba, was appearing for the first time in St. Louis. Among composers represented on his hour-and-a-half program, played with almost no intermission, were J. S. Bach, Fernando Sor, his teacher Miguel Llobet, Manuel de Falla and Isaac Albeniz. There were two encores.

ARTIST BOCCIA OPENS ONE-MAN EXHIBITION

Drawings Suggest the Thinking Behind His Prize-Winning Oils.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Edward E. Boccia, whose abstract paintings have won recent outstanding St. Louis awards, lays bare the thinking underlying his prize oils in an exhibition of large drawings that opened today at Martin Schweig Gallery of Modern Art, 4637 Maryland avenue. This is the seventh solo show by the artist, a member of the Washington University School of Fine Arts faculty.

Expressive, thoroughly representational human figures, heads and horses in the new display surprise gallery-goers familiar only with Boccia's oils that won $300 purchase awards of City Art Museum and Morton D. May in the last Missouri show. The drawings are of a size and variety that accord well with dimensions of the gallery.

In a poetic foreword to the exhibit, Boccia traces the relationship between his abstract paintings and his realistic drawing. "They are connected like drunken lovers," he asserts, affirming his ultimate reliance on nature. "If the impossible is nature limited," then "the improbable is art without nature," he concludes.

Boccia's inspiration, he is quick to acknowledge, comes from secondary sources as well as from living models. He nevertheless puts his personal stamp and the authority of his draftsmanship on a fragment of a battle scene from a Mantegna print, a mannerist figure study stemming from Pontormo, a head from a Donatello statue and a vaguely Pissarro palette, evocatively Greek "Head of Athena."

For a drawing show, the 30 pictures hung, as well as the others in portfolio, are remarkably rich in color. Here color leads a life of its own, ranging from the airiness of the Impressionist palette to the daring of the Fauves.

Such splashes of brilliance never merely fill in areas between these deft and flickering lines, but always, instead, are enhancing sculptural quality where needed or dissolving form to communicate sensations of motion or improve overall design. Examples are the frolicsome "Colt" the monumental "Renaissance Rider" and the Lautree-like "Equestrienne No. 2."

All but five of the drawings are new. Exceptions are portrait studies of casually posed Russians and Germans, all loose and sensitive of line and all done in 1945, when Boccia was serving as a United States Army corporal in Germany.

They are included here, the artist explained, because they anticipated his present line of development, even though other kinds of work intervened.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday. The show will close Nov. 19.

DALE CARNEGIE

DALE CARNEGIE DIES; TEACHER AND AUTHOR

Wrote 'How to Win Friends and Influence People.'

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (UPI)—Dale Carnegie, teacher and author of the best seller, "How to Win Friends and Influence People," died today at his home here after a month's illness. He was 66 years old.

A public speaking instructor, Mr. Carnegie published his famous book in 1936 and almost immediately it became a best seller. Subsequently, he established classes in public relations in major United States cities, using Carnegie-trained men as instructors.

The son of a farmer, he was born in 1888 in Maryville, Mo. Later the family moved to Warrensburg, Mo., where he was graduated from State Teachers College.

He began his career as a public speaking teacher in 1912 when he was 24, holding classes in a New York City Y.M.C.A. He charged each pupil a nominal fee but in two years the classes became so popular that he was earning $500 a week.

After his book appeared his lecture tours attracted large crowds at cities throughout the nation.

In 1916, News Commentator Lowell Thomas, then an English instructor at Princeton University, conferred with Mr. Carnegie about a speech Thomas was to give before the National Institute. The acquaintance grew and Mr. Carnegie later became Thomas's business manager.

When his book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People," appeared in November, 1936, it went into 17 editions within a few months and has been a constant seller since.

Mr. Carnegie was divorced from his first wife in 1931 after 10 years of marriage. He married Mrs. Henry Price of Tulsa, Okla., in 1944.

Dale Carnegie lectured in St. Louis on numerous occasions and spoke at the Y.M.C.A. Town Hall series here several years ago.

REPORTS ON BRITISH LUNG DISEASE STUDY

Head of Welsh Research Unit Speaks Here on Work in Mines.

How Welsh coal miners' lives have been saved through guidance from comparison of chest X-rays and medical case histories was described here yesterday by Dr. John C. Gilson, British specialist in lung diseases. He addressed 30 St. Louis physicians and medical students at Firmin Desloge Hospital.

Dr. Gilson, director of the Pneumoconiosis Research Unit of Wales, told of studies begun in 1938, and still going forward, on various categories of pneumoconiosis, a lung disease that affects persons working amid dust.

Tables of X-ray statistics, he said, have demonstrated how removal from the mines of miners in the earliest detectable stage of the disease can arrest its progress, whereas once the illness reaches a certain later stage it eventually causes death in spite of removal from the mines and in spite of all present-day treatment.

Correlation of these X-ray statistics with graphs of dust dosage, calculated by multiplying years worked in the mine by average concentration of dust in them, has led to laws making coal dust suppression obligatory in all mines in England, he said.

Further progress in attacking pneumoconiosis, particularly intractable disease once it gets well started, depends on combined efforts of ventilating engineers and physicians, Dr. Gilson said.

His talk, illustrated with typical chest X-rays and numerous statistical graphs and tables, also dealt with the relationship of coal-dust inhalation to other respiratory diseases, including tuberculosis, bronchitis and emphysema.

Under auspices of the University of Pittsburgh Medical School, Dr. Gilson is making a tour of medical centers in this country. He conferred here yesterday with members of the St. Louis University School of Medicine faculty and toured the school.

While in the United States Dr. Gilson is also studying problems of rockdusting in American mines. For this purpose he has visited some of the area medical offices of the United Mine Workers Welfare Fund, including the headquarters of office in Washington.

St. Louis U. Medical School's 'Hot Box' on TV Network Show

Climate Chamber Research on Effect of Heat and Cold on Nervous System Demonstrated.

Research in the reaction of the human nervous system to heat and cold was demonstrated last night in a nation-wide television show originating in the physiology department at St. Louis University School of Medicine, 1402 South Grand boulevard.

During the half-hour program, which was televised by the ABC network to 30 stations, Dr. Alrick B. Hertzman, director of the physiology department, explained the climate chamber, or "hot box" where the reactions of volunteer students subjected to intense heat are recorded and studied.

The program, carried here by Station KTVI (channel 36) also dealt with development of Air Force survival suits based on studies in the climate chamber and experiments in the response of blood vessels to cold.

One of the five cameras used to televise the program took the audience into the 110-degree climate chamber where "sweat capsules" were measuring the amount of perspiration coming from a student, Joseph Carron of St. Genevieve.

'Patterns of Sweating.'

With the aid of a student dressed in an Air Force survival suit, Dr. Hertzman illustrated developments in insulating and ventilating the suit that came as a result of studies in the climate chamber which have established "patterns of sweating."

Experiments in the response of blood vessels were shown in a room where graphs recorded the reaction of blood vessels in the nose and fingertips of a student seated on a chair with his feet in a pan of water.

Dr. K. B. Coldwater, St. Louis surgeon, described how the climate chamber enabled him to learn why a patient with a blood vessel disorder in his leg was not being cured.

Tests in the chamber showed the patient's leg perspired, indicating that not all of the nerve fibers had been cut in a previous operation. Further surgery was performed and the ailment was cured.

Others on Program.

Appearing on the program, besides Dr. Hertzman and Dr. Coldwater, were Dr. Iain Ferguson, associate professor of physiology, Dr. William Geber, assistant professor of physiology, Dr. Theodore Cooper, post-doctorate fellow at the university, Francis LeClair, research assistant, and six student volunteers.

The program was the eighth in a "Medical Horizon" series on achievements in research sponsored by the American Medical Association and pharmaceutical products firm in Summit, N.J.

After the telecast, the association and the firm jointly presented a television award to the school for "outstanding contribution to public understanding of medicine." Dr. James W. Colbert Jr., dean of the school, accepted the award in ceremonies at Hotel Chase.

WINNERS OF LASKER AWARDS ANNOUNCED

Dr. Karl Paul Link, Dr. Robert D. Defries Honored for Medical Research.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—A Wisconsin biochemist who discovered an anti-blood clotting agent and a Canadian researcher who first developed methods for large-scale production of Salk polio vaccine were named winners of 1955 Albert Lasker awards yesterday.

They are Dr. Karl Paul Link, professor of biochemistry at the University of Wisconsin, and Dr. Robert D. Defries, former director of the Connaught Research Laboratories of the University of Toronto. Each will get a $1000 cash prize.

The awards are presented annually for outstanding achievement in medical research in the fight against major diseases and for distinguished service in public health administration. Dr. Link was cited for his discovery of the anti-coagulant, dicumarin, and its successor drugs used to combat intravascular clotting, thrombosis and pulmonary embolism.

He also was cited for his discovery of the rodenticide, warfarin, which has become important in international public health work.

Dr. Defries, who with his colleagues at Connaught developed means for large-scale production of vaccine used in the first Salk polio field trials in this country and Canada in 1954, was cited for "distinguished leadership" in preventive medicine and public health.

Formal presentation of the awards is to be made Nov. 17 in Kansas City, with former President Harry S. Truman as speaker.

The awards were set up under a foundation established by the late Albert Lasker, an advertising executive who died in 1952, to foster medical research and public education on major diseases.

Clark Calvin Griffith.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (UP)—

CLARK CALVIN GRIFFITH was one of the very last of his kind, a baseball pioneer who grew up in the dugout, who played a major role in shaping the industry as it exists today, who passed 68 years in the game and from the age of 17 to his death, never knew or wanted any life outside the game.

As proprietor of the Washington Senators, he ran a cheese-paring, string-saving operation. He was trying to promote major league baseball in one of the smallest cities in the major leagues. He was not one of the modern breed of club owners with a personal fortune that enabled him to indulge a hobby for baseball or support a team as an advertising medium or write off baseball losses as tax deductions. Baseball was his only means of support and his only means of supporting all the relatives whom he placed in the front office, in the concessions department, and even—in the case of his niece's husband, Joe Cronin—in the manager's office.

So Griffith scrounged and scraped and his scouts combed the Cuban canyons for low-priced players to perform in a run-down park that was not only under-staffed but also staffed inefficiently, because so many of the employees were pensioners who had played for Griffith and found some other way to put a personal claim on him. He was probably the most loyal friend and the stubbornest man on the Eastern seaboard.

For this, he was often abused as a tightwad.

Pronounced 'Gambler.'

IT'S a question of definition.

At the age of 42, Griffith hooked his ranch in Montana and put up everything he had, including cash savings of $800,000, 10 per cent of the Washington franchise, which had been in the bottomless pit for investments since the Civil War.

In 1913 it was the height of financial hyperbole to refer to four players as "Connie Mack's $100,000 infield." That year Griffith gave Frank Navin of Detroit a check for $100,000 to bolster an offer to buy one player, name of Ty Cobb. He didn't have the money in the bank, but he would have made good if Navin hadn't rejected the offer.

When Griffith was 50, he borrowed $87,000 on the strength of his bushy eyebrows to buy control of his team and become president.

The list of his known charities was endless. The total of his unknown benefactions is, obviously, beyond reckoning. Much depends on how you define "lightwad."

Birth of a League.

"WASHINGTON—first in war, first in peace, was last in the American League. If that wit-cism wasn't what killed vaudeville, it'll have to take the blame until somebody offers a more poisonous gag.

Chances are, however, that the line was convulsing audiences even before Griffith got to the capital, for he didn't have the original copyright on terrible terms.

Two years before his arrival, there was a fire in the American League park which, the District of Columbia fire chief said, must have been started by a plumber's blow torch.

The chief is probably right," said Joe Cantillon, who'd been fired as the Senator's manager, "and the plumber was probably playing third base."

That's how it was when Griffith arrived in Washington and that's how it was when he departed. In between, he had some good ball clubs and some great ball players. He figured to do all right, for nobody had a richer background or a more agile mind or more varied experiences of baseball than Griffith.

He was born in a log cabin near Clear Creek, Mo., on what was then the frontier. He was left fatherless at 11.

At 17 he was a professional pitcher for Bloomington, Ill. He became a star pitcher for Pop Anson's Chicago Colts and, subsequently, a star with the Cubs who succeeded the Colts.

Without him, there might never have been an American League. With Ban Johnson and Charley Comiskey, he conspired to form the new organization to buck the established National League.

Griff was a militant leader of the Players' Protective Association, "You got the backing," he told Johnson, "and I'll get the players."

Ban did and Griffith did, and that's why there is an American league. Griffith managed the first Yankee teams, called the highlanders. He had left New York and was managing Cincinnati when the Washington opening came.

CONNIE MACK always enjoyed telling of his first trip to a Southern training camp with his first big league club, which was Washington, incidentally. The manager took them to the town's first class hotel, which turned them away. They tried the second class hotel and were brushed off. They went to a third class joint where management agreed to admit them on their promise not to associate with the other guests.

That's how ballplayers were regarded when Connie broke in and when Griffith broke in. Connie gloried in baseball's rise to respectability. Maybe Griffith did, too, and maybe he didn't. In 1898 a newspaper predicted: "Clark Griffith bids fair to be the first man held up to the public as a rowdy under the new British law."

Michigan Still No. 1 in Coaches' Book, Irish Rise to Sixth

U.C.L.A., Spartans Also Move Up Notch

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (UP)—

Michigan's "thrill a minute" Wolverines, who score their football victories with a script out of an old-time movie melodrama, topped the United Press ratings today for the fourth week in a row.

Oklahoma beat out Maryland for the No. 2 ranking by a slim margin, and Georgia Tech, West Virginia, and Texas Christian University moved into this week's top 10 selected by the 35 leading coaches who make up the United Press rating board.

(In the Associated Press Poll, Maryland was No. 1, followed by Oklahoma and Michigan. Dr. E. E. Litkenhous in his Difference by Scores Ratings placed Oklahoma first, Michigan second and U.C.L.A. third.)

Over Dame's 21-7 victory over Navy and upset defeats suffered by Auburn, Southern California and Texas A.M. caused the shakeup in the coaches' top 10. The Middies dropped from fourth to tenth, giving U.C.L.A. Michigan State and Notre Dame an opportunity to advance one notch each to the respective fourth, fifth and sixth rankings.

Top Three in Close Race

For the second successive week, a comparatively few points separated the three top teams. Michigan's comeback power, which overcame a 14-point halftime deficit and produced a 33-21 victory over Iowa before a nation-wide television audience, helped Coach Bennie Oosterbaan's Wolverines increase their lead from last week's six points to 10 this week.

This was the fourth game in the past five that the Wolverines were called on to come through with their best football in the second half in order to preserve their perfect record.

As a result, 15 coaches picked Michigan tops in the country. Oklahoma received only seven first-place votes compared to eight for Maryland, but the Sooners attracted more votes for succeeding places and edged the Terrapins, 291 points to 289. Michigan's total was 301 points.

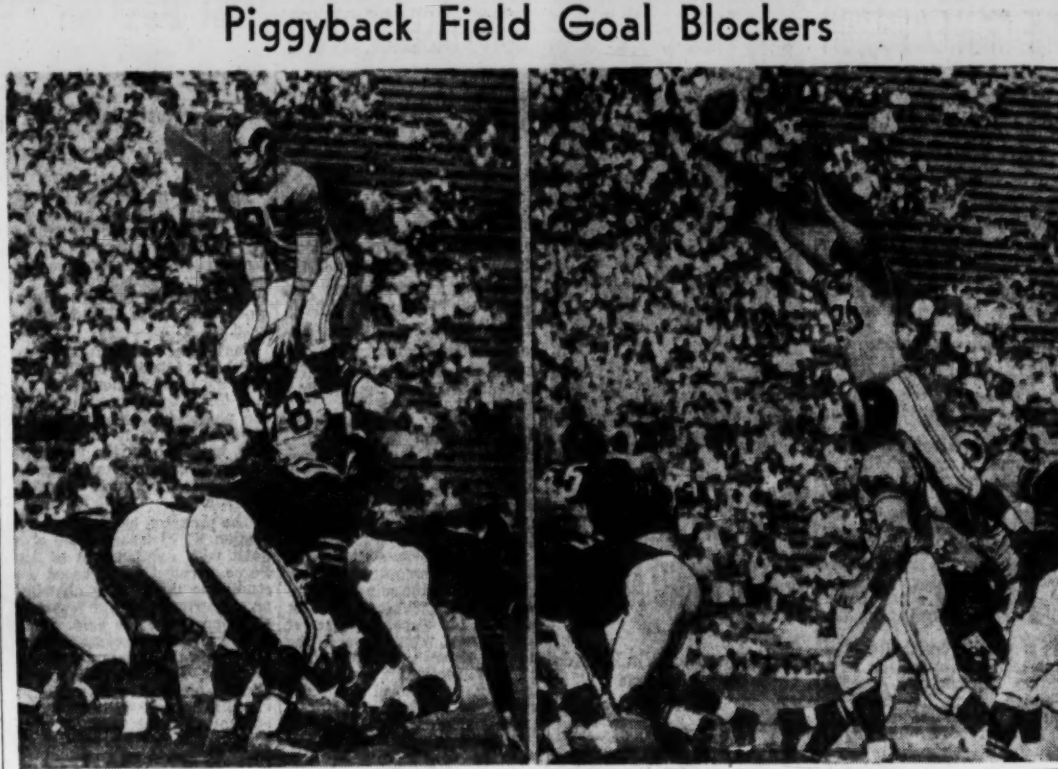

Fourth-ranked U.C.L.A. had three first-place votes and fifth-ranked Michigan State received the remaining two. Points, based on 10 for a first-place ballot, nine for a second and so on down to one for a tenth-place vote, were distributed: U.C.L.A. 221; Michigan State 211; Notre Dame 202; Georgia Tech 117; West Virginia 77; Texas Christian 75, and Navy 53.

Tech Advances 5 Places.

Georgia Tech, West Virginia and T.C.U. made the biggest jumps this week as they knocked Auburn, Southern California and Texas A.M. out of the top 10. Georgia Tech moved up five places to the No. 7 ranking; West Virginia, making the season's first appearance in the select group, jumped three spots to No. 8.

U.C.L.A. advanced four places to No. 9. West Virginia, like Michigan, Oklahoma and Maryland, is undefeated and untied.

Next weekend's games most likely to shake up the top 10 are Michigan State vs. fourteenth-ranked Purdue and Navy vs. fifteenth-ranked Duke. Most of the other leading teams should be victorious. Michigan continues its Big Ten schedule against Illinois; Oklahoma seeks its twenty-sixth consecutive triumph in a Big Seven game

Piggyback field goal blockers were introduced into National League football when the Los Angeles Rams' 6-6 1/4-inch GENE LIPSCOMB held 6-4 DON BURROUGHS on his shoulders in a vain attempt to block a 48-yard field goal by George Blanda of the Chicago Bears.

Hayes Promises Co-operation In Inquiry Into Player Aid

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1 (UP)—Ohio State football Coach

Woody Hayes, content to let the investigators check his aid to players, today called on his team to improve for its game with Indiana here Saturday.

"The keynote of our work this week will be improvement," Hayes said. "We will play Indiana for keeps." Ohio and Michigan are nip-and-tuck for Big Ten honors, the two being the only unbeaten teams in league play.

To show that he wasn't fooling, Hayes had his squad put on practice uniforms and run through the first full-scale Monday workout of the season. The threat of rain this week and the rest his regulars got in the 40-0 romp over Northwestern Saturday helped influence his decision for a full-scale drill.

Hayes told reporters at lunch Monday he hadn't read newspaper accounts of his reported loans to football players. He said, however, he would be glad to "co-operate fully" with any faculty committee looking into the matter.

His "main concern is the continued improvement of our fine football team," he said. Reports of Hayes's loans were that he advanced money to players from funds he received for television appearances. University officials announced a committee had been appointed sometime ago to investigate the university's athletic program.

Comment by Athletic Head. In Chicago, Ohio State Athletic Director Dick Larkins said he did not know whether Hayes "gives or lends money" to football players.

"Whether or not he gives or lends money to players, I can not tell you," Larkins said. "If a kid asked for 50 cents, I imagine Woody would give it to him. I have never seen Woody give a boy anything, and I seriously hope nothing comes from it."

Larkins called Ohio State's athletic program "very clean and wholesome," but added he was sure the institution "has made some mistakes."

"We want the kids from our own state to come to our own university because we like to win," he said. "I would not say we are not aggressive, because we are."

Larkins said a faculty committee was organized last spring to study the conduct of athletics, but he pointed out it was not an investigating body, but one to study the program.

Hayes Praises Players. Coach Hayes praised numerous players for their play against Northwestern. He said Northwestern rated high defensively in the Big Ten and he was "pleasantly surprised" the hunters yesterday found only one bird for every 25 which had been in the marshes last week.

Yanks Triumph, 7-0, For Seventh Victory

NAGOYA, Japan, Nov. 1 (AP)—The New York Yankees

trimmed Japan's Chunichi Dragons 7-0 today behind the three-hit pitching of righthander Johnny Kucks and Tom Sturdivant.

It was the Yanks' seventh win without a loss in a tour of Japan. The Yankees got eight hits, including a two-run homer into right field by first baseman Eddie Robinson in the fourth inning.

A crowd of some 30,000, including many United States service men, saw the game. Among the backs, Hayes complimented Cassidy, Halfback Jim Roseboro, Reserves Joe Cannavino and Lee Williams. He also announced that Don Vico, fullback sidelined since the second game with an injury, would start against Indiana, replacing Galen (Clisco Kid) Cisco.

Offense Drills For Tigers for Sooner Battle

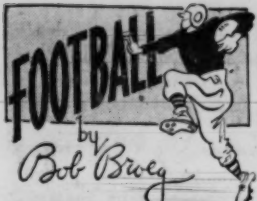

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 1 (AP)—The University of Missouri

football squad back from Colorado and its first victory of the year, limbered up for half an hour yesterday afternoon, but will do full duty today on offense as it begins to prepare for its home game with Oklahoma here this weekend.

Jim Hunter, quarterback who appeared to be the moving spark in Saturday's victory, came through the game without damage to his long-ailing leg, Faurot said, but another quarterback, Bill Griep, was lost for the season with a leg injury. Gene Roll is on the doubtful list. The starting fullback suffered a pinched shoulder nerve which forced him from the game at Boulder Saturday.

Oklahoma beat Kansas State 40-7 last week and came through the game without any major injuries. The Sooners met Missouri at Columbia Saturday.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 1 (AP)—The St. Joseph chapter of the Missouri University Alumni Association announced it is 100 per cent behind football

Oklahoma Faster Now, Even Between Plays.

AS IF the Red Wreckers from Oklahoma weren't awesome enough—Coach BUD WILKINSON has come up with a new wrinkle—the swift Sooners now are showing as much speed between plays as when the ball actually is in motion.

It's a speed-up in which the trim, rawhide sons of the red-clay country are sufficiently conditioned and deep enough in talent to stand the strain. Against Colorado, for instance, Oklahoma ran no fewer than 97 plays to 57 for the Buffs, a two-team total of 154. By contrast, Illinois and Purdue managed only 122 last Saturday when the Illini's game total of 40 was exactly the number Oklahoma used in just the first half the previous week.

The ability of the Sooners to bounce up offensively after a play is over, hurry into the huddle, hurry out again and start a new play, frequently on a signal of "set" rather than on a specific count, is Wilkinson's effort to make the most of his opportunities. He believes each team has the ball 12 to 14 times in a game and the longer Oklahoma has it, the less time the opponent obviously will have possession. And it's customary to score with the ball.

As for the Colorado game, Oklahoma fell behind in the second quarter, 14 to 0, made only one first down the first 20 minutes and yet at the end of 30 playing minutes—half-time—the Sooners had run off 16 more plays than the Buffs and owned a 21-14 lead. "We didn't say anything in the huddle to JIMMY HARRIS (quarterback)," said TOMMY McDONALD, All-America halfback candidate Missouri must meet Saturday at Columbia. "We were behind and we just all knew we had to pour on the coal and get things ever with."

Over the goal-line, that is.

Around the Gridirons.

MURRAY WARMATH, whose sophomore-laden Minnesota lineup upset Southern California in the snow at Minneapolis, 25 to 19, had been asked whether the Golden Gophers could stop the Trojans' tailback JON ARNETT. "I'm neutral," rebel Warmath drawled, "I don't say we'll win; I won't say we'll lose."

ROOSEVELT GRIER, 268-pound star rookie tackle of the pro football New York Giants, does it all, except an empty stomach. "I can't eat breakfast the day of a game, I've got a nervous stomach," said the 22-year-old former Penn State lineman. "If you saw the Michigan-Iowa thriller on television from Ann Arbor last Saturday, did you notice anything unusual? Such as the absence of a homecoming queen. It's an unwritten law at Michigan, stronger than a printed regulation, that no queens are selected and, as a result, no coed even represents the university in the Miss Big Ten competition."

Unless Northwestern can beat Wisconsin, Purdue or Illinois, a formidable threesome, the Wildcats will become the first Big Ten team to go through a season without a victory since Chicago in 1918. . . . ED DANOWSKI, former Fordham and pro football halfback left stranded as coach when his alma mater dropped the sport last December, now is physical education instructor and directs two teams at a junior high school in East Meadow, N.Y. "No alumni, no spring practice and home by 5 o'clock for bedtime every night," chuckled Danowski. "Why didn't somebody tell me about this sooner?"

BENNIE OOSTERBAAN, who ought to know, labeled Michigan's RON KRAMER and TOM MARENTZ as the two greatest ends in the country following the Wolverines' come-from-behind victory over Iowa. Oosterbaan, Michigan coach, was named end on an all-time football team selected by the Associated Press in 1950 to commemorate the half-century.

Quick Kicks.

WISCONSIN'S 27-0 loss to Michigan State marked coming set back in seven years and the first time they've dropped three straight games under Coach JIM WILLIAMSON. . . . If at first you don't succeed, call on JIM SOLTESZ. A reserve quarterback at Gettysburg, he missed two field goal tries before kicking one from 15 yards out to beat Lafayette, 15-14.

Speaking of kicking, reader NORBERT THURMER, a St. Louisan who served in the Marines with ART MICHAEL, Pittsburgh Steeler placekicker, corrects an impression given here that Michael is a rookie in pro football. . . . STU HOLCOMB, Purdue's ach, has a son nicknamed Chip who scored four touchdowns, passed for a fifth and kicked five extra points in a recent Lafayette (Ind.) high school game. . . . A boy named DOUG TILLS is a backfield star at Galesburg (Ill.) high. His father, COKE MILLS, former Illinois basketball star in the late '30s, named his boy for DOUG MILLS, Illini athletic director.

Paramount Winners. Arthur Kyle and Jesse Montgomery had a score of 89 to capture the Paramount Golf Club's "turkey tournament," a Scotch foursome 18-hole event at Forest Park. William Pollard and Henry Robison had 92 for runner-up honors.

Santee to Appeal Suspension by Valley A.A.U. Committee

Miler Got $1200 for 3 Meets

QUANTICO, Va., Nov. 1 (AP)

—Marine Lt. Wes Santee, America's star miler, was poised today to fight a permanent suspension as an amateur athlete which would bar him from the 1956 Olympics.

Santee, a former University of Kansas runner, said last night he planned an immediate appeal of the suspension voted Sunday by the Missouri Valley A.A.U. registration committee. It said he had accepted excessive expense allowances for competing in three California track meets last May.

An official of the registration group said it was found Santee received $1200 in all from sponsors of the three meets, whereas A.A.U. rules allow amateur runners up to $15 a day in expenses, plus travel costs.

Receives Word at Base.

Word of the suspension action reached Santee yesterday at his Marine Corps base where he is stationed. He said he had never done anything to violate amateur athletic standards.

The committee gave Santee, the American mile record holder, five days to appeal its 5-2 action to the Missouri Valley A.A.U.'s board of managers. Santee said at his home in Tri-angel, near here, he was "in the process" of preparing that appeal and he indicated it probably would be in the mail by today. Santee did not say what the appeal would contain.

If the suspension sticks, Santee would not be able to compete in next year's Olympic games in Australia. This obviously was uppermost in his mind.

"I would hate to miss the Olympics," he told an interviewer.

The registration committee informed Santee in a telegram that it had concluded "You had violated the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union relative to expenses allowable for travel and subsistence. . . . Thus, it told Santee he was suspended 'from further competition as an amateur athlete.'"

The committee said its action stemmed from expenses received for competing in meets at Fresno, Los Angeles and Modesto, May 11-22.

In Kansas City, Theo Bland, acting chairman of the Valley A.A.U. registration group, said Santee's travel permits and expense accounts showed he was paid $450 by the Fresno Relays committee, $350 by the Coliseum Relays committee of Los Angeles and $400 by the Modesto committee.

Bland said that, exclusive of travel expenses, the A.A.U. allows athletes competing in sanctioned meets $12 a day to meet living costs. He said another $3 a day may be charged off to "incidentals" expenses.

(Santee told the United Press he "never made demands of any promoter. I have always accepted whatever they thought my expenses should be" for higher, for the board of governors of the National A.A.U. Santee said he would appeal to the national body if his Valley appeal fails.

Some Missouri Valley committee members, declining to be quoted by name, said they felt certain the ruling would be upheld.

The Santee case could develop into the A.A.U.'s most important eligibility action since 1913 when the late Jim Thorpe was stripped of his Olympic medals and his records erased from the record books for playing baseball for pay in 1910.

Earlier yesterday two members of the registration body, one who had voted for the suspension and another who had voted against it, indicated there was a good chance Santee would be vindicated by the A.A.U.'s higher powers.

Kenneth Sells, of Kansas City, said that while the committee felt Santee's expense money was in excess of what he should have received, champions "are expected to go first class, stay in the best hotels and eat in the best places." Sells also said he felt Santee had a good chance of being reinstated by the time the National A.A.U. convention rolls around at Louisville, Ky., Dec. 1-4.

"Antiquated A.A.U. Rules." Bill Grigsby of Kansas City, one of two committee members voting against the suspension, charged that "many of the antiquated rules of the A.A.U. require modernization to present day standards of living."

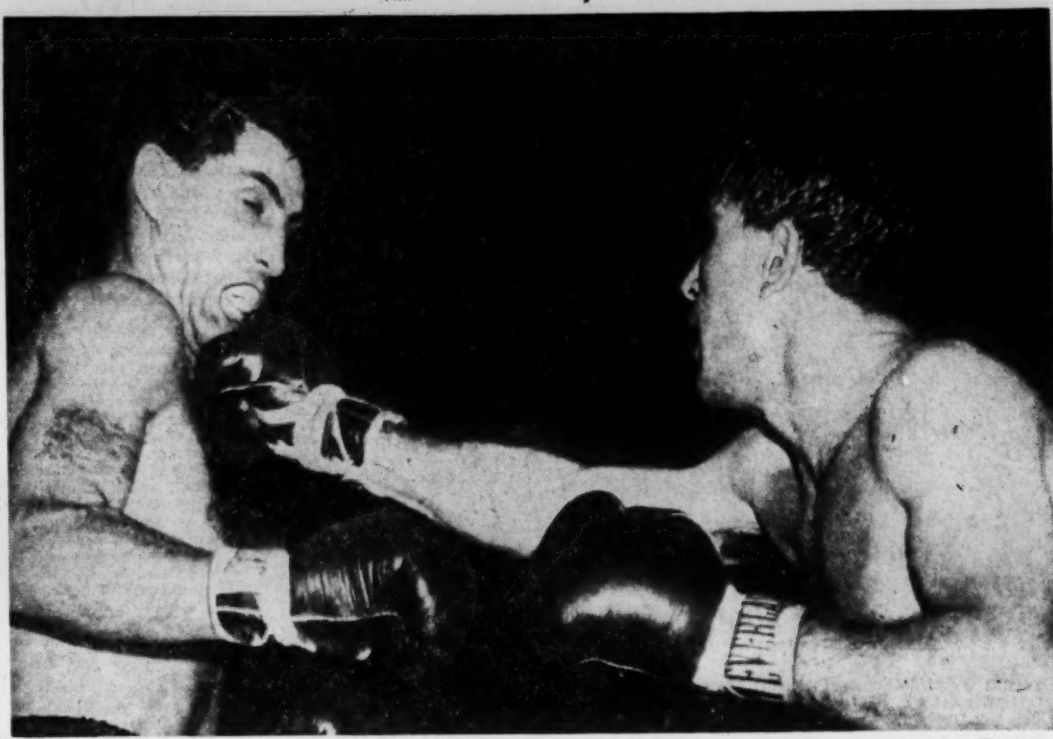

"Despite the fact that Santee has been charged with violation of certain sections of the Amateur Athletic Union rules, I am certain that these same rules have been violated many times in the past by both registered members of the A.A.U. and promoters of A.A.U. sanctioned events," Grigsby said.

"In my opinion a severe reprimand of both Santee and certain meet promoters who arranged for Santee's appearances, would have been sufficient penalty at the time," Grigsby continued. "The decision as handed down by the majority of the committee must lead to many more investigations of rules violations by other athletes."

DANNY GIOVANELLI of Brooklyn is on the receiving end of a long right to the chin in the second round of their Hallo-ween bout at St. Nicholas Arena, but he proved too experienced for PAOLO MELIS of Italy. Ritenour Drubs Ferguson in Final Tuneup for Kirkwood

Ritenour is all set for his Nov. 11 date with undefeated Kirkwood High. John Moore's Huskies, on their own gridiron, last night defeated Ferguson, 25-6, in a non-league game, their last tuneup before taking on Kirkwood, the powerful Suburban League leaders.

Ritenour's engagement with Ferguson was postponed from last Friday as were three other games. Brentwood, a Suburban Little Six entry, walloped Lindbergh, 39-6, and St. Charles, 34-0. The Sixer, drubbed Hazelwood, 32-0, in non-league competition.

Bethalto was upset by Carlinville, 19-7, on the Carlinville field. Bob Burda, Ritenour quarterback, scored two touchdowns and accounted for another on a 34-yard pass play to Manfred Crawford in the third quarter. In the same period, Burda scampered 52 yards for another tally.

Selvy, Ricketts Slowed; Hawks Lose Exhibition

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 1—Frank Selvy and Dick Ricketts, counted on heavily by the St. Louis Hawks, got only one field goal between them last night, so Bob Pettit's 33-point performance went for naught in a 97-91 pro basketball exhibition loss to the Philadelphia Warriors.

The same teams resume their pre-season series here tonight after playing to a full house of 12,500 at Toronto's Maple Leaf Garden last night. Tomorrow night they will be opponents in Hamilton, Ontario.

Selvy, the former Furman College star who broke into the pro ranks sensationally last season with an 18-points-per-game average, was shut out by the Warriors. Ricketts had four free throws and one field goal.

"I've got to keep playing Selvy because he'll get his shooting eye back," Coach Red Holzman said. "Ricketts has been good off the boards but isn't taking enough shots."

Besides sinking nine baskets and 15 free throws, Pettit had 40 rebounds, one more than the National Basketball Association record.

After jumping to an early lead, the Hawks were tied at halftime, 43-43. However, big boys Chuck Share and Ricketts fouled out early in the final period and the Warriors pulled away.

The Hawks open the regular season against the Minneapolis Lakers at Kiel Auditorium Saturday night.

South American Entry In International Race

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 1 (AP)—A South American horse, 4-year-old Prensade de Venezuela, was made a late entry today for the Washington (D.C.) International horse race at Laurel Nov. 11.

Prensade, owned by Jose Federico Siccardi, gained a bid by winning the Simon Bolivar, big event of his country, Sunday.

Prensade, winner of five straight, is the eighth foreign entry to compete against Clifford Moore's Traffic Judge and another United States entry still to be named. Darius and Nucleus from England, Panaslipper from Ireland and Prefect from Canada arrived yesterday. Other entries are Picounda and Mahan from France, and Ataturk from Germany.

Calvin Griffith New President Of Senators

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (UP)

—Calvin R. Griffith, adopted son of the "Old Fox," was elected president of the Washington Baseball Club today, succeeding the late Clark Griffith.

The club's board of directors announced that Griffith was elected on the motion of H. Gabriel Murphy, a minority stockholder of the club.

Other officers remained unchanged. Wooten E. Young retained his post as vice president; Murphy, treasurer, E. B. Enyon Jr., secretary and John E. Powell, assistant secretary.

Calvin Griffith had been executive vice president of the club before the death last week of Clark Griffith following a massive stomach hemorrhage with complications.

Baseball's beloved elder statesman was buried here yesterday with more than 700 friends and baseball greats paying their last respects.

In announcing their decision, the directors said they are "determined to do everything to develop a winning team for the

Deepdale Becomes Unhappy Knoll ---Links Champion Handicapped At 18, Swings Calcutta Killing

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—A golfing hoax in a $45,000 "Black Calcutta" tournament at a swank Long Island Country Club was reported today by the New York World-Telegram & Sun.

It said Charles (Bud) Helmar, 37, a West Springfield, Mass., factory worker and champion golfer, had played under another man's name in teaming with William Roberts, of Amherst, Mass., and easily winning the tournament.

The newspaper said Helmar had admitted posing as Richard Vitali, a Springfield, Mass., insurance man, in the Deepdale Golf Club tournament at Great Neck on Sept. 18-19.

It quoted Helmar as saying Roberts paid him $100 to do it. Roberts was described as unavailable for comment, and club officials could not be reached. Vitali said he knew nothing of his name being used until afterward.

Uninvited Guest.

The story by Sports Writer Lawrence Robinson, said a check for $4026.73 was sent to Roberts as a one-quarter share of the winning pool before it was known Helmar was a "ringer."

Deepdale gave Helmar, Springfield public links champion, a $4026.73 check in the belief he was Vitali. Roberts had a 17 stroke handicap.

How Helmar got into the tournament without his credentials being examined thoroughly is only one of the puzzling aspects of the case.

Another is how Roberts was invited. Nobody at Deepdale professes to have invited him. The names of most of those invited to play in the tournament were on a printed list. Roberts' name had been written in by hand—as were the names of several others.

The newspapers said the Deepdale Club has compared the handwriting of its members with that in which Roberts' name was written, but without result.

Muttering about the tournament began soon after it got under way. Many of the players complained at the liberal handicaps given to the eventual winners, who obviously were superior players.

A Calcutta pool is played this way: Each team is auctioned to persons who want to back it. The amount bid goes into a total pool, in the Deepdale case about $45,000. The net was about $36,000 after charity deductions and dinner costs.

Harry Wismer Named. Winning ticket holders are rewarded on a percentage basis. Thirty-five per cent of the net pool at Deepdale went to the "syndicate," which had won the Helmar-Roberts team in the auction.

In this case, the winning ticket was worth $16,016.93. The World-Telegram and Sun said Richard Armstrong of the Sands Point Club held 60 per cent of this and that Broadcaster Harry Wismer, Mrs. Dan Dayton, Bud Sedlmeyer and Summer Water each received 10 per cent after a one-quarter share was sent to Roberts.

Players in the tournament were amateurs who stood to receive no money unless they held auction shares in themselves.

Four Soccer Cup Matches Are Scheduled Here Sunday

Necaxa and Kutis Play Saturday

By Dent McSkimming
Launching the local phase of two national soccer championship tournaments, eight clubs will engage in four cup matches, Sunday. Each of the four, two national Amateur games and two Open Cup contests, will be on a different grounds.

The schedule, as announced by Harry Luecke, national cup commissioner for this area, follows:

AMATEUR—Jones Club (county league) vs. Amvets of Dogtown (Municipal) at Fee Gardens, 2 p.m.; St. Plus (C.Y.C. League) vs. Jack Diamonds (Khoury) at Cherokee Park, 1 p.m.

OPEN CUP—Liberty (Khoury) vs. Carondelet (Mun) at Fairground, Grounds Two, 2 p.m.; Spanish Society (Mun) vs. St. Ambrose (C.Y.C.) at Carondelet, Grounds One, 2 p.m.

In addition to the above named clubs, the following drew first-round byes:

AMATEUR—Fee Fee, Carondelet, Everton, Holy Rosary, Kutis, Liberty, Meramec, Brenheny, Richmond Heights, St. Agatha, St. Ambrose, Simpkins and Spanish Society.

OPEN—Amvets, Diamonds, Simpkins, Kutis, Meramec and Jones Club.

At Kansas City on Nov. 13, a Lincoln, Nebraska club will oppose a Kansas City team in a first-round Amateur Cup match, the winner to be drawn against a St. Louis team in the second round, Luecke said.

Necaxa Won 10 of Last 14
Chicago's all-Mexican team, Necaxa, which gave an entertaining performance here last season, comes back Saturday night to try to even its account with the Kutis club. In the months since their previous appearance here, the Necaxa players have made real progress. A year ago they were just one of eight teams in the Chicago First Division. In the season just closed, they finished second in that division which means that they have earned promotion to the Chicago Major League. There they will join the city's best clubs while two (probably Sparta and Rangers) will drop to the First Division.

Necaxa won 10 of its last 14 league games, tied 3 and lost only one.

Suit Sought by Sox

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 1 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox baseball club yesterday asked dismissal of a $25,000 damage suit against the club in Pulaski Circuit Court here.

The suit was brought by Tom Glover of North Little Rock on behalf of his 14-year-old son, Tommy. The action charged that the teen-ager was struck by Chicago first baseman Walt Dropo during an exhibition game here April 6.

In its answer to Glover's suit, the White Sox denied all allegations, contended that the court is without jurisdiction and asked for dismissal of the suit.

Irish Rely on Old-Fashioned Power and Ball Control to Win

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 1 (AP)—Notre Dame, shunning razzle-dazzle football, is relying on old-fashioned power and ball control in pounding away to another successful season.

Hopes of an undefeated season vanished with a 21-7 loss to Michigan State but Notre Dame appears well on its way towards duplicating last year's 9-1 record.

Navy was a big hurdle Saturday for the Irish who now face weaker opposition in Penn and North Carolina before finishing up against Iowa and Southern California.

After the 21-7 triumph over Navy, Irish Coach Terry Brennan said: "The main difference was in those seven guys up front. They opened the holes and we controlled the ball."

Control the ball they did. Notre Dame had the ball for 79 plays and ran 63. The harassed Middles tried 32 running plays and went to the air 26 times. Navy had 13 completed passes and three Notre Dame interceptions.

Throughout the season in which the Irish have won five of six games, ball control has been the story with the idea you can't lose if you keep the ball.

This calls for a powerful ground attack in which Notre Dame excels. In six games this year the Irish have picked up 1626 yards on the ground for a 271-yard average. Against Navy, Notre Dame backs piled up 323 yards on the ground.

Fullback Don Schaefer is the key man. "He's the most underrated and certainly best player I've seen around," says Brennan. "When he's not carrying, he's blocking. He threw the main block in Aubrey Lewis's touchdown run."

Lewis came off the bench for his first and only play against

20 Players to Try for Mizzou Baskets Team

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 1—Coach Wilbur N. (Sparky) Stalcup expects a 20-man squad, including seven lettermen from last year's second-place team and six sophomores, to report for basketball practice at Missouri today.

Replacing Bob Reiter, 6-9 center and leading scorer, and Medford Park, sharp-shooting forward, will be the biggest problem. John Stephens, 6-6½-inch junior from Coffeyville, Kan., and Charles Denny, 6-5½ Fayette senior, along with Arnold Kaestner, 6-6½-inch Cleveland junior, appear to be the best prospects for the pivot post vacated by Reiter. Stephens was out of competition last year because of a back operation.

Redford Reichert of Calhoun, Lionel Smith of Madison and Norman Stewart of Shelbyville, are three-year veterans with the team, bolstered by experienced players like Denny, Eddie Richards of West Plains, Eddie Ronik of Washington and Bill Ross of Kansas City. Kaestner won a provisional letter last year.

In addition to Stephens, the most sophomore help is expected from Jim Cotter, 6-1, Booneville; Rodger Egelhoff, 6-3, Jerseyville, Ill.; Larry Luecke, 6-2, Warrenton; Jon Paden, 6-2, Wheaton, and Paul Stehr, 6-1, Cape Girardeau.

Among last year's reserves who will be available are Gene Rooney, Thayer; Truman Blackman, Jackson; Kent Henson, Oran; Dick Jensen, Kansas City; Herb Morgan, Kansas City, and Jim Prewitt, Waynesville.

White Sox to Begin Training on Feb. 20

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (UP)—The Chicago White Sox will open spring training in Tampa, Fla., Feb. 20, 1956, with all pitchers, catchers and a few other invited members of the roster, Vice President Charles A. Comiskey announced.

Comiskey said about "18 or 20" other players from the Sox farm system also would report then. Pitchers, catchers and the farm personnel will work out about 10 days before the infielders and outfielders arrive. The club will reach full strength on March 1.

Manager Marty Marion said he would hold two-a-day workouts beginning March 1 until March 10 when the exhibition season will begin.

U.S. Economy Today

SAMPLING OF CORPORATE REPORTS

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP).

THE AVERAGE American corporation is making one third more money this year than last. Six out of every seven corporations so far reporting their net profit after taxes in the first nine months of this year show increases over the like period of 1954.

Sam Dawson

THIS YEAR'S GAIN OVER LAST WAS 32.9 PER CENT.

In the 1954 period many businesses were touching bottom of a mild recession, but even so corporate profits for the entire year of 1954 managed to pull ahead of 1953 by 4 per cent. Only 62 of the 451 reported smaller earnings this year than last. Five of the 451 operated at a loss. In the 1954 period 18 of the same 451 companies had gone into the red. Corporate reports are flowing in peak volume now, and this first sampling of the 451 early birds can be only an indication of what the final totals will be when several hundred thousand have reported. The 44 railroads in the sampling had particularly pleasant results to report. Only four declined, and these were in areas hard hit by storms and flood damage. The average increase for all 44 was 58.6 per cent. Some did much better than the average, particularly those serving the industrial Midwest and mid-Atlantic states.

THE 30 UTILITIES HAD A COMBINED INCREASE of 9 per cent—continuing the slow but steady gains of this growing but regulated industry. The 374 industrial corporations in the list show a combined increase in profits of 33.6 per cent over the first nine months of 1954. Most spectacular gain was made by the group of seven coal companies—up 181.3 per cent this year. This was partly because their business was quite good this year, but mainly because it was so very bad last year, by comparison. Steel companies showed striking gains. The 31 in the group averaged 84.9 per cent higher, with many doing much better than the average. The nonferrous mining and metal-working companies gained by 48 per cent. Sparked by General Motors' record showing, the motors group averaged 55.7 per cent higher than last year. Fourteen auto equipment suppliers did even better, up 91.5 per cent.

AIRLINES WERE AVERAGING 87.9 PER CENT better profitwise than the year before. But the seven aircraft companies so far reporting show four off from last year, and the group averaging a decline of 9.8 per cent. Recent large orders from the airlines should turn the tide soon for the airplane boys. The squeeze on profits in the food industry finds seven of the 21 so far reporting down from last year, and the group as a whole just about even with 1954 figures. Textile firms, on the other hand, as a group last year by 27.5 per cent. Other industries doing better than the 32.9 average of the 451 include: drugs, machinery and tools, building materials, glass and retail. Only a few of the 451 reported for the July, August and September quarter as well as for the nine months. But almost all that did, revealed that their summer business was better this year than last. And some companies added the cheery prediction that the rest of 1955 is going to be just as busy and profitable.

U. S. BONDS GAIN IN PRICE AND VOLUME

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Rail and industrial convertible issues held generally steady in light trading on the bond market today.

United States Treasury obligations gained slightly in both price and volume. The Victory 2 1/2s of December, 1972-67 were quoted in mid-afternoon at 96 3/32, up 3/32. The 40-year 3s were unchanged while the 30-year 3 1/4s added 1/32.

Greek and Japanese dollar liens slumped in a dull foreign list.

In new financing, the Maryland State Roads commission announced it will open bids Nov. 15 for $15,000,000 of highway construction bonds, second issue, Series H. The bonds, dated Nov. 1 will mature 1956 to 1970.

In the corporate field, American European Securities Co. is offering shareholders rights to subscribe to 91,875 common shares at $28 a share. Rights, expiring Nov. 22, are on the basis of one new share for each four held of record Oct. 31. Southern Co. has set a price of $17.50 a share on its proposed stockholder offering of 1,507,303 common shares. Subscription warrants, expiring Nov. 22, were mailed to holders of record today.

Odd Lot Transactions.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange reported today these odd lot transactions by principal dealers on the exchange for Oct. 31: purchases of 221,332 shares; sales of 170,186 shares including 737 shares sold short.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Quotations furnished by National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., which states they do not necessarily reflect actual transactions or firm bids or offers, but should indicate approximate prices, and, unless otherwise indicated, are as quoted by the sponsors or issuers. URGES OIL CONCERNS CUT IMPORTS 7 PCT.

Defense Mobilizer Suggests Voluntary Action Before Government Steps In.

Oil companies should make voluntary cuts of 7 per cent in crude oil imports from areas outside the Western Hemisphere, to avoid the possibility of government intervention, Defense Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming said here yesterday.

In a speech to the Independent Petroleum Association of America convention at Hotel Jefferson, Flemming said the cuts would be necessary to maintain a recommended balance between imported and domestic oil.

If too much oil is imported, he said, the Government feels the national defense would be endangered, because domestic companies would have "an inadequate incentive for exploration and the discovery of new sources of supply."

Flemming said that the Presidential Advisory Committee on Energy Supplies and Resources, which studied the problem, hoped that oil importers would act voluntarily so that the Government would not be forced to step in.

He said imports during the first nine months of 1955 were 70,000 barrels a day over the 1954 level, representing an excess of 51,000 barrels a day over what the advisory committee had recommended. This represented about 3 per cent of the total domestic demand, he added.

The 7 per cent cut suggested by Flemming was cut planned imports for the period ending Dec. 31. He said he was sending the recommendation to each importing company for guidance "on a voluntary basis."

In a speech today, A. I. Levorsen, a consulting petroleum geologist, said increasing amounts of oil must be discovered in North America, "if we are to survive under present world tensions."

Levorsen, former dean of the school of mineral sciences at Stanford University, said that present growth in oil consumption indicates that the country will require by 1980 twice as much oil as at present.

However, because of new ideas and techniques, he said, "I see no cause for alarm due to any expected shortage of petroleum supply in the foreseeable future in the United States."

Needs Expanding Rapidly. Robert E. Wilson of Chicago, board chairman of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), told the association that the oil industry need not fear competition from atomic energy.

"The country's needs for energy are expanding so rapidly—certainly more than doubling in the next 25 years—that the ultimate problem is not what fuel is going to be crowded out, but what can come along to help carry the rapidly growing load," he said.

Robert L. Wood, Midland, Tex., was named last night as president-elect of the association, to take office Jan. 1. W. L. Kistler Jr., Tulsa, Okla., was elected treasurer, and Russell B. Brown, Washington, and I. C. Huff Jr., Tulsa, were re-elected as general counsel and executive manager, respectively.

Four Dead in Explosion.

CLAYVILLE, N.Y., Nov. 1 (UP)—Four workmen lost their lives in the explosion of a paper-drying machine at the Superfine Paper Co. yesterday. Three were crushed to death under tons of debris and the fourth died last night in a Utica hospital.

WANDERING CHILD TO TRAINING SCHOOL

Father Freed of Charge of Abandoning Boy, 6, on Street Here.

Robert Russell, 6-year-old mentally retarded boy whose father was freed of a charge of abandoning him on a street here, today was placed in the St. Louis State Training School, 10695 Bellefontaine road, Bellefontaine Neighbors.

The boy was placed in the state institution by Circuit Judge David J. Murphy, judge of the juvenile court, who said the city would pay $5 a month toward his care there.

The child had been in City Hospital since he was found wandering in the 700 block of South Broadway on Sept. 7. The city took jurisdiction in his case because officials of Jefferson and Washington counties failed to do so.

The Russell boy's placement in the training school was accepted by school authorities. Superintendent Arthur A. Hines said. The institution provides care for mentally retarded and epileptic children in the age range of 5 to 20 years.

The child abandonment charge against the boy's father, Benjamin S. Russell, was dropped in court Sept. 27 by Associate Prosecuting Attorney Jasper R. Vetter, who said his office had developed "a deep sense of sympathy" for the defendant in view of circumstances that came to light after his arrest.

Russell, who said he had lived in both Washington and Jefferson counties last summer, testified he had made unsuccessful efforts to have his son placed in an institution and finally had left the boy on South Broadway near a beat patrolman, watching until the boy was picked up. At the trial, it was testified that the waiting list for admission to the St. Louis school and the one at Marshall—the state's two institutions for mentally retarded—totaled more than 1000. Both were said to be overcrowded.

ST. CHARLES KROGER STORE FORCED TO CLOSE BY STRIKE

The strike of 28 maintenance men against the Kroger Co., which began last Sept. 15 over a demand for a 50-cent hourly wage increase, forced the closing of the company's St. Charles store today.

Picketing began there last Friday but the company sent out a crew of supervisory personnel to keep the store open that day and Saturday in an effort to dispose of perishable items, the store manager, Ward Frank, said.

The store was open yesterday with the same crew but the absence of meats and other perishables, which had been obtained on the St. Charles market, forced the store to close, he said. The company's 52 stores in St. Louis and St. Louis county also are closed.

rushed to Madison, gave a flat ultimatum to Republican state senators that there would be no more campaign contributions if they didn't vote for the Reuss gerrymander. He was blunt and to the point. The G.O.P. caucus knew exactly where its members stood as far as campaign expenses were concerned.

More Influence. On top of this, William Grede, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, now Wisconsin G.O.P. finance chairman, has boasted that he will raise $1,000,000 to elect Republicans. He made his influence felt, too.

So the Republican caucus reversed itself, voted to consider the Reuss gerrymander. In order to pass it, however, it was necessary for several Republicans who had opposed the gerrymander to vote to suspend Senate rules in order to permit a vote. Harry Franke and Walter Mertens obliged. They voted to suspend the rules, then turned round and voted against the gerrymander. It passed.

It's now up to Gov. Kohler as to whether he signs or vetoes. Privately he was known to be opposed.

Kohler is now between two fires—big G.O.P. campaign contributors and rising public resentment in Wisconsin against carving up voting districts to oust one anti-McCarthy Democrat from Congress.

TIGHTER CREDIT POLICY DROPPED BY GOVERNMENT

Continued From Page One. high 2 1/4 per cent discount rate, further easing the supply of credit.

There are reports and rumors in Washington—that the decision nor affirmed by top policy makers—that there soon may be some easing of the restraints on housing credit which in recent months have brought cries of alarm from both home builders and lenders.

Bank Action. These reports were somewhat strengthened yesterday when the Home Loan Bank Board—central bank for savings and loan associations—announced it would lend to the associations to help them meet their previously made commitments for mortgage loans.

In doing so, Bank Chairman W. W. McAllister said recent heavy restrictions on its loan—had never been meant to shut off entirely credit for new mortgage loans.

Housing Commissioner Norman Mason suggested in a recent statement that he would favor a return to Government insurance of longer term, slow-down payment loans if the housing market should weaken. Private home building starts have slowed down a little under the impact of governmental credit restraint.

Over the weekend, presidential economic adviser Gabriel Hauge said on a television show that he is "not personally worried" about the ability of the economy to carry the current load of debt.

GAS-OIL TEAM

more miles per quart!

This lamp is burning the "DIRTY-BURNING" TAIL-END of gasoline which GULF refines out

This lamp is burning NEW SUPER-REFINED GULF NO-NOX, the clean-burning super-fuel

Gulf No-Nox Gasoline burns clean

Here's proof: Note the black deposit on plate at left, caused by the "dirty-burning tail-end" of gasoline—the part Gulf refines out in making New Super-Refined NO-NOX. But see how clean new NO-NOX leaves the plate at right. Now—in your own new 1956 car—see how clean-burning NO-NOX can give you more miles per gallon in the short-trip, stop-and-go driving you do most.

Gulfpride Select Oil works clean

Here's why: Most conventional oils are refined only to the stage shown in A. But New Gulfpride Select is further refined by the Alchlor Process—removing up to 15% more of the carbon-formers, in B...C contains the new oil that gives you more miles per quart because it has natural viscosity (body)—contains no artificial thickeners that break down in service.

REMEMBER: No gasoline alone can give you today's finest performance...no oil alone can give you today's finest protection. Get the new super-power GAS-OIL TEAM...

PLANNED TOWNS CONFRONTED BY ODD PROBLEMS

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (UP) —

Planned communities can run into strange problems. A survey being made by the American Society of Planning Officials turned up these examples:

Some of the postwar "company towns" in Canada—graciously laid out—are surrounded by a ring of slums. Since the sale of liquor is prohibited in the towns, taverns and poor housing cluster around the border.

The British National Government planned and approved the development of Stevenage, England, for a tenfold increase in population, from 6,000 to 60,000. But the residents weren't given any say in making the plans and it took a long court fight before the project went through.

In the United States, new planned communities such as Levittown, Pa., and Park Forest, Ill., discovered that most of the residents were about the same age. As a result, most of their children were in the same grades, and the lack of school facilities for those schooling classes will remain a problem through high school.

The society said that it is conducting the survey to find out how the communities planned and built after World War II are making out.

MILITARY COURT OF HONOR FINDS PERON GUILTY

fair With Teen-Ager, Strip Ex-Dictator of Rank.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 1 (AP)—A military court of honor today found Juan D. Peron guilty of "the gravest offenses," including an illicit love life with a teen-ager girl.

The verdict, announced after a closed hearing, stripped the deposed Argentine president of his title as general of the army and barred him from ever again wearing the Argentine uniform.

Five generals made up the court. The finding was signed by Provisional President Eduardo Lonardi as commander of the armed forces and by Army Minister Leon Justo Bengoa. Lonardi, a major general, led the September revolt that ousted Peron and led to his exile in Paraguay. The fallen dictator was tried in absentia.

Stiffest Penalties.
The punishments are the stiffest an honor court can decree. The generals declared they were astonished at Peron starting a courtship with a girl named "Nelly" Rivas when she was only 14 and living a "marital life" with her for two years at the presidential palace.

The court also accused Peron of taking advantage of his official post to enrich himself and live a life of luxury, of inciting violence and sowing hatred among Argentines. It found him guilty of disloyalty to the army by attacking the "very fundamentals of the basic institutions of the country to favor his own personal ends."

The provisional government, meanwhile, declared tomorrow and Wednesday holidays for bank, educational and administrative personnel. This continues a clampdown on foreign money exchange, at least until Thursday. The government apparently needs more time to prepare the complicated regulations required following its recent sweeping overhaul of the nation's trade and economic structure.

In its findings, the military tribunal declared genuine two letters from Peron to Nelly which were intercepted after the dictator took refuge aboard a Paraguayan gunboat in Buenos Aires harbor. On his arrival in neighboring Paraguay, Peron said the letters were forged.

Photos Released.
With the findings, the Army released two photographs of Peron with the girl. The court record said Peron "made a marital life with his minor of a modest home... living with her for almost two years in the presidential palace."

Asserting this was "known by servants of the residence as well as by certain high officials who went there frequently," the court said the fact that the affair began when Nelly was only 14 made it an offense under the common penal code. Peron showered the girl with gifts, including a $9000 house, many jewels—including some which had been presented to his late wife Eva—and 300,000 pesos (about $22,000) in cash, the court said. Eva Peron died of cancer in 1953.

The generals said Peron throughout his reign "shouted violent threats against one part of the population, offending the dignity of the inhabitants, sowing hatred and creating with his preaching an evident division of classes."

The court also declared it had the certain conviction that the burning of several Buenos Aires Catholic churches the night of an abortive revolt last June 16 "could not have occurred without Peron's order, or at least without his consent or tacit approval."

Burning of Churches.
Mob attacks that resulted in the burning of the churches came at the height of Peron's long feud with the church. The expulsion of two Argentine prelates from the country the day before the revolt led to Peron's excommunication by the church.

Noting that Peron blamed the Catholics for the burning of an Argentine flag in a demonstration June 11, the court said the flag actually was burned by federal police order and Peron "took no action against the culprits."

The General Confederation of Labor was reported to have ordered a nation-wide strike for tomorrow to back a demand for the ouster of anti-Peronist leaders who have seized control of many of its unions.

The confederation, which claims 6,000,000 members, was the backbone of Peron's support.

Leaders of the organization threatened a strike last week but called it off when Lonardi's government announced elections would be held in all the unions within four months.

Meanwhile, a group of distinguished Argentines urged the Lonardi government to take over operation of the newspaper La Prensa, pending a court decision on its ownership. Peron expropriated La Prensa and turned it over to the confederation of labor. The Paz family, the original owners, have filed a petition in the courts for return of the paper.

Crippled Ship Limping Home.
KODIAK, Alaska, Nov. 1 (UP)—The cargo vessel Flying Eagle limped toward Adak, Alaska, today with a cracked hull, but the captain said he and his 45-man crew would "ride it out." The 8199-ton Flying Eagle was being escorted by the freighter Navigator, which answered an SOS Sunday night.

Courteous Bus Service.
WATERTOWN, Wis., Nov. 1 (UP)—Bus drivers in Watertown give courteous service and just a little bit more. A woman recently ran to catch a bus only to find that she had to return home again because she had forgotten her glasses. "Hop in," the driver said and "we'll go by your house and pick them up."

Simple Way to Get Rich Found Hidden in the Bible

"Many rich and successful men and women," declares the author of a sensational 64-page booklet, "have no more brains or energy than average. They are usually driven to success. Frequently they are so helpless they can't quit even when they want to. Their money is made in spite of themselves."

The author gives a most astonishing formula for wealth and success based on long misunderstood parables in the Bible, a formula which he developed while making four fortunes—two for other people and two for himself. Even while the formula was still incomplete, he made and lost fortunes. Now the formula is complete, he declares success can be won again by the average person and made permanent.

The formula can be followed by rich or poor, in almost any job or business, in any honest trade or profession. And it is so simple that the entire booklet can be read in three hours. Its title is "Get Rich in Spite of Yourself."

The book has proved a sensation. 200,000 already sold by mail. Thousands ordered by sales managers for their salesmen. A leading eastern publisher is offering a de luxe store edition.

Another big publisher wanted to produce a special edition for large corporations to give free to their employees. A big newspaper syndicate wanted to publish it serially in 60 newspapers. Many readers wonder why they did not discover the formula for themselves, it is so amazingly right, so plainly practical and workable.

The entire booklet, containing the complete formula, is offered for only one dollar. The publishers say, "Read it for three weeks and if you are not delighted, return the book and get your dollar back." The publishers, Grafe and Grafe, 7172 Melrose Ave., Dept. 117, Los Angeles 46, California, will be pleased to send the 64-page booklet C.O.D. to any reader of this article—$1.00 on delivery plus 44 cents postage and C.O.D. charges. Or the reader may remit $1.00 with order and save 44 cents. In either case, the dollar will be promptly returned if the booklet is sent back within three weeks.

The de luxe book store edition sells at $2.00; so order today, while the economy edition is still being offered by mail at $1.00. "Get Rich in Spite of Yourself."

MANY FARMERS VIEW SURPLUS AS TROUBLEMAKER

Two Witnesses Urge Stored Food Be Destroyed — Committee
Quickly Rejects Idea.

By OVID MARTIN.

PENDLETON, Ore., Nov. 1 (AP)—The Senate Agriculture Committee is finding that many farmers look on the Government's seven billion dollar stock of farm surpluses as the villain in their troubles.

At Pendleton, as well as at hearings in the Midwest last week, farmer after farmer expressed the view that if the Government would only get rid of its big stocks of wheat, cotton and other products, farm prices would rise quickly to satisfactory levels.

Some farmers said they saw little chance of better times for agriculture as long as the surpluses exist.

Destruction Proposed.
Proposals that the surplus be destroyed were made by two farmers at the hearings yesterday.

Telling the committee that he was going to "shock" it, Ivon Pierce, farmer of Letitia, Idaho, said, "we should destroy these surpluses just like a lot of surplus war materials were destroyed after the war to keep industry from being hurt by surplus industrial products."

Chairman Allen Ellender (Dem., Louisiana) retorted: "you certainly do shock me."

Hyrum Gibbons, farmer of Logan, Utah, suggested that idle Government maritime ships now being used to store surplus wheat be "taken out in the ocean and that the grain be allowed to leak out."

"I know this is revolutionary," Gibbons said, "but it would help the farm-price situation and save the Government a lot of money on storage."

Committee members quickly emphasized, however, that nothing like this would be considered.

Hunger in World.
Many farmers told the committee that they could not understand why, with so much hunger in the world, the surpluses cannot be put to use abroad. Some blamed State Department "interference" for what they considered inadequate efforts to sell the surpluses abroad.

The committee found support in Oregon for midwestern suggestions that the Government undertake a broad program of curtailing production until the surpluses can be disposed of and until farm production is adjusted to needs.

Leaders of the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation as well as a number of individual farmers said this could be done if the Government offered rental payments on land made idle under such a program.

Chairman Ellender has indicated that a program of this nature probably would be the basis for a farm bill which he said he hopes his committee will report to the Senate floor early in the session starting in January.

Senator Morse Testifies.
Senator Wayne Morse (Dem.), Oregon, yesterday called the Administration farm program an "economic wringer" for farmers and urged restoration of high rigid farm price support.

Morse, former Republican Senator who turned Democrat, told the committee that "Secretary of Agriculture Benson and the Administration do not intend to remedy the farm program."

Morse's Oregon colleague, Senator Richard Neuberger, also a Democrat, appeared to ask for something more than either the Administration's flexible price supports or the old 90 per cent price floor of the preceding Truman Administration. Parity is a price goal of farm programs.

PERMITS ISSUED IN OCTOBER FOR $5,491,000 IN BUILDING

Building permits issued in St. Louis in October were for construction with an estimated value of $5,491,000, more than twice the amount in October 1954. William C. Dale, statistician for Building Commission, A. H. Baum Jr., reported today.

However, permits for the first 10 months of this year were for $43,000,000 in construction, substantially down from the $56,000,000 in the corresponding period last year. Last year's total included several major housing projects.

Of last month's total, $4,845,000 was for new construction and $646,000 for alterations. Residential new construction permits totaled $2,403,000, of which $2,098,000 was for the 173-unit Frontenac Apartments, Kingshighway and West Pine boulevard. Commercial and industrial permits totaled $2,442,000, of which $924,000 was for a public school building at 2800 Hadley street.

TWINING HOPES JAPAN CAN TAKE OVER AIR DUTIES

TOKYO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Gen. Nathan F. Twining, United States Air Force Chief of Staff, said today he hopes "the Japanese air force will soon be able to take over defense of this island country."

"We are anxious to see the Japanese get started in the development of an air force, the general said at a press conference shortly after his arrival from Honolulu.

Twining said trouble was not necessarily expected around the off-shore China islands of Quemoy and the Matsus this winter. Neither, said Twining, is there any particular time which the Far East Air Force expects a Chinese Communist attack on Formosa.

Asked about buildup of the Soviet Air Force in Siberia and the Kurile Islands, he turned to the Far East Air Force commander, Gen. Lawrence Kuter, for an answer.

Kuter said there had been a "substantial qualitative improvement. They are certainly modernizing their forces."

Twining used the same description in talking about the Chinese Communist air force.

The air chief said he considered the United States Air Force capable of stopping any Communist aggression in the Far East. "We might use nuclear weapons 'if we need them,'" he said.

SENATORS TESTIFY AT TRIAL OF KAMIN

Psychologist's Lawyer Moves for Dismissal of Contempt Charges.

BOSTON, Nov. 1 (UP)—Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, was allowed to "carry the ball" alone in his search for Communists during 1953 and 1954, three subcommittee colleagues testified yesterday.

Republican Senators Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota and Charles E. Potter of Michigan were the final prosecution witnesses at the trial of a former Harvard psychologist charged with contempt of Congress.

Attorney Calvin P. Bartlett, counsel for Leon J. Kamin, moved for a judgment of acquittal the minute the Government rested its case.

If it is rejected, the defense will open Thursday when Kamin may be recalled from Kingston, Ont., where he is a research assistant at Queen's College.

All three Senators testified yesterday they gave consent to McCarthy's investigation of "subversion and espionage in defense establishments" by "not objecting." None of them attended hearings of his Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee outside Washington. Potter agreed he let McCarthy "carry the ball."

Kamin refused at a hearing before McCarthy Jan. 15, 1954, to name his former Communist associates. Bartlett argued in his motion for acquittal that the subcommittee was out-of-bounds when investigating espionage and subversion and that Kamin never was informed of the "subject under inquiry."

The motion argued further that federal law does not compel testimony before a subcommittee on pain of criminal contempt. Kamin faces a maximum sentence of $1000 fine and one year in jail on each of six indictments.

McCarthy testified earlier this month that he felt espionage and subversion clearly affected "economy and efficiency of Government operations." He said it therefore lay in the province of the subcommittee, a branch of McCarthy's Senate Committee on Government Operations.

8 IN AUTO THEFT RING SENTENCED

Terms Range From 2 to 20 Years—Machines Valued at $258,000.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 1—Eight St. Louis men yesterday were sentenced to federal prison terms ranging from two to 20 years on their guilty pleas of participation in an automobile theft ring which stole several hundred automobiles in the St. Louis area and sold them to Oklahoma used car dealers.

After the ring was broken up by police last March, two other members of the group, whose operations had extended over several years, pleaded guilty here of Dyer Act violations and received federal prison terms.

Sentenced here previously were Willie Johnson and O. T.

and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents traced 208 stolen machines, valued at $258,000, to the operators of the ring. All members of the ring are Negroes.

Willie Potter, who formerly lived in the 3800 block of Main street, described by the Government as the ringleader, was given a 20-year prison term by United States District Judge Royce H. Savage. Potter denied that he directed operations.

Others sentenced, and their terms, were: Henderson Richardson, formerly of the 1500 block of Goode avenue, 15 years; Lee A. Jackson, 4500 block of Cote Brillante avenue, and James Stephens, 10 years each; Daniel B. Shelton and Eddie Potter, eight years each; John White, three years, and Jesse Potter, two years.

Many of the automobiles were recovered from dealers in Oklahoma towns. The dealers declared they had no knowledge the machines were stolen. The investigation "revealed that members of the ring bought junked machines and used the titles for stolen automobiles."

Sentenced here previously were Willie Johnson and O. T.

Hayes, to five years in prison each. Another member is serving a term in the Missouri penitentiary and will be brought here after completing that sentence.

FOUND: by Duncan Hines—the one recipe that gives you the forgotten flavor of rich buttermilk pancakes

More and richer buttermilk than in any other mix! 12 ingredients—many you can't find at your grocer's

DUNCAN HINES
America's Foremost
Authority on Good Eating

From a well-thumbed page of an old cookbook, Duncan Hines took the recipe for pancakes as they used to be, when cooks took all the time and trouble to make really fine "eating." He put this recipe into a mix...so that now, off your griddle, come pancakes such as you've probably never tasted.

Run your finger down this recipe and you'd find ingredients not on your shelf, or your grocer's. Five—yes, five—different flours, including the finest-milled wheat flour usually reserved for cakes. Special syrup-flavored sugar. And, of course, buttermilk because it tenderizes the gluten in flour. The really rich, butter-flecked kind that farm folks know as "churning-day" buttermilk.

Wouldn't you like to sit right down now and taste Duncan Hines buttermilk pancakes? Better get a package today—and enjoy a "forgotten flavor!"

There's rich "churning-day"— buttermilk—and plenty of it
—in this 12-ingredient mix

Income Tax Refund Office Sets Record --- 147 Applicants in Day

Largest Check Is for $287, Paid to Man Who Had No Idea He Was Entitled to Cash.

Yesterday was the busiest day in the refund office of the Internal Revenue Service here since publication of names of "lost" income taxpayers began last Oct. 16.

Applications for refunds totaled 147, of which 135 were in person, the rest by mail. These brought total applications to 1435, out of the 3705 "lost" taxpayers in the eastern district of Missouri whose names are being published.

Largest check yesterday, for $287, was to John P. Staples, 2953 Thomas street. He said he had no idea he was entitled to a refund until he saw his name in the newspaper. "I can sure use the money," he remarked.

Miss Vivian Berry, 4214 Norfolk avenue, whose check was for only $4.96, nevertheless told reporters she planned a "big celebration."

"Lost" taxpayers are those whose refund checks were returned to the revenue service by the Post Office Department, for various reasons. Application is made at the refund office in the basement of Federal Building, Twelfth boulevard and Market street. Identification should be furnished. Telephone inquiries cannot be handled.

EDEN'S CABINET WINS IN FIRST MAJOR TEST VOTE

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Prime Minister Eden's cabinet last night won its first major parliamentary tilt by defeating a Laborite motion charging it with incompetence and neglect in economic policies.

The House of Commons voted down the censure motion 329-261 after bitter debate on an emergency anti-inflation budget introduced last Wednesday by Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard A. Butler.

Butler's "cut spending" measures boosted sales taxes, cut housing subsidies and increased taxes on company profits.

Eden wound up debate for the government with a speech aimed principally at Laborite charges that the budget measures hit the working man hardest.

"Taken as a whole, the level of purchasing power of wages in this country has never been higher," Eden said.

Earlier, the House voted 314-255 to approve the increases in the sales tax.

CATHOLIC BISHOP IN YUGOSLAVIA GIVEN PAROLE

BELGRADE, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Yugoslav government has paroled the Most Rev. Petar Cule, Roman Catholic bishop of Mostar, the semi-official Yugoslav news agency reported last night.

The prelate was sentenced in 1948 to 11½ years in prison for "hostile activities during the war." He was accused of collaborating with the German and Italian invaders and of supporting the wartime Nazi puppet government of Croatia.

The Yugoslav report said the bishop was freed from prison Sunday. It did not indicate whether he would be able to choose his own place of residence.

His release was seen here as a move toward lessening differences between Yugoslavia and the Roman Catholic church.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN STREET IS IDENTIFIED

The body of a woman which was found Sunday lying near the curb on Benton street at North Broadway was identified yesterday as that of Mrs. Mattie Powell, 32 years old, 1023 North Twenty-first street.

Mrs. Powell, a Negro, died of a broken neck. Police were unable to determine how she was killed but said she might have been struck by an automobile. They said she had been seen Saturday night sitting on the curb.

HIMSELF!

At last—the fabulous redhead himself tells the whole Godfrey story!

"I am sick and tired of the fantastic tales that have been concocted for glib newspapermen by the press agents of my former associates. I think it is about time that folks heard the true story."

With complete candor the most discussed, admired, maligned and controversial of all entertainers brings you his own story in The Saturday Evening Post.

It's the year's biggest story from the entertainment world, told by TV's top personality.

Millions of words, friendly and otherwise, have been written about Godfrey. But this is the first time Arthur HIMSELF has told his story. And what a story! Here are all the things only Arthur could know and only Arthur could tell... from his childhood memories to his current TV show.

The fabulous redhead tells it all in the style that has become his trademark. He pulls no punches. He tells of his troubles as well as his triumphs. You can start reading the whole fascinating Godfrey story today in The Saturday Evening Post. It's on the newsstands right now. So be sure to get your copy early, before they're sold out.

YOU'LL READ ABOUT...

- Godfrey, the hotel clerk who almost got killed by hoodlums in Detroit.
- Godfrey, the coal miner, baker's assistant, cemetery-lot salesman, vaudeville actor and sailor—all before he got near a radio station.
- How Godfrey talked his way out of the Hooligan Navy (with the help of the Governor of Maryland).
- How he got his first broadcasting job selling birdseed as "Red" Godfrey, the "warbling banjoist" ... how he ad-libbed his way into becoming radio's first disk jockey.
- The terrific automobile accident that changed his life in more ways than one: "The X rays looked as if somebody had taken a bunch of dog bones and pitched them into a basket!"
- His candid words of his parting with Julius La Rosa and his side of the Teterboro Airport incident.

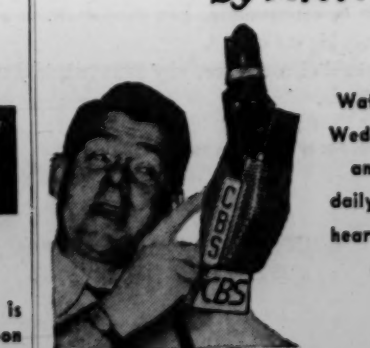

While only 16, Arthur lied about his age to join the Navy. His father died while he was away at sea.

"This is MY story"

by ARTHUR GODFREY as told to Pete Martin

SURGEONS TO CHECK HIGH-FEE CHARGES

Secret Committee to Report to A.C.S. as Result of Complaints.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Do some or many surgeons charge fees that are too high? The American College of Surgeons today announced it is undertaking a special study of surgical fees.

A committee of "six or seven distinguished surgeons" will investigate the fee matter, making a preliminary report to regents of the college about mid-December, said Dr. I. S. Ravdin, of Philadelphia, chairman of the A.C.S. board of regents.

"Statements have been made that in many instances exorbitant fees have been charged. We intend to look into this matter, and find out if it is so," Dr. Ravdin told reporters.

He said the regents had unanimously approved appointing the investigating committee. He declined to name the members, saying they could best do their work if their names were not made public.

"This is not a white-washing committee," Dr. Ravdin asserted. "We will make public whatever it finds, if there is anything to make public. We won't hide anything when we get the report."

The College of Surgeons made news several years ago in announcing its opposition and a campaign against fee-splitting. It defined fee-splitting as a sharing of a fee between a surgeon and a physician who referred the patient to the surgeon, without specific billing for the services that each had performed.

"We believe we have made a very healthy dent in that practice" (fee-splitting), Dr. Ravdin said. "We will study this matter of fees as it affects all other practices, and particularly as it affects fellows of the college."

In its campaign against fee-splitting, the A.C.S. sought the co-operation of the American Medical Association. Ravdin declined to answer the question of whether he was satisfied with the co-operation, but the Chicago Daily News quoted Dr. Everts Graham of St. Louis, Ravdin's predecessor, as saying the A.M.A. has been dragging its feet. Dr. Graham is emeritus professor of surgery at Washington University.

To become fellows of the college, surgeons "take an oath that they will not participate in what are considered immoral practices," the chairman of the regents said. Surgeons judged guilty of disobeying these ethics are dropped from membership "and a number of fellows have been dropped for irregular practices."

Dr. Ravdin declared that if complaints of over-charging are found substantiated "we will see to it that the public interest is protected so far as our own fellows (of the A.C.S.) are concerned."

"It is not our function to police American medicine. It is our function to see that our own fellows do not participate in practices considered immoral or unethical by the college, he said.

In the fee investigation, the A.C.S. will ask for co-operation or help from other medical groups "if the evidence points in the direction of our needing additional help," Dr. Ravdin said.

WILBUR WRIGHT, 2 OTHERS ELECTED TO HALL OF FAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Airplane inventor Wilbur Wright, railroad engineer George Westinghouse and southern Gen. Thomas Jonathan (Stonewall) Jackson have been elected to the Hall of Fame for great Americans.

Their election, announced yesterday after an elaborate process of public nominations and consideration by a 121-member college of electors, brings to 88 the number of Americans so honored since the shrine was established by New York University in 1900.

Bronze likenesses of the three men will be placed later in the colonnade of the Hall of Fame, on University Heights overlooking the Hudson river.

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT TO AVOID EXTREMES, PUBLISHER SAYS

Under its new management, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat will avoid extremes of right and left in its political viewpoint and "try to make the middle of the road exciting," Richard H. Amberg, publisher of the newspaper, said today in an address to the Advertising Club of St. Louis at Hotel Statler.

The newspaper has dropped a number of columnists and replaced them with others, Amberg added, "to shift the emphasis from extreme right to center, which is where we expect the emphasis to be."

The newspaper's press times have been moved back to enable it to print "the latest possible news in the morning," Amberg said.

SECRETARY M'KAY SELLS AUTO AGENCY TO IN-LAWS

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 1 (AP)—Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay, whose automobile agency has been picketed by union men since July, today announced sale of the firm to his sons-in-law.

Picketing continued at the plant, formerly the Douglas McKay Chevrolet Co., now to be known as the Capitol Chevrolet-Cadillac Co.

"It has changed its name, but we believe it is less than a complete change of ownership. McKay's statement that he has sold out brings a smile to our faces. We'll do some checking," said Milo Holt, AFL Machinists Union spokesman.

"We have been making arrangements for this sale for 2½ years, long before this labor trouble started. McKay sold it to us because he doesn't believe in absentee ownership," said the sons-in-law, Wayne Hadley and Leseter Green.

$300,000 FUND TO HONOR PUBLISHER EUGENE MEYER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Friends and relatives of Eugene Meyer marked the publisher's eightieth birthday yesterday by announcing a $300,000 fund has been raised to set up a chair of medicine in his honor.

The announcement was made at a birthday luncheon attended by many high officials including Vice President Nixon, who brought a personal greeting from President Eisenhower to the Washington Post and Times Herald board chairman.

The Eugene Meyer Chair of Medicine will be established at George Washington University school of medicine here.

MAN, 78, IS SERIOUSLY BURNED IN FIRE IN HOME

Benedetto Bonelli, 78 years old, suffered serious burns of the body, face and arms last night in a fire at his home, 2124A Marconi street.

He was rushed to City Hospital but was unable to make a statement as to how the fire started. Firemen said the blaze apparently began in rubbish in the kitchen.

Damage was estimated at $200 to the building and $50 to the contents. Bonelli, who lives by himself, apparently was able to leave the building without assistance, police said.

PATROLMAN IS SUSPENDED FOR TWO MONTHS, DEMOTED

Patrolman William Samuel of the Carr Street District has been suspended without pay for two months and reduced to the rank of probationary patrolman for conduct unbecoming an officer, the Board of Police Commissioners announced yesterday after its regular weekly meeting.

The charge, which concerned Samuel's off-duty activities, was lodged last Sept. 19 when his suspension began. He was found guilty after a trial before the board last Oct. 20.

EX-CONGRESSMAN NAMED AGRICULTURE LIAISON MAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today appointed former Representative Jack Z. Anderson, California Republican, as a special assistant to serve as liaison man with Congress.

Anderson succeeds former Representative Wesley A. O'Ewart, Montana Republican who resigned in October to become an assistant secretary of interior.

Lincoln breaks with the past to prove length and luxury can be combined with true sports car maneuverability.

And the acid test of the new Lincoln's astonishing maneuverability is found on crowded city streets. You'll hardly believe the effortless ease with which a Lincoln threads through traffic.

For here is more than a car of length—with the lean look of an arrow. (Over a foot longer in the frame than last year.) Here is more than a car of luxury—with richness in every detail.

Here, above all, is the fine car you can drive. In traffic or on the open road, Lincoln responds with the agility akin to a stripped-for-action sports car.

That's the result of the power of the new Lincoln—285 horsepower—the most powerful Lincoln ever built. It's the result of Lincoln's more advanced transmission that not only gives faster acceleration, but gives it with a smoothness never before known. And it's the result of Lincoln's improved suspension that helps make turning so easy, keeps your Lincoln hugging the road on tight curves.

Come in and drive the new, long, luxurious Lincoln. Discover how responsive, how maneuverable a finely built, truly big car can be.

And you'll discover, too, why 1956 is indeed the year of the Lincoln.

The new 1956

GOBLIN GOURMETS ON THE PROWL

Goblins, gnomes and other ghostly folk gathering around Mrs. Truman Isley, 1415 Peacock lane, Audubon Park, as she hands out treats to neighborhood sprites. The Halloween hobgoblins apparently were more interested in treats than tricks as they made their annual rounds last night. Many children spent the evening helping to provide "treats" for needy children overseas by collecting subscriptions for the United Nations Children's Relief Fund. Largest groups of goblins were to be found in suburban subdivisions housing many young families.

Without Traffic Jam

Fall in Its Glory at Meramec State Park

By Robert E. Hannon

AFTER YEARS of battling traffic to glimpse the glory of autumn in Missouri's Ozarks, my family enjoyed the spectacle this year without endangering life, fender, budget or disposition. We avoided the traffic problem by heading off to the hills bright and early Saturday, ahead of the hordes.

For hours we roamed woodland byways in the mellow autumn sunshine, beholding nature's flaming fall revue in a leisurely manner. It was much more satisfying and less wearing than the way we formerly performed the annual observation rite—that is, by taking a nerve-shattering Sunday drive in the country like everyone else.

This year we planned in advance. During a summer visit to Meramec State Park, 60 miles southwest of St. Louis off Highway 66, we saw that the rugged hills there offered a perfect setting for the fall extravaganza. It was then we decided to make a two-day visit to the park in the autumn, and Park Superintendent Hugh Dill promised to let us know when the show was about to begin.

We received his notice Friday and next morning we set out. Little traffic was encountered on the highway and a pleasant 90-minute drive brought us to Sullivan, where we stopped for lunch. It is only a few minutes' drive from Sullivan to the park on State Highway 114, but we took our time to enjoy the ride.

AT THE PARK we were greeted by a breathtaking sight. Steep hillsides that form the gateway to the park shimmered in the sunlight, ablaze with vivid colors—red, yellow, orange, green, scarlet, russet, brown and gold. Nature had painted with a lavish hand.

Our first stop in the park was at the cabin we had reserved. We stowed our luggage, changed clothes, then set out in our car on an unhurried tour of the 7135-acre park. Following a paved road that makes a loop through the area, we stopped frequently to gaze on unmatched vistas of hills and valleys sparkling with the splashes of autumn and to record the scenes on color film. After completing the loop, we followed a good gravel road along the Meramec river, which forms a boundary of the park and, with its swimming, boating and fishing, is one of the chief attractions. We were surprised at the number of tents and trailers in the camping areas along the river.

AT CAMPER'S SPRING, at the base of a bluff towering above the river, we abandoned our car to hike on a well defined trail that zig-zagged up the face of the cliff and disappeared in dense brush at the top. The climb was well worth the effort, for at the summit we were rewarded with a magnificent view of a hillside in the forest and wildlife refuge on the opposite side of the river. The riot of color held us spellbound. Flaming crimson of hard maples and sweet gums mingled with the scarlet and reddish-purple of oaks and the dark red of sumac.

In striking contrast with the various shades of red were the blue-green of cedar, pines and spruces, the brilliant yellow of hickories, the bright orange of sassafras, the gold of white maple and sycamore. With reluctance we left the spot to continue along the trail into a dense woods. In the stillness of the forest, we felt as though we were in a great fresco cathedral. The sun's rays slanting through the multi-hued foliage gave every appearance of coming through a stained glass window. For the first time we realized how differently the colors of autumn appear when viewed by reflected and transmitted light.

IT WAS LATE AFTERNOON before we took leave of the peaceful woods. We found we just had time for a tour of the park's main attraction, Fisher's Cave, one of the largest and most spectacular of Missouri's many caverns. Joining a party about to be conducted through the cave by a professional guide, we made the mile-long trek by lantern light and marveled at the immense stalagmites and stalactites. The tour of the cave, actually a series of big chambers connected by passageways far under a limestone bluff, proved entertaining and educational.

We returned to our cabin, set amid trees on a bluff overlooking the river, and watched the setting sun cast deepening shadows on a distant hill before preparing a light meal in the small but adequate kitchen. Although rustic in appearance, the cabin—one of a dozen in the park—had all modern conveniences, including hot and cold running water, and was comfortably furnished. The evening was spent in front of a blazing fire in the huge stone fireplace.

After attending church in Sullivan on Sunday morning, we returned to the park for a short float trip on the river in a rented flat-bottomed boat. It afforded spectacular views of richly garbed hills and of the towering limestone cliffs that border the stream in places, but it is not a trip to be undertaken by a novice boatman. By the time we left the park, picnickers were arriving in large numbers.

On our return journey we retraced our route of the day before as far as St. Clair, where we turned onto Highway 30 to follow a more scenic road back to St. Louis. By 3:30 p.m. we were home.

The flaming fall revue in Meramec State Park is expected to continue this week. It is a sight worth seeing.

Tips for Teens

CLOTHES, convertibles, big allowances... they're wonderful. But they're not everything. Let's not get mixed up about them!

Sometimes it's the boy with the brightest new car and the most expensive sports jacket (with plenty of folded green stuff in the pocket) that rates big, wistful sighs from Miss High Schooler... when she's a freshman.

But by the time she's a junior, she has probably learned that she can also have date fun with Johnny, the boy who has a part-time job and borrows the family car for dates.

WHY? Partly because everybody respects him. He doesn't neglect his books, because he wants to go to college, but he also has time for school doings. He realizes that if he is old enough for dates, he is also old enough to earn some of the money for his own expenses (some boys contribute some of their earnings to the family budget too, if necessary).

He has learned to have "different" date fun sometimes—a concert in the park, an oldtime movie at the Museum or a trip to the zoo to see the new baby chimpanzee.

BUILDING and Modernization Note: Because construction jobs require wood of proper strength and durability, using poor species or grades can cause waste. But so can use of higher grade than needed. New "Wood Handbook" prepared by Forest Service is a valuable guide on grades of lumber. It also covers what to look for in insulation and where to put it; use of fire retardants; how to bend wood; withdrawal resistance of various kinds of nails. It has sections, too, on paint—kinds to use, how to apply, how to prevent blistering and staining—and gives relative durability of different floor finishes.

BANK LOANS: Look for more and more banks, in effort to retrieve small loan business lost to finance companies, to try a new loan system for consumers. The plan reported by Tide: you establish your credit, then get 10 checks, personally imprinted, which you can use to buy whatever you want up to the amount of your loan. For bank, this means just one credit investigation for what might have been 10 small personal loans, each too small to be profitable. For consumer, it means less red tape, some prestige from checks which are not identifiable as loan.

CARWISE: "Car Deal," recently published paper-back novel, may be worth reading before you buy a car—for its exposure of many tricks of crooked car dealers which are explored by all honest dealers. There are the dealers who "accidentally" charge higher rate for insurance and pocket difference; those who charge for state tax on whole cost of car instead of on cost after trade-in value has been deducted; others who get buyer to sign blank form, then fill in higher-than-quoted figures and threaten suit if buyer doesn't live up to contract. Other tricks are also revealed.

VARIED ADVICE from the experts: In night driving, if you close one eye when car with bright headlights approaches, only the open eye becomes glare-blinded; other stays adapted to near-darkness. Toe-touching to trim waistline is waste of time, may do some harm by stretching back muscles already flabby from constant sitting down. Just two 10-minute exercise sessions a week will keep average adult in good physical condition. They should include: (1) vigorous warmup for a few minutes, such as running in place, to build endurance; (2) neck stretching; (3) abdominal toning by slow

Let's Explore Your Mind

1. IS IT BETTER FOR WIFE TO GET ANGRY THAN TO JUST BE HURT?
YES ☐ NO ☐

Answer to Question 1.
YES, said nine men out of 10 interviewed. They agreed the wife who pouts—goes around with her precious "ego" leaking tears and with a "no-body understands me" whimper—is far worse to live with than the woman who stands up and fights in a reasonable way for her side of the case.

Answer to Question 2.
Recently I cited one research indicating that in the group of boys studied some suffered maladjustment as a result of work after school hours. However, other researches find no maladjustment from work after school hours. Unfortunately, I used the phrase "outside of school." Some readers interpreted this to mean summer work. My mistake. Numerous studies show summer work is good for personality growth. Many eminent men and women have worked their way through school and college with no ill results.

Answer to Question 3.
Semantics is the science of the exact meaning of words. Half the quarrels between married people are due to each using the same words but with different meanings. They aren't even talking to each other. Prof. Hugh Walpole, said in his fine book, "Semantics: The Nature and Meaning of Words," all England got het-up because Mussolini said England was not "loyal" to Italy. In English "loyal" means almost "servile." The Italian equivalent means "fair." Prof. Walpole says, "A study of semantics steps up your I.Q."

Color for Parquet Floors

By Elizabeth Hillyer

PARQUET floors, waxed and shining, pick up their lost limelight again today—and sometimes they do it in color. One of the newest ideas in wood floors is alternating blocks of oak, in shimmering coral and rose, for example, with the color stained lightly into the wood and showing rich wood grain.

Blue, gold, and green are other shades that can be had on prefinished oak blocks as well as natural oak and a deeper toast brown. But color is only a part of the triumphant return to more floor emphasis than leg raising from prone position; (4) arm and shoulder work-out by push-ups from floor, wall or table.

If you'd like further information on any of the above items, write Lawrence Galton in care of the Post-Dispatch, giving date of appearance and enclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Add Years To Your Life Span

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

THE fortunate people who are always healthy cannot possibly conceive that illness is a perpetual danger that lurks around dark corners. That it is ready to pounce on the unwary. That often the most terrible malady strikes so stealthily that only the doctor can detect its presence.

I would say that a good family history is important. You are an excellent candidate for longevity yourself if your ancestors were long-lived. But that is no guarantee of safety. I have seen children of 40 leave their 80-year-old parents behind. And I have seen "poor risks," descendants of short-lived parents live into their 90s.

No physician, however brilliant, can tell each individual patient what his exact chances are for survival. We can tell you that as a group, children of long-lived forebears live longer. But there are too many exceptions around that make this gamble costly. The purpose in going to your doctor for an examination even when you feel well, is to reduce the odds against yourself.

WHEN YOU GO to him, you will find that M.D. stands for Medical Detective. If you have a cough, a pain, a headache, if you have lost weight; if you eat too much; if you have a lump or give a history of passing blood; whatever your symptoms he will track them down while the trail is fresh.

However, if you call him late, then the trail becomes unimportant. Cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes, coronary disease and all the rest are there by now, in full view for even the patient to know that "he's real." When that time comes, we must often pay for the months of procrastination when we thought it silly to go to a doctor.

ALTHOUGH there has been great improvement in the layman's response to the need for preventive medicine, I think this is still true: most of us take better care of our cars and houses than we do of ourselves. Nevertheless, I am encouraged at the slow but sure progress that is being made on the personal health front.

In a book I wrote 15 years ago I used the following words for my preface, written by Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States at that time: "It would be possible to add 10 years to the average life span of people living in the

IF you are going to have trouble with a stopped-up drain, the chances are that it's going to be the kitchen-sink drain. The reason for this is grease.

No matter how careful you are, some grease is almost sure to flow down the drain into the trap. When it becomes cool, it hardens the way grease likes to do and pretty soon you've got so much hard grease in the line that water has trouble getting through. What you have is something on the order of a slowdown.

It's often possible to flush the hardened grease out of the line by pouring boiling hot water down the drain. Don't let any water down the drain for a time so that there won't be cold water in the line to dilute the boiling hot water. Use some sort of funnel to protect the enamel around the sink drain from the hot water and start pouring. You'll need plenty of water because it must not only soften up the grease but also flush it right out of the trap.

If the hot-water method fails and if you don't feel like pulling out and cleaning the trap, you can use a chemical drain cleaner. Some cleaners are made out of potash lye or caustic potash, and these will turn the grease into a sort of soft soap that will be washed away with hot water. Many cleaners are made with ordinary lye or caustic soda and these should not be used in a kitchen-sink drain because they mix with the grease and turn it into a hard substance that won't flush out.

PIERNO COMO, better known as Perry, is engaged in a momentous show biz battle. Not only are millions being expended in the struggle with Gleason, but the most astute minds in the TV industry are participants. Como, at this point, seems to have the advantage. Ironically, the source of Perry's success is a simple idea. Perry explained it: "I'm convinced it doesn't matter what you do or even how you sing. People have to like you as a person first. If they like you, you're in. When they stop liking you as a person, you're gone."

PERRY COMO... "IF THEY LIKE YOU, YOU'RE IN."

A Small Shirker

By Angelo Patri

SOME children seem unable to start the day easily. They seem to have lost the routine training that their mother tried so long and so steadily to make part of their habitual morning schedules.

ANGELO PATRI

school is not for him and clings weeping to his mother's skirts.

THIS LAST CHILD has been entered in school and has been doing well. The kindergarten teacher says so, and cannot give any cause for this sudden distaste for school. The only thing the child says about it is, "I don't want to go to school. I want to stay home." His tears dry and his smiles shine out as soon as schooltime passes, and he will go out to play until lunchtime with no sign of distress. He just doesn't want to go to school. Why?

Given a healthy child and a good teacher, the only reason left is the one he gives—he does not want to go to school. Just as people much older than this small shirker dislike doing their daily stunts and try to escape, he tries to dodge the discipline of school—in fact, any sort of discipline that restrains him. He must give up that idea and know each day brings duties which curb his freedom of will and action. The teacher and the mother have to combine efforts toward that end.

"BUT WHEN WE MAKE HIM STAY in school, he gets sick to his stomach and vomits his breakfast." He will do just that, but he is not really sick—that is, he is not suffering from any bodily ill. He is willing to empty his stomach, something he can do easily, so as to escape the school that threatens his free will and action. Take it calmly, mop up, making him help if that is possible, clean him up (taking along a set of clean clothes is a fine precaution), and return him to the classroom. Do this day after day, and it will not be many mornings before he gives up and goes to school with resignation, if not joy.

Unless the child is really ill, and the family doctor will know when he is, keep him in school. If he is allowed just once to go home or to stay home because he says, "I don't want to go to school," he will be likely to lose a school term and in the bargain, learn that he can avoid doing his duty.

A GO-GETTER had just enthralled a business men's luncheon club with the story of his financial success—one brilliant move after another—when Jones, who had been in his class in grade school, took him aside and begged, "Charlie, now that you're such a big shot, how's for slipping a needy old pal a $100 loan?" The G-G looked mighty uncomfortable, then admitted, "Jonesy, those stories I told at lunch were 99 per cent hokey. I'm just as busted as you are." Family Troupers of the Old School

The Wandering Wests, Here Now, Seldom Know Where They'll Be Next—And They Love It

BUSTER JR. TAKES A LESSON FROM BUSTER SR. ON HOW TO STAND ON AN EAR—AN IMPORTANT SKILL FOR A COMEDIAN. FATHER IS APPEARING IN "PAJAMA GAME" AT THE AMERICAN THEATER; SON WANTS TO BE BOTH A COMEDIAN AND AN ATOMIC SCIENTIST.

By John Keasler

BUSTER WEST JR., age nine and ten-twelfths, has dual ambitions. He wants to be a comedian. Also, he wants to be an atomic scientist. In no wise does he find the two incompatible.

If he manages to do both he might well turn out to be the only atomic physicist around who can correctly fall flat on his face in four prescribed phases, in the famous West fold-up.

This, in fact, might be a step in the right direction—lots of the scientists we know could use a good laugh. However, it appears as far less than a certainty that Junior West will ever get far from show business. That's the profession of his whole family, and an unusual family it is, a group of troupers of the old school.

The Wandering Wests, father, mother, brother and sister, are currently in St. Louis where Buster Senior has an important and hilarious part in Pajama Game now showing at the American Theater. Sister, namely 17-year-old Bonnie West, is with the show also—she is the swing girl, meaning she is understudy for the entire chorus, filling in whenever needed.

The Wests are a show business family from, literally, way back. West's parents were an act on the old vaudeville circuit and their parents before them were connected with show business. Steeped in all the traditions, they live a nomadic life which would turn the average rootbound suburbanite pale at the prospect.

For the West family, backstage is second home; the children are educated by correspondence courses, another move is always coming up soon, and from one month to the next West seldom knows whether he'll be playing Chicago or Limbo in Cincinnati, Miami or Snowbound, South Dakota.

On this never-ending agenda, the Wests thrive and wax merry. Seen in a restaurant for Sunday dinner, or strolling down the street together, they look just like Joseph J. Commuter and family. But only actors, or possibly gypsies, could produce on call such a wealth of stories and memories about travel.

The Wests have their own act—all four appearing together frequently—although Mother West and Buster Jr. aren't in this particular show, "Pajama Game." Bonnie West, in fact, made her first stage appearance about 17 years ago.

Inasmuch as she is only 17, this feat would seem a difficult one to have accomplished, but she managed. She was carried onstage in a baby basket at the age of four weeks, by her proud parents during a curtain call at the Roxy Theater in New York.

When she was one year old she made a professional appearance farther south, Daddy West having decided to go to Australia. She got her first taste of real applause at the doddering age of three, at the Strand in New York, when one of her daddy's old friends—George Raft—introduced her.

Little Bonnie did a very professional split; the audience loved her. Bonnie, in turn, was so thrilled by the applause she wouldn't get off the stage.

"We knew right then it was show business for her," said West. "I had to reach out and drag her off by one foot." (Actually, despite all the joking about it, applause is no more important to members of the acting profession than the blood in their veins.)

West, the elder, has little room to joke about his daughter's love of the stage, however. As a kid himself he insisted on going on—started learning his father's dance-comedian routines at the age of four, and by the time he was 12 had a birth certificate of highly dubious authorship purporting to show he was 21.

The purpose of that document was to get around child labor laws. Unromantic law enforcement officers had an unfortunate tendency to put bars around the parents of tiny performers, in some localities. "I had one advantage," West recalled. "The comedy routine called for an Irish wig. I wore that wig so long everybody forgot how old I was. They thought I was a midget."

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

CERTAIN trump holdings constitute bad penalty doubles—unless, of course, the defending partnership has so much side strength that it will not be fatal to inform declarer about the trump break he can expect. Contracts that would almost surely go down in the absence of the double can often be played to a successful conclusion when the declarer has been truthfully warned. Here's proof:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠32	♠A64	♠J	♠QJ1085
♥J975	♥7	♥Q107642	♥73
♦AKQ4	♦Q982	♦A85	♦42
♣1086	♣K1053	♣K93	♣AK6

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♥	Pass	3♥	Pass
3N.T.	Pass	4♥	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

West led his fourth-highest diamond. East covered dummy's jack, and South won. South studied the situation at some length, then concluded that East would not have doubled without a holding of four trumps, probably headed by both of the missing honors. So South planned his play on that basis. At Trick 2 he led a club. East won and, seeing that it was highly desirable to shorten dummy's trumps to prevent club establishment, returned a diamond. After ruffing on the table South led another club, and this was the position:

♠32	♠A64	♠J	♠QJ1085
♥J975	♥7	♥Q742	♥—
♦AKQ4	♦Q982	♦8	♦—
♣1086	♣K1053	♣3	♣6

East, having taken the second club, could do no better than lead his last club, but in vain. South ruffed with the trump eight, shutting out West, then cashed the three top spades and led a trump to the ace. Now he simply led a club, and though East had longer trumps than either dummy or South held, he could win only the trump king... Play it out.

The R. E. Rowlands Plan Trip to New York

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND EDGAR ROWLAND, 22 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves, plan to leave St. Louis Tuesday, Nov. 22, for New York where they will spend Thanksgiving weekend with their daughter, Miss Eleanor Frances Rowland. A debutante of last season, Miss Rowland is now in her junior year at Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

Announcement was made early in October of the engagement of the Rowland's son, Second Lt. Raymond Edgar Rowland Jr., USAF, and Miss Pauline Elizabeth Nichol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Gordon Nichol of Dallas, Tex. Miss Nichol and her mother are expected to arrive in St. Louis next Tuesday to visit briefly with the Rowlands. The next day Mrs. Rowland will give a tea at her home from 4 until 6 o'clock to introduce her prospective daughter-in-law to her friends.

Miss Nichol and her fiancé, who is currently stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., will be married Friday night, Dec. 30, at the Highland Park Methodist Church in Dallas. Bishop William C. Martin is to officiate at the 8 o'clock ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Nichol will give the reception at the Dallas Woman's Club.

Miss Frances Virginia Nichol will serve as maid of honor for her sister, with Mrs. Benjamin Many Bishop (Eleanor Rowland), the prospective bridegroom's sister, as matron of honor. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, with their 6-month-old son, Benjamin Many Bishop Jr., moved from Chicago to St. Louis several weeks ago and are now making their home in Manhasset Village, Richmond Heights.

Bridesmaids will include Miss Eleanor Rowland, Miss Frances Martin, Miss Judy Barrett, Miss Nancy Sue Jones and Miss Ruth Shuttles, all of Dallas. Two nieces of the bride-to-be, Elizabeth Agnes Lacy and Paula Catherine Lacy, are to be flower girls.

My Day

Suggests New Names for Housewives

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

HAVING published a letter on the use of the word "housewife," I have another letter which takes me to task for my stupidity in not realizing that what my first correspondent wanted was a new name for an occupation all women are proud of. It is simply the name they really object to, says the woman, because it is not descriptive of the job. So, I reprint her letter here and I would vote for any one of the names she suggests.

"IN REGARD to your article in today's Post-Dispatch, 'Housewife Is a Skilled Profession,' you missed the point completely! What this woman wished to bring out in her letter is that though she is proud of her profession of running a house and making a home for her husband and children, she does not like the term 'housewife' to describe that profession.

"She maintains (and I am in accord) that a wife is a woman joined in marriage to a man as husband; thus a woman is not a 'housewife' (which would mean 'the wife of a house'—and you can't marry a house!).

"Your writer wished for you to find another term to use instead of 'housewife.' In filling questionnaires as to profession, one who writes puts down 'writer,' one who lectures writes 'lecturer,' one who labors writes 'laborer,' one who sings writes 'singer,' one who manages a store writes 'manager,' one who runs a lighthouse writes 'lighthouse keeper,' etc., and, according to you, a woman who runs a house or manages a home should write 'housewife.' That doesn't make sense! She should write 'housewife'.

"SERIOUSLY, though, since a man who manages a store is 'store-manager,' why isn't a woman who manages a home, a home manager or house manager? Or what's wrong with housekeeper (compared to storekeeper)? Of course, many housekeepers are paid servants, but then a wife earns her living, clothes and spending money by managing a house, so she really is a housekeeper and truly gets paid (in room, board, clothes and spending money) for the performance of her job. So why not admit it?

"The correct way for a wife (and mother) to label her profession would be 'housekeeper,' 'house manager,' 'homekeeper,' 'home manager,' or even 'home-maker.' I'm for any one of these, so let's stop this illiterate 'housewife' business!"

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:
MY 17-year-old daughter has been going steady for a year, and I want to know if we should let her work it out for herself or demand she try to forget him. We don't approve of certain places the beau wants to take her.

He talks of a house when they marry, but as yet he has not asked her to his home. When she did have to phone him, his people weren't very friendly with her. As far as we know, they are very nice people. He never wants to double date or go to a nice public dance or affair unless we insist on it. He says that if we don't allow her to go with him, he'll come to see her anyway. She is thinking things over very seriously, but just can't come to the breaking-up point with him. I was on the verge of writing his mother and sharing the problem with her, but thought I'd better write to someone else first.

To complain to his mother would only embarrass your daughter. You say she's "thinking things over very seriously," so it's quite possible that she'll get fed up with his high-handed methods. I do think you have the right and the obligation to ask her not to go to certain places, and it's my guess that the principles and standards you have taught her will stand up against his influence. If you know he's not the right one for her, it's your place as her parents to show her why—and be sure you can state solid reasons for your objections. Just to demand that she try to forget him probably would backfire.

Dear Martha:
I AM THE ONLY WOMAN working in an office with four men. We are all doing the same kind of work and I have had a few more years' experience than two of the men. But the boss always gives them the choice assignments and the more essential work. I seem to draw the little jobs that no one else wants. I admire my employer and feel I could learn a great deal from working with him but I am constantly being made to feel unimportant, and that makes me resentful and I can't do my best work. Now another woman who is in this same line of work has suggested we form a partnership. What do you think of the idea?

If you have the experience and capital to go out on your own, it's certainly worth considering, but be sure you're ready for such a step. I don't blame you for wanting to do more significant work and take on the jobs in line with your experience and capabilities. But remember that you will be working among men the rest of your business career. Unfortunately, women haven't yet reached full equality with men—and they're to blame in many respects for that. If you can overcome your resentment and make up your mind to do the very best job you can, regardless of how unimportant it seems to be, you may be furthering your career even more than if you went out on your own.

'Nothing in Common'

By Ruth Millett

HERE'S one phrase that keeps popping up again and again in the letters that come to this column from people who are lonely.

The phrase is: "We don't have anything in common."

RUTH MILLETT with her neighbors.

Another woman joins first one club and then another searching for friends. But each time after a few meetings decides she has "nothing in common" with the other members.

What none of these lonely, searching women seems to realize is that behind that phrase "nothing in common" they are hiding the fact that they always feel just a little bit better than the members of any group with whom they are naturally associated.

They feel a little bit better than their neighbors, or a little bit better than their business associates, or a little bit superior to the women who are in the clubs that are open to them.

As long as they feel better than the people they meet through ordinary channels, they are going to be lonely and apart.

Their first step toward finding a place for themselves and making friends must be to quit measuring others by their own mental image of themselves and instead accept others as they are.

Their next step is to quit telling themselves "We have nothing in common" and start looking for the things they must have in common with neighbors, fellow workers and the women in their own social group.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

THE other evening, I had a heated discussion with a friend on the subject of tipping. The question concerned the propriety of tipping the maid in a friend's house when invited there to dinner. My friend said it was considered an "international" custom to tip the waitress for the additional work involved. I said that it was improper to do this and, in fact, might be indirectly considered an insult to one's hostess in regard to her not paying an adequate wage. My suggestion was to send a little gift (not necessarily personal) the next time you are invited to dinner. I would appreciate hearing from you on this much discussed problem.

In different degrees you are both wrong. It is never expected of a guest to tip anyone whatsoever after merely dining or lunching in someone's house. It is an obligation to tip all who have waited on you when you take leave after being a house guest for overnight or longer.

Perplexed by 'Lady' Legend

Grace Kelly Says People Make It Sound Like a 'Disease'

By Aline Mosby

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1 (UP). GRACE KELLY decided today she doesn't mind the legend that she's a "lady"—but, she sighed, the people who pin the tag on her make it sound like a "disease."

Hollywood's favorite new blonde is back in Hollywood and before the cameras for the first time in a year, in MGM's "The Swan." In her absence the Kelly legend of the "lady-like" beauty has snowballed. Miss Kelly, knitting a pair of argyle socks in her dressing room between scenes, confessed she's "perplexed" by it.

"The one thing that bewilders me is people say, 'She's a lady,' the fragile blonde reflected. 'What do they mean by 'lady'?"

"Sometimes people make it sound as though it's some disease," she said.

The second half of the Kelly legend is that she is, as some writers have described her, "aloof" and "cool."

Yet on screen, as the actress pointed out, she has sizzled the celluloid with love scenes in "Rear Window" and "To Catch a Thief."

And off-screen she recently was photographed for a magazine in a not-so-cool real life love scene with French actor Jean Pierre Aumont.

"I thought I had dispelled that cool business after 'Rear Window,'" Grace said. "But I still was known as cool after that."

"So," she laughed, "I guess it's something I'm stuck with. It upset me at the beginning, but it doesn't now."

Though some observers regard Grace as "reserved," others see signs she's defrosted. Miss K. even is a practical joker, she revealed.

When "The Swan" company was enroute back from a North

GRACE KELLY... SHE'S SIZZLED IN MOVIE LOVE SCENES, BUT PEOPLE STILL DESCRIBE HER AS "ALOOF AND 'COOL'."

Carolina location, Grace sent co-star Alec Guinness a series of mysterious romantic telegrams signed by a fictitious "Alice."

"At first he thought it was some fan, but he finally figured somebody was pulling his leg," she smiled. She paused to brew a lady-like cup of tea and added, "Oh, I play jokes when the inspiration hits me."

"Cary Grant and I have played a couple of jokes on his wife, Betsy. Just silly things. During the Miss Universe contest we sent her a wire she had been selected Miss Outer Space."

"The Swan" is Grace's first costume picture, and she wears frothy, Empire-style dresses with flowers on her piled-up blonde hair. Next she'll do a comedy with Jimmy Stewart and then head for her first try at starring on Broadway.

Aumont appears on Broadway this season and she hopes to see his play when she returns to her New York apartment. But, the lady-like Miss Kelly smiled, "We're just good friends."

Recipe for 'Sausage And Sop'

By Edith M. Barber

PORK is one of the plentiful meats this season. This applies to pork products as well as roasts and chops.

Almost everyone loves sausage, and in brisk weather nothing is more satisfying than cakes or links well browned and served with pancakes or hot rolls for breakfast. Most of us reserve this type of meal for Sunday or holiday enjoyment, although we would be glad to have it offered to us any day of the week. Of course, now that we can get the brown-and-serve sausages (they take such a short time to cook) we can give ourselves a treat more often.

Sausage, however, has become a favorite item for lunch and supper, as well as for breakfast. We may saute or bake them. The latter is a good plan if we are going to use the oven for baking potatoes. Various brands of sausage have special seasoning, and some are spicier than others, so we can take our choice.

WITH regular sausage a good deal of dripping comes out during cooking. This can be used as the basis for a sauce thickened with flour. In eastern Pennsylvania and Delaware, sausage with a sauce was known as "sausage and sop."

With this dish, griddle cakes or waffles were usually served. Syrup was often used with the last batch of hot bread.

Fruit goes well with sausage. Sometimes slices of unpeeled apple are sauted in the dripping. For a lunch or supper dish you will like a pineapple sauce. The fruit juice is used in the sauce itself, and the chunks are added later.

"Sausage and Sop."

Separate link sausages and place in baking dish. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Remove from oven. Drain sausages on soft paper. Pour off all but about three tablespoons of dripping. Stir in equal amount of flour and one-half cup of milk. Continue stirring over hot heat until sauce thickens. Add salt and pepper and more milk if sauce is too thick. Serve over hot sausages with griddle cakes, waffles or hot biscuits. Pineapple Sweet Sour Sauce With Sausage.

One package (one-half pound) brown 'n' serve sausage, one No. one tall can pineapple chunks, one-fourth cup lemon juice, one-half cup water, one-half cup brown sugar, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, one tablespoon cornstarch.

Drain pineapple and combine one half cup pineapple juice, lemon juice, water, sugar, mustard and cornstarch. Stir and boil to thicken, about five minutes. Add pineapple chunks. Brown the sausage three minutes. Pour pineapple sauce over sausage. Heat.

REDHEAD from TEXAS

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
MOLLY was soaked. Little rivulets of water ran down her boots to the expensive carpet. Her red hair was plastered against her head but neither she nor Wong noticed. "Long distance call," he reported excitedly. "From New York. Mr. Symington."

Although she had not told Wong about Walter's investigation of her father's blackmailer, she seemed to know. Wong had always known everything of importance that went on at El Rancho.

"I'll take it upstairs. So H.J. won't hear."

"H.J. asleep," Wong replied. "I come, too."

She did not care. She would have been amused—if her thoughts were not on the news which lay before her.

Walter's voice was filled with importance. "I talked to the Acme Detective Agency this afternoon. They had all the information—but they wouldn't give me the name of the person involved over the telephone. I'm going down in the morning and I'll have the complete story at that time. How soon can you get back here?"

It was more than she had hoped for and she cried impatiently. "Walter, please tell me now. I'll fly back in the morning but I can't endure the suspense another minute."

"No, darling," he insisted. "This will come as quite a shock to you and I want to tell you myself, when I can give you the name of the woman."

"Woman." So Mathew Brady had been right. She turned back downstairs.

"We tell H.J. you go to Dallas on shopping trip," Wong decided. "Mr. Matt can drive you. Plane for New York leave at 10 o'clock. I find out." He added darkly. "Women—always root of every trouble."

MATT opened the front door bringing in a gust of wind and rain. "Are you all right, Molly? That was quite a ride, you put Thundercloud through."

The quarrel was completely forgotten in the face of the new crisis. With Wong hovering silently about, they made their plans for the following day. Molly was disappointed upon her arrival in the East not to find Walter waiting for her at the airport. Nervous and exhausted Molly went to her hotel and phoned Walter's office.

"I'm sorry," his secretary said, "but Mr. Symington has been gone all day."

"This is Molly Braden and I must locate him right away? Did he go to the Acme Detective Agency?"

"I believe he did, Miss Braden, but that was this morning—early. I'm sure he'll call you."

Molly tried to be patient, although it was a virtue not often attributed to the Braden temperament. But at least it was cool in her air conditioned room. She took a shower and MODERN names for railroad cars came, to a large extent, from vehicles which were pulled by beasts of burden before railroads existed. Wagons, stagecoaches and carriages are among the vehicles of which I speak.

The word "coach" is used for a railway passenger car. It is short for "stagecoach." Early railway cars were hardly more than stagecoaches on tracks.

In Great Britain the name for a freight car is "goods wagon." The British speak of a baggage car as a "luggage van."

To some degree (but more in Great Britain than on this side of the Atlantic) a railway car is described as a carriage. The word "car" seems short for "carriage," but the two words have gone through different histories.

Q. Were the first railway cars in North America drawn by steam locomotives?

A. No, they were pulled by horses or mules.

A school history book published 125 years ago described early days of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Here, in short-handled form, is the account:

"The most curious thing at Baltimore is the railroad. People who live west of the Alleghany Mountains buy goods at Baltimore, and send in return a great deal of western produce. There is, as a result, much travel back and forth. Hundreds of teams pull loads to and from market."

To carry all this business more easily, the people are building what is called a railroad. This consists of iron bars laid along the ground and made

Weather Ideal but Not for Deer Hunters

Warm weather throughout most of Missouri today should bring smiles to most persons, except deer hunters, who will go out in their heavy hunting jackets for the first day of the state's deer season.

If a cold front in the north breaks through, the thermometer will drop in the night, but the ground in Missouri will be sloshy from rain Wednesday.

Arthur A. Rausch said today. "This is not going to be a good week for the deer hunters," he added.

Rain or snow is forecast for western and northern parts of Missouri, but Rausch added that nothing in the region is likely to match the snowfall of approximately 13 inches at White Court, Alberta, yesterday.

High temperatures in Missouri yesterday ranged from the 68 in St. Louis, five degrees above normal, to 76 at Kansas City. Lows this morning were from 34 at St. Joseph to 53 at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

In other parts of the nation, the highest reading yesterday was 92 at Yuma, Ariz. Lowest this morning was at Fraser, Colo., where the mercury was only one degree above zero.

cause he knew she would ruin his life if he gave her the chance. But since they are married there is nothing that can be done."

Tears filled Molly's eyes. How like H.J. to be so stubborn—and so proud. But she was immensely relieved that an ill-advised marriage was her father's only crime. She wiped her eyes and smiled faintly at Walter. "And who is this woman, Walter? I want to know her name."
